IOWA VOTES FOR DRY REPEAL

ILLINOIS HOUSE VOTES CONTROL OVER UTILITIES

Bill Is Passed by 85 to 48 Count.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—Both houses of the general assembly took decisive action today in accord with the program of Gov. Horner.

By a vote of 85 to 48, the house of representatives passed the bill backed by the governor to give the Illinois commerce commission extraordinary powers in utility rate regulation. The bill next goes to the senate for a vote.

The senate, by a vote of 33 to 13, passed the Maypole bill for the creation of a state commission to regulate horse racing.

Tax Commission Bill Next.

In addition to these two definite steps, the house prepared to go to a showdown tomorrow on the administration bill to give to the state tax commission the power to assess the capital stock of all corporations, only part of which now comes under its jurisdiction.

These three developments, said spokesmen for the administration, showed that the assembly paid no attention to published charges that these three bills were linked together and constituted a grab intended to concentrate immense power in the hands of one small group.

Gov. Horner used the word "ridiculous" in discussing this sort of story, one of which depicted John Hertz, former Yellow Cab magnate, as the "man behind" in connection with the three bills.

It has been known since the bill was first discussed here that Hertz, one of the owners of the Arlington Park track, favors bringing racing under state control, but there never has been, until the approach of the legislative windup, any suggestion that he was interested in any way in the other subjects.

Horner Says "Ridiculous."

"Such stories are ridiculous," said Gov. Horner, "and are the work of utility propagandists. They break at just the right time to hinder legislation to which the utility companies are opposed. John Hertz may favor establishing some regulation over racing. I never have heard that he was interested in either the utility or the tax fields."

Others in close contact with legislative matters differed with the governor by charging that the Hertz stories have been spread assiduously by racing interests who prefer to let the tracks continue to govern themselves.

Horner Favors Racing Bill.

But Gov. Horner, although he has not given it the label of an administration measure, does favor the enactment of the racing bill.

"Protection of the public which is so widely interested in racing," he said, "demands that some form of substantial governmental control replace the present system of self-control."

The one phase of the alleged triple alliance between bills which came up today for action before the night session was the utilities bill. This was called up for passage in the house of representatives and the argument over it began at noon, was resumed at a late afternoon session and dragged along to nightfall before the roll was called.

Partisan Split on Bill.

The opening of the debate, which started approximately at noon, showed at once a clearly defined partisan split over the bill. Before a luncheon recess at 2 o'clock there were exactly the same number of speakers on each side of the question.

There were four Democrats who insisted that the measure is a public necessity. There were four Republicans who branded it as a grasp at dictatorial power which would work to the serious injury of the consumer.

There was some comment over the fact that Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island [Democratic floor leader], who introduced the bill, did not lead the fight for it. Instead, that rôle was taken over by Benjamin S. Adamowski, a young Chicagoan, who already has led several of the administration's larger battles.

Adamowski made the opening talk and Democrats who backed him up in the first encounter of the day were Schaefer O'Neill of Alton, Joseph H. Davis of Murphysboro, and Frank W. McClure of Abingdon.

Opposition Not Organized.

Apparently the Republican opposition was not organized on definite lines, but the four early speakers were divided between Chicago and downstate in a ratio inverse to that shown

INDUSTRY CZAR TELLS PLANS TO HELP WORKERS

Says Jobs and Wages Are First Concern.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—A voluble, forceful, two fisted talker, Hugh S. Johnson, who is starting out to steer all American industry, got off a whirl of words today in his first formal interview with the press.

Mr. Johnson, administrator for the industrial recovery administration, is the last word in high pressure salesmanship, but he has something to say. He puts things brusquely in a hard boiled fashion and intersperses his comments with many wise cracks. In the hurdy-gurdy of today's type of press conference, it was difficult to judge just where and how far Mr. Johnson is going with the "new deal" for industry.

Jobs and Wages First.

Stressing the fact that in the beginning he wants to concentrate on only one general objective—getting men back to work at short hours and living pay—Mr. Johnson said that the other complaints and differences among industries must wait upon completion of the first job.

He gave the impression, in his almost breathless speech, that all of industry is working night and day trying to prepare codes for his consideration and approval. And for himself, many of his listeners, feeling almost apologetic for taking so much of his time, got the idea that here was a man in one hell of a hurry.

Striding to the front of a big room at the Commerce building, in which about a hundred newspapermen had gathered to hear the new oracle of commerce, Mr. Johnson stood behind a table and shouted:

"Let's quiet down and get going."

Trying Something New.

"I've got nothing particular to tell you," he rushed on, his eyes showing somewhat the sleeplessness of the last few weeks of preparing for this job. "I've been asked about the size of my organization. We're going to try to prevent making it too high.

"This is something that's never been done, never been tried anywhere I've ever heard of. We've simply got to fumble into this thing. Our bible is the statement issued by the President the other day, in which practically all questions are answered.

"The emergency phase of this job is to try to get people back to work. That's what's worrying everybody; that's what's the trouble with everything. And we've got to shorten the week and pay a living wage for the shorter week.

"How it's going to work out, where it's going, I don't want to say. There's been too much promising all along through this depression.

Confident It Will Work.

"The industries want to do the job as much as we do. I don't detect any slacking. I think it's going to work and put several million men back to work this summer. Maybe a snag somewhere along the line, we may stub our toes, but we're going to make a stab at it."

The diminutive figure of the big boss of industry moved to the end of the table now, and he was swinging his arms out expressively. After fidgeting nervously around for a minute or two, Mr. Johnson sat on the edge of the table, but even then, as he talked, he bounced his haunches with a superabundance of energy.

"A very beautiful job has been done already by the cotton textile people," he went on. "I'm not saying their code will be approved, but it looks pretty good to me. Several other large industries are working night and day trying to get something in fast."

He paused for questions and got answers started before the question was finished. Asked about whether he considered a $10 or $11 minimum weekly wage, as fixed in the textile code, sufficient to raise purchasing power, the administrator said:

"That's the lowest base. This bill we've got is flexible. It's not like the Black bill, which was unbending, something like a Procrustean bed, not flexible enough to sleep in."

Some question as to whether all interests in an industry might be heard was raised:

Discusses Wage Minimums.

A reporter wanted to know if an effort would be made to impose the same wage minimums all over the country, regardless of the changing conditions.

"That's right up smack in front of

TEACHING WOMEN TO GUARD PURSES IS HER GOOD TURN

Mrs. Margaret Riley, 26 years old [the name is just one of her thirty aliases on the police records], makes a living picking up sleepers. She admitted it last night at the detective bureau.

In the lexicon of Mrs. Riley, a sleeper is not one who slumbers. It's a purse which a woman shopper leaves on a counter in a department store. Mrs. Riley is at hand to pick it up. Then she takes the money from it and lays the purse back on a counter and it's a sleeper again.

"Yes," she philosophized in a conversation last night with Sergt. Kyran Phelan, "picking up sleepers is nice, clean work. You really can't blame me doing it, and nobody is hurt much. A woman leaves her purse on the counter and I take it. Well, it's once in a lifetime with the owner. They learn never to do it again. Don't you think they ought to pay for their experience?

"And you, Margaret," said the sergeant, "have you paid for your experience?"

FIREMEN RESCUE CASUAL COOLING OFF IN FOUNTAIN

Theodore Carlson, 60 years old, whose address is wherever he falls asleep, drank some moonshine yesterday. Then he sought relief from the heat, internal and external, in a fountain opposite Madison street in Grant park. He fell in, was unable to climb out. A passerby called a fire department rescue squad under Capt. John Haberkorn. The firemen fished Carlson out of the fountain and turned him over to Policemen William Neeson and Peter Conlon, who took him to the county hospital.

She Obeys Her Physician but Who'll Be Boss Now?

Baltimore, Md., June 20.—[Special.]—Miss Minetta Heiger, 23 and socially prominent, told her parents Sunday night that she was ill and was going to consult Dr. Henry Austraw. She failed to return home and her parents reported her missing. Her physician had prescribed a trip to Elkton, Md., and a change of name to Mrs. Henry Austraw. The physician reports she is doing as well as expected.

Cop Swelters in Blouse; Suspended as Disobedient

Police Commissioner Allman issued an order Monday permitting uniformed policemen to doff their blouses for the hot spell. Patrolman Edward Woelfle, central district, worked all day yesterday in his blouse. Last evening he was ordered suspended for failure to obey orders. Commissioner Allman sent out another order last night banning suspenders. Police must wear plain black belts, beginning today.

Spanish Flyers Down on Hop to Mexico City

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, June 20.—Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, the Spanish trans-Atlantic flyers, who left Havana at 5:55 this morning for this city, were reported down in the village of Malinche, in the state of Puebla, tonight. No details were given. The war department sent troops to learn whether they had crashed and to render aid.

Rumors of the finding of the Spanish aces in the state of Puebla at a late hour were unconfirmed.

President Orders Search.

Interviewed at midnight, the Spanish ambassador, Del Vayo, unavailable earlier, stated President Abelardo Rodriguez personally has ordered all military and local elements to search for the lost flyers and that ex-President Calles has phoned from his resting villa, Ensenada, in Lower California, expressing his anxiety and hopes that the world breaking record officers will be found safe.

Del Vayo has visibly aged during the last few hours regarding the fate of his compatriots—he remained at the aviation field eight hours—told the Times: "If I live to be a hundred years old I shall never forget the Mexican desire to welcome my countrymen and their sentiments of friendly relations in time of terrible distress I am now experiencing."

On Way to Chicago.

MEXICO CITY, June 20.—(AP)—Eighteen hours after they left Havana, Cuba, Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, Spanish trans-Atlantic flyers, had not arrived here at 11 o'clock tonight [midnight Chicago daylight saving time].

The airmen, who flew from Seville, Spain, to Camaguey, Cuba, are bound for Chicago to visit A Century of Progress Exposition. They announced yesterday that they expected to reach that city in time for the American air races, July 1, 2, 3, 4.

Crowd of 50,000 at Field.

Fifty thousand persons who had awaited the flyers at Valbuena flying field returned to their homes, soaked by a heavy rainstorm, when the opinion was expressed by government officials that the flyers had been forced down.

The last report from the flyers told of passage over Villa Hermosa, capital of the state of Tobasco, nearly ten hours previously.

Weather Balks Air Armada.

ORBETELLO, Italy, June 21.—[Wednesday].—(AP)—Weather conditions over the Alps, it was said early today, would not yet permit the departure of a squadron of 24 Italian seaplanes, under the command of Air Minister Italo Balbo, which plans to fly to A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago by stages.

SETTLEMENT OF RAIL WAGE CONTROVERSY IS SEEN IN MAKING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Under the guiding hand of Railroad Coördinator Joseph B. Eastman, a temporary settlement of the current wage cut controversy between railroad management and labor appeared in the making today.

The settlement, if it materializes in accordance with the purposes of Mr. Eastman, will be in the form of an indefinite postponement of the wage cut issue until a more accurate indication as to business trends is available.

Acting unofficially, but with the full significance of his position as the administration's spokesman in railroad matters, Mr. Eastman conferred today with representatives of the railroad executives and with spokesmen for the railroad employés. The conferences were conducted separately and will probably continue for several days during which a joint meeting is expected to be held.

It was the federal railroad czar who sought a postponement of the wage cut issue in the conferences today, urging the railroad executives to withhold their suggestion of a 22½ per cent wage reduction until the administration's program for recovery has progressed. To cut wages now, he told them, would be in direct contravention to President Roosevelt's plan for inflating prices and maintaining wage levels, and he pointed to the upward price trends which have already begun.

Mr. Eastman said today's conferences were primarily to obtain the attitude of both sides. He is devoting his entire time to the wage problem.

Mr. Eastman said he was greatly encouraged by the progress made at today's initial discussions of the wage cut problem.

WAS IT HOT? ADD THIS SIZZLE TO YOUR COOK BOOK

So torrid were the sun's rays yesterday in the Mount Olivet cemetery at 111th street and California avenue that a grave caught fire.

"The grave," he said, "was recently filled in with black dirt from the Sag channel. That dirt is almost the same thing as peat. In Ireland the peat bogs often catch fire from the sun and burn until rain comes. The same thing happened here."

According to the superintendent, a hose was turned on and after the flames were extinguished it was discovered the level of the grave had sunk three inches.

Lake Breeze Due to Break Heat Today

Measured in daylight, today is the longest of the year in the northern hemisphere, the summer solstice arriving at 4:12 p. m. Astronomically, summer begins at that moment, but the weather forecast has promised that Chicago will receive relief from the intense heat which has established new June records, in the form of cool northeast winds from Lake Michigan.

"It should be cloudy," said W. P. Day, the forecaster. "It is a little uncertain just when the shift of the wind will take place, but it should be here shortly after noon. There is a possibility of a thundershower also, but the best chance is for the cooling to come with the lake breeze."

With the mercury standing at 98 degrees officially at 4 and 5 p. m. yesterday, Chicagoans were sweltering in the hottest June 20 since records have been kept here. The former mark was 92 in 1872. Also, it was the second hottest day of the year, the maximum of 100 having been touched on June 7. The high official reading at the Chicago airport was 99.6 degrees at 4:35 p. m. For purposes of record the 98, taken at the University of Chicago, has precedence.

On the World's Fair grounds the huge Havoline thermometer showed 100 degrees at 5 p. m. and 102 at 6 p. m., but this failed to hold down attendance and only a few cases of persons overcome by the heat were reported.

Yesterday was the ninth of twenty days since May 31 on which the mercury has climbed beyond 90 degrees. The normal number of plus 90 days in the month is two, and the normal number for an entire summer in Chicago is ten. The greatest number of June days above 90, before the present month, was in 1913, when eight were recorded. And this June still has ten days to go.

One of Driest Junes.

Farmers, gardeners, and lawn fanciers were hopeful last night that rain would come soon, for this has been one of the driest as well as one of the hottest of all Chicago Junes. So far there has been rain on only two days, the 5th and the 16th, with a total precipitation of .63 of an ch. The fall on the 16th was only .02 of an inch.

Normal rainfall in June is 3.30 inches, and it appears likely that there will be a large deficiency for this month. The drying out which has occurred in the last fifteen days, combined with extreme heat, has caused great fears for grain crops in the central states and the plains west of the Mississippi.

Corn Damaged by Heat.

Reports from Iowa indicated that corn is curling for want of moisture. In Illinois observers said that the corn which was planted late because of a wet May—there was 5.03 inches of rain in that month—had not germinated and grown as it should because of the June drought. In Minnesota, according to State Agronomist Andrew Boss, pasture lands, hay, and potatoes were seriously damaged.

In Chicago the effort to save lawns by sprinkling was putting a great burden on the city water department. The amount pumped on Monday was 1,227,000,000 gallons. Last year's peak day was on July 20, when 1,219,000,000 were sent through the mains. The all time record was made on July 1, 1931, when the amount consumed was 1,287,000,000 gallons.

THE WEATHER

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21, 1933.

[Daylight saving time.]

Sunrise, 5:14; sunset, 8:28. Moon rises at 4:26 a. m. tomorrow. Saturn is the morning star. Venus, Mercury, Mars, and Jupiter are evening luminaries, visible until after midnight.

Chicago and vicinity—Partly cloudy and somewhat cooler Wednesday and Thursday, some possibility of a local thundershower Wednesday; moderate shifting winds becoming northeast.

Illinois — Increasing cloudiness Wednesday, probably followed by local showers and not so warm in north portion by night and in north and central portions Thursday.

NEW HAMPSHIRE, CONNECTICUT ARE ALSO WET

Fourteen for Repeal

Three states—Iowa, Connecticut, and New Hampshire—yesterday voted repeal of the 18th amendment. Fourteen states (all that have voted thus far) have acted to end the dry law. Thirty-six states are necessary.

BULLETIN.

For repeal, 368,691; against 242,612.

Des Moines, Ia., June 20.—[Special.]—Iowa today joined the procession of repeal states. Returns from 80 per cent of the precincts in the state, give a lead of 107,000 to the repeal ticket in today's election.

The election in the corn belt brought out a tremendous vote, larger proportionately than that cast in the repeal elections in New York, Illinois, and Indiana. The dry forces last night in an eleventh hour plea urged voters to remain at home unless they intended to vote dry. But the call fell on deaf ears apparently. With 472 precints missing a vote of 550,000 has been cast, or about 55 per cent of the vote polled on President last year. The total vote on repeal in New York and Illinois was about 47 per cent.

The larger cities went for repeal by huge majorities, while many rural counties which the prohibitionists deemed nailed to the mast voted to get rid of national prohibition.

Farm Sentiment Changes.

The surge among [illegible] appears to have been as strong as in rural Indiana and Michigan, old bone dry states, and tonight the repealists are shouting that it demonstrates sentiment in the agricultural midwest, the other side of the Mississippi valley.

The 99 delegates elected by statewide vote today, one for each county, will meet in Des Moines July 10, pledged to ratify the 21st amendment repealing the 18th.

Polk county, largest in the state and seat of the capital, went against prohibition two to one.

River Towns All Wet.

The river towns on both the Mississippi and Missouri rolled up huge pluralities for repeal. In Dubuque the vote stood 13,674 for repeal and 833 against.

In Davenport, incomplete returns gave for repeal 13,924, and against 1,733. Sioux City rolled up a great repeal vote, as did Council Bluffs.

In the interior, many rural counties formerly dry followed the lead of rural counties in Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan and Indiana, and voted for repeal, farmers declaiming that they are sick of prohibition and its attendant evils. In southwest Iowa some of the rural areas were showing dry majorities.

Word from McGregor was that Clayton county, in 20 precincts out of 24 gave 5,445 for repeal, against 1,239.

With less than one-fifth of the precincts still to be heard from, the tide for repeal was running about three to two or better.

Drys' Canvass Futile.

The early voting was light, but the polls kept open until 8 o'clock, and in the late hours the voters streamed into the booths.

In the campaigning the drys made a desperate canvass of the state, especially the rural areas. They pounded away on the theme that if Iowa went dry, the repeal movement would get its first obstruction, and the 18th amendment would never be wiped out of the federal constitution.

Repealists here tonight are in exultant mood. They declare the results in Iowa show the sentiment in the agricultural states west of the Mississippi. With Connecticut and New Hampshire also voting for repeal today, the Iowa results now make an unbroken line of fourteen states which have voted for repeal. Thirty-six states are necessary.

Connecticut 7 to 1 Wet.

New Haven, Conn., June 20.—[Special.]—Connecticut went for repeal today almost 7 to 1. Complete unofficial returns on today's election give 236,942 votes for repeal and 35,349 against.

pledged to vote in state convention for ratification of the 21st amendment to the federal constitution, repealing the 18th. Overwhelming majorities were piled up by all the repeal nominees. The convention to ratify the wiping out of national prohibition is to be held July 11 at Hartford.

Before the polls closed the drys had conceded Connecticut to the repealists. The nutmeg state was one of the two states which never ratified the 18th amendment, the other being Rhode Island. The total vote was about 45 per cent of that cast in the presidential election last November.

Connecticut tonight is claiming that it is the twelfth state to vote for repeal. Iowa and New Hampshire also voted, but Connecticut tonight was first under the wire with its returns.

In the big cities the repeal vote took on overwhelming proportions. Hartford, the largest city, went nearly 12 to 1 for repeal, the vote being 24,576 to 2,595. Bridgeport's vote was a shade stronger, standing 21,000 to 1,542. New Haven, second largest city, went 14 to 1 for repeal, the vote being 28,416 to 2,014.

From Dry to Wet.

Manchester, N. H., June 20.—[Special.]—New Hampshire, former dry state, today voted for repeal of national prohibition better than two to one. With only a few towns to be heard from, the vote in 260 towns and city wards out of 294 in the state showed: For repeal, 64,185; against, 27,124. These returns gave a repeal majority of 37,061.

Only a dozen or so of the smaller communities turned up dry majorities. Deering, home town of Damiel A. Poling, a national dry leader, went for repeal, 46 to 35. All the large cities turned in huge majorities for repeal. Manchester, largest city in the state, went for repeal 8 to 1, the vote standing 16,575 to 2,053.

Nashua, the first city to report a complete vote, gave 6,109 for repeal and 902 against. From 1855 to 1903 New Hampshire was under state prohibition. Later came local option and in 1918 the state again went under state prohibition, two years ahead of the nation.

Recently New Hampshire legalized the sale of 3.2 beer. Also the legislature passed a bill permitting sale of 6 per cent beer and wine as soon as the 18th amendment is repealed, and the measure is now before Gov. John W. Winant for signature.

Gov. Winant said tonight he would call the delegates into repealing convention in the near future.

WOMEN'S PEACE LEAGUE OFFICIAL BARRED BY SWISS

GENEVA, June 20.—(AP)—The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom announced today that Americans and members of other national sections have made representations to the Swiss government against the refusal of the Geneva police to renew the residence permit for Mme. Camille Drevet, a Frenchwoman and international secretary of the organization.

The reason assigned for the refusal to renew the permit was that Mme. Brevet's political activities rendered her presence in Switzerland undesirable.

A statement said the Frenchwoman, who lectured in the United States in 1928, has been combating manufacture of armaments and wrote a pamphlet in which she declared "Let us first disarm the war profiteer!"

ROOSEVELT SEES MOLEY ABOARD VACATION YACHT

Then President Sails On to Gloucester.

Aboard Motor Ketch Mary Alice, Gloucester, Mass., June 21.—[Special.]—With a fresh southwest breeze piling down out of the dark to nip at the heels of Amberjack II., Skipper Franklin D. Roosevelt piloted his schooner across Massachusetts bay tonight to a safe anchorage in the harbor of this historic old fishing town.

It was along toward midnight when the pilot President headed his ship in between the red light on the end of the breakwater and the white flasher on the buoy marking the channel.

Over to starboard the white group flashes of the Thatcher's Island light were blotted out by the point as the schooner headed up in. There was plenty of chop to the sea and the wind whipped the whitecapped crests of the following waves into a spray that left plenty of salt on the oilers of the man at the wheel. On the port beam the red light over at Marblehead shone steadily and astern the dark, hurrying clouds reflected the glow of Boston. Far to the south, Minots Ledge light winked the famous one four three flash that romantic mariners are sure spells "I love you."

When at last the Amberjack's anchor plumped into the water it marked the close of the best yachting day the President has yet enjoyed on his trip.

Sees Prof. Moley.

Earlier in the day the duties of office crowded in upon the President's holiday when Prof. Ray Moley, assistant secretary of state, flew up from Washington to report upon developments at the London conference and to receive instructions prior to his departure tomorrow as presidential messenger to the conference.

The official statement concerning the visit of Prof. Moley was given out by Stephen T. Early, secretary to the President, and read as follows:

"Assistant Secretary Moley is sailing tomorrow for London at the request of the President. He will act in a sense as a messenger or liaison officer, giving the American delegates first hand information of the various developments, congressional, etc., in this country since the delegation left, and conveying the President's views of these developments on the original instructions given the delegation before they sailed.

"Secretary Moley will stay in London only about a week and will return to give the President full information on the conference, etc., up to that time.

"The purpose of the conference with the President was to advise him in detail of developments transpiring at the economic conference in London since the President left Washington last Friday.

Sudden Change of Plan.

It was a sudden change of plan that caused the President to extend his day's run into a night sail across the bay to Gloucester. He had originally intended to put into Provincetown for the night. But a stubborn head wind had halted fair at last; it was a chance to make up a lost day; and above all it promised an evening free of the sightseers that flock out every time the Amberjack puts into harbor.

It was a disappointing change of plans for Provincetown. The citizenry were on hand to stage the sort of reception the President would like to do without. The selectmen were all set to send out a big ship model to the 45 foot schooner. Most disappointed of all was the local bathing beauty who was waiting to plunge into the harbor and carry the town's official welcome to the President's party.

Perfect Yachting Day.

The yacht left Nantucket at 6 a. m. headed for Provincetown at the point of Cape Cod. The course was over a smooth sea, drenched with bright sunlight. The single drawback was a northerly wind that kept the Amberjack's auxiliary motor busy throughout the day.

The log of the yacht showed a moderate northwest wind as she pushed out of Nantucket harbor under power. Off Handkerchief shoals lightship she hoisted mainsail and jib. At 7:40 a. m. she changed course for Stone Horse lightship. She passed the lightship 50 minutes later and started up through Pollock Rip channel.

Only one destroyer, the Ellis, was along to help the coast guard cutter Cayuhoga and the two press boats keep watch over the President. But shortly before 10 o'clock the Bernadou, the second destroyer, came cutting over the horizon and on joining the fleet lowered her gig to put Prof. Moley and Arthur Mullen Jr., Prof. Moley's assistant, aboard the Amberjack.

The two had left Washington in a seaplane at 3:30 this morning, coming down at Nantucket, and were there picked up by the destroyer. For nearly two hours Prof. Moley conferred with the President.

Following his talk with the President, the assistant secretary of state went over to the Ellis for lunch. He stopped for a chat with the newspaper correspondents, but refused to disclose the exact nature of his talk with the President or his purpose in going to London.

Moley Leaves the Yacht.

Shortly after noon the seaplane came up and landed and after lunch took Prof. Moley and Mr. Mullen to New York, from where they sail tomorrow noon on the steamship Manhattan.

At 3 o'clock the Amberjack received a dip of the flag from Ballast on Heights. A smoky fishing schooner which had to be shooed away by the coast guard turned out to be the Old Glory of Gloucester with the photographers aboard. But the President had no desire to be photographed. He put his boat about and headed away, with signal flags whipping a message which brought the coast guard cutter hurrying up to drive the Old Glory away.

BRANDS MOLEY AS POLITICIAN, NOT ECONOMIST

Prof. Raymond Moley, a member of President Roosevelt's so-called "brain trust," was described as a politician and not an economist by Harry D. Gideonse, an associate professor of economics at the University of Chicago, in a talk last night before the Midwest Institute of the International Relations at the First Methodist church, Evanston.

"At Columbia university Mr. Moley was an expert politician, and not an economist," said Prof. Gideonse. "Perhaps this explains some of the very curious things he is reported to have said. There is a contradiction in the purposes of the Roosevelt industrial recovery bill, which interest Mr. Moley, and the purposes of the London economic conference, which interest Secretary of State Hull. The Washington policy is typified by Mr. Moley."

Further on the Midway professor observed that "the brain trust must have brains that you can trust." The subject of his talk was "Why a World Economic Conference?"

INDUSTRY'S CZAR TELLS PLANS TO PUT U. S. TO WORK

us," Mr. Johnson replied. "There are differences in living costs in different communities. There's a difference between Moline, where I used to live, and Chicago. We can't disturb that.

"But there are some regional differences which are caused by exploitation of labor. People in an area are getting less than a living wage. We can't stand for that."

The railroads' plea for a 22½ per cent wage cut was mentioned.

"That doesn't fit in with our scheme at all," Johnson remarked.

"What do you intend to do about it?"

"That isn't my baby."

Finally, however, Mr. Johnson thought he might adopt the baby to the extent that in a general coördination of government efforts something might be worked out.

Armistice on Production.

He said he was asking for a "a general armistice on increasing production at this time, without trying to make hard and fast rules that you can't do this and you can't do that." The administrator would use his influence to try to avoid the installation of labor saving machines.

Asked about the plan of organized labor to "unionize" industry, Mr. Johnson said, as he banged the table violently:

"This administration is not going to be used as a means for unionizing any industry. This law has given men the right to bargain collectively and to choose their own representatives. There it is. I'm going to execute it."

An Associated Press reporter said many inquiries had come in from newspapers as to whether Johnson intended to apply federal control to that industry.

"Don't they want to?" Johnson asked. "There are two phases to this thing and the first, which is aimed to put everybody back to work, is all we're putting in effect now. It's to portect honest people against chiselers. I don't know why the newspapers wouldn't want to do this. They should hasten to do it."

A detailed code of instructions, published by the administration today, is being mailed to industries and industrial associations all over the country.

FINDS $47,000 CHECK PAYABLE TO NEWARK AFTER FIVE YEARS

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—Meyer C. Ellenstein, newly elected mayor of Newark, put $47,000 into the city's treasury today, the result of an examination, begun only out of curiosity into a safe in the city hall. He discovered a check, drawn by the United States government to the order of the city for that amount and never deposited.

Much conjecture was stirred by the find, but not until a veteran employé who had been in the municipal government during the period of the world war was consulted did the mystery approach solution. The story, finally, is that the city allotted a portion of Port Newark to the government and filed a claim for damages when a fire destroyed a large part of it. The city claimed a quarter of a million dollars but the government sent the $47,000 in settlement of the claim.

It is believed that when the check arrived five years ago the late Thomas L. Raymond, then mayor, set it aside as unsatisfactory.

BUDGET BALANCE COMES FIRST, U. S. TREASURY SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Other nations will have to agree to put their financial houses in order, balancing their budgets and setting up adequate metallic reserves for their money, before currency stabilization can be discussed seriously at the London conference, the treasury department declared today.

This approach was declared the proper one instead of the French approach which calls for stabilization first. Stabilization is meaningless without the other steps, according to the treasury.

Chief among the budget-balancing problems in which the treasury is interested is the reduction of armament costs. It is felt that Europe is stalling on this point, which was characterized at the treasury today as "one of the larger problems."

Smaller Armies and Navies.

Lower expenditures for armies and navies are essential to balanced budgets, balanced budgets are essential to sound currencies, and sound currencies are essential to stabilization, according to the treasury.

Stabilization still is regarded as a long time off, but the treasury stated emphatically that America is not waiting for 1926 prices to return before entering a monetary agreement.

The treasury was represented as willing to see the current price increases continue and is being fearful lest stabilization at too early a date check them. No definite level, however, has been set as a prerequisite to stabilization. What level the treasury thinks desirable will depend on further developments.

After stating again that stabilization is not in the near future, the treasury explained that it saw no reason for the conference recessing on that ground. Budgets, tariffs, internal money policies, and other matters must be worked out as well as stabilization, it was said.

Price Level a Theory.

At the same time that it scotched rumors about a definite price level being set as a prerequisite for stabilization, the treasury hinted that stabilization was its own problem, not to be trespassed upon by other divisions of the government.

Asked if Bernard Baruch, who yesterday was made a superadviser of the state department, was to operate in treasury matters, too, one high official stated flatly that the treasury "would run its own department and its own affairs," and that it would have "no brain trust or anything else."

Coming on top of Senator Couzens' criticism of the American delegation's indecision, the treasury's declaration of independence revealed that all is not well between the departments at home as well as not so between the delegates abroad. The treasury pointed out emphatically that it had its own representative at the conference in O. M. W. Sprague, executive assistant to Secretary Woodin and former adviser to the Bank of England.

LONDON PARLEY DODGES PITTMAN SILVER PROPOSAL

Envoys Harp on Return to Gold Standard.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 20.—Senator Key Pittman, American silver advocate, was given pretty much of a "run around" by the European gold standard bloc today. This occurred at a meeting of the monetary committee of the world economic conference. The committee met to consider the draft proposal which he handed in yesterday providing for world monetary reform.

Meanwhile French delegates, alarmed by the further depreciation or the dollar, said tonight that a meeting of the leaders of the conference will be held tomorrow to discuss the future of the parley. It was indicated that a proposal for adjournment of the conference, pending a decision on stabilization of the dollar and pound, would be submitted by the gold standard nations, led by France. The French insist that it is useless for the parley to continue unless currencies are stabilized.

Press for Return to Gold.

Victor Kienbock, Austrian financier, who presided over the monetary committee, opened today's meeting by saying he had no doubt that everybody was in agreement with the first two clauses of the Pittman memorandum. These two clauses urged that stability in the international monetary field be attained "as quickly as practicable" and that gold be reestablished as the international measure of exchange values.

Senator Pittman beamed and everything looked lovely for the first serious American proposal to come before the conference. Disillusionment soon followed, however.

After Mr. Pittman had thanked the committee for its agreement on the first two clauses, Henri Jaspar of Belgium, Eigo Fukai of Japan, Jean V. Parmentier of France, M. Baczynski of Poland, and Sig. Nathan of Italy arose and said that the questions contained in the rest of the memorandum—namely: reduction of currency coverage in gold and remonetization of silver—were so serious and intricate as to demand study. All urged that they be referred to committees and subcommittees for analysis and investigation.

British Back Resolution.

James P. Warburg of the United States and Lord Hailsham of Great Britain supported the Pittman resolution. Lord Hailsham also introduced an amendment to the Pittman resolution providing that each nation should be the judge of the time and the parity at which it will return to the gold standard.

Mr. Warburg also made it quite plain that the United States would return to gold only when and how she wished and would not submit to any international order on this point.

W. W. Yen of China and Señor Suarez of Mexico were also willing to go all the way with the Pittman plan, but their weight did not prevail against the gold bloc and the silver clauses were referred to committees.

Take Up British Plan.

The other section of the monetary committee occupied itself with a discussion of a series of resolutions submitted by Great Britain calling for a rise in wholesale prices and recommending as a means to this end a cessation of deflation. The central banks were appealed to to take the necessary action.

The whole day was occupied in a technical debate, in which Leon Fraser, American president of the Bank of International Settlements, advocated a closer union among the central banks which perhaps one superbank to coördinate their work.

This recommendation was formally submitted together with a series of proposals advocating reëstablishment of the gold standard and also stating that for world recovery it is necessary to complete a solution of the reparations settlement effected at Lausanne by a satisfactory settlement of the war debts.

Australia Gets Balky.

Stanley Bruce of Australia did some plain talking in the economic committee, where a French proposal to reduce the production of primary commodities as a means of raising prices was discussed. Bruce told the delegates bluntly that Australia would do nothing of the kind. It was Australia's duty, he said, to exploit its own resources, as it had to meet financial commitments and wished to improve the standard of living of its own people.

He presented the thesis that it was up to the industrial countries of the world to stop trying to be agriculturally self-contained and buy food from agricultural countries in exchange for manufactured goods. If such a policy were not followed, Bruce declared, Australia would be forced to manufacture for itself.

Report Wheat Pact Near.

Experts attached to the various wheat delegations, however, meeting at an informal session tonight, made what was termed a "substantial advance" toward a general agreement among the United States, Canada, Australia, and Argentina to cut output by 15 per cent. Leading representatives will meet tomorrow, it is reported, to consider and perhaps approve the conclusions reached by the experts.

It is pointed out that the problem of surplus wheat now affects only the United States and Canada, but that curtailed production would benefit both Australia and Argentina through a rise in prices. According to tonight's calculations, a 15 per cent cut in production would result in an absorption of the world's stocks within two years.

It is suggested from Australian sources that perhaps Bruce's statement did not altogether close the door to some sort of Australian participation in a reduced acreage scheme.

Russia Asks Truce.

The Russians, with their usual brutal realism, put up a proposal today somewhat like Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov's revolutionary proposal at the opening of the disarmament conference that the nations should disarm. This time the soviet foreign commissar submitted a draft proposal calling for an economic nonaggression pact by which the nations would bind themselves to refrain from economic attack on each other by means of discriminatory tariffs, special duties or conditions of trade, railway tariffs, charges on shipping, and any kind of boycott by legal or administrative measures.

Advocates of a tariff truce, who have been looking forward to a month or two of good talk on this subject, consider the Russians rude persons who do not understand; or, if they do understand, ignore the etiquette of international conferences.

The Turks scored today by turning in the shortest proposal on record. It contains only 28 words and calls for gradual abolition by bilateral agreements of all quota measures and other abnormal restrictions to trade.

HULL HAS A LONG AND SECRET TALK WITH BRITISH KING

U. S. Envoy Refuses to Tell What Ruler Said.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 20.—Secretary of State Hull, chairman of the American delegation to the world economic conference, refused tonight to affirm or deny a report that he plans to return to Washington soon after the arrival of Prof. Raymond Moley, chief of the Roosevelt brain trust and reputed custodian of the President's pleasure in all matters, domestic and foreign.

Prof. Moley will sail from the United States for England tomorrow. Dispatches from the United States said he was coming to London merely as the President's messenger and will remain here only a week.

"I have decided not to announce any plans at any time," Mr. Hull said.

Hull Calls on King.

Mr. Hull was received in private audience this morning by King George at Buckingham palace and remained for nearly an hour in conversation with his Britannic majesty. The meeting was initiated by the king when he met Mr. Hull for the first time at the royal garden party at Windsor castle last Saturday.

Although the king exercises no actual power in shaping the policies of his government, this is one of the ways in which he is used to promote good will among those whom it is desired to influence. Hull declined to discuss his conference with the king, asserting that custom forbade disclosure of any conversation with his majesty.

The secretary of state also refused to confess any pessimism regarding the London conference. He thought it should be attended by a "fair measure of success." In about 30 or 40 days—not later than the end of July—he thought, the conference woud complete its work.

Denies U. S. Delegation Is Split.

Mr. Hull took the occasion to deny reports that the American delegation is badly split on the course to pursue in the conference. It had been reported that Senator Couzens of Michigan had read the riot act to the delegation this morning, asserting that the Americans must decide whether to stand for a nationalistic program, represented by the powers conferred on President Roosevelt by congress, or by an internationalistic program, represented by the aims of the conference.

Mr. Hull said he could see no inconsistency. The domestic programs of recovery from depression in the United States and other nations, as he viewed it, were to be reinforced by an international program to be adopted at this conference.

Plans Tariff Scheme Later.

The only specific proposals so far made by the American delegation, Mr. Hull said, were in the monetary plan presented by Senator Pittman yesterday. Tariff proposals, he said, would be presented later. In this connection, Mr. Hull said, he had not authorized the submission of the proposal for a 10 per cent horizontal tariff reduction put out Saturday.

As a result of the blaming of American experts for the publication of this proposal Herbert Feis, chief technical adviser of the delegation, offered his resignation, but Mr. Hull refused to accept it.

FRENCH PREMIER MAY MEET DUCE ON THE FRONTIER

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, June 20.—Although no official confirmation has yet been given, it is now generally accepted in Paris that very shortly a meeting will take place, probably at some frontier station, between Premier Daladier of France, and Premier Mussolini of Italy.

The possibility of this event has been welcomed by all parties, for although France has been at times critical of the Fascist régime, there has always been regret at the strained relations which marked the last few years. With the initialing recently of the Mussolini four power consultative pact, it is felt that there has developed a prospect for a much better understanding between the two countries and the next step, it is considered, should be a meeting between the two premiers.

Veteran Objects to Name on List of the Departed

Wheeling, W. Va., June 20.—"Mr. President, I rise to a point of order," declared Harry L. Tennant of Buckhannon as he interrupted a formal ritualistic service of the United States War Veterans in session here. "My name shouldn't be on that list—not yet." He interrupted the reading of a list of deceased comrades. His name was eliminated from it, with profuse apologies, and the ritual resumed, after a fashion.

Spain Seeks $2,800,000 to Take Church Schools

MADRID, June 20.—(AP)—The Spanish government will ask the cortes for a special credit of 28,000,000 pesetas (about $2,800,000), it was announced today, to carry out the transfer of primary and secondary education from the church to the state as provided in a recently enacted religious law.

U.S. Envoys Pull a Faux Pas; Snub Snooty London Dinners

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 20.—The first faux pas of the social season of the world economic conference was chalked up tonight when a bare handful of guests responded to more than 300 invitations sent out by the great livery companies of the city of London—picturesque survivors of the medieval trade guilds.

The eleven premier companies, which constitute the oldest and snootiest commercial aristocracy in the world, gave dinners in their historic halls and each invited a select list of delegates from the different nations. To the general embarrassment of everybody, including the London press, which was more upset than it was over the repudiation by the American delegation of Secretary of State Hull's tariff note and almost as upset as over the recent cricket bodyline scandal, hardly any delegate responded to the invitations. The American delegation was notably remiss.

Banquets Are Legendary.

One of the companies had only four delegates at its board, another had eight and a third ten.

These city banquets are legendary in London and on the rare occasions when they are held the highest names of the British peerage scramble to enjoy the privilege of being guests of the 20th century merchant princes, who are disguised as guilds of medieval grocers, vintners, tailors, etc.

The delegates were unfamiliar with this age old tradition, which modern business life has never succeeded in eradicating from British hearts, and the glamorous pageantry and feasts meant nothing to them. They have gotten to blasé from hobnobbing with kings, dukes, and other nobility that when they received invitations sent out by corporations, mercers, grocers, drapers, fishmongers, goldsmiths, tailors, skinners, haberdashers, salters, ironmongers, and cloth workers they disdainfully tossed them into the waste basket.

Thinks It's a Racket.

"What kind of a racket is this?" one American delegate who had received an invitation demanded. "What are they trying to sell us?"

The situation was considered so serious that authorities of the league of nations, at the suggestion of the British government, got Hendryk Colijn, chairman of the economic commission, to explain to the members of the commission the importance of London's historic trade guilds and the rare honor bestowed on the delegates by the merchants of the city in sending them invitations. The delegates almost tearfully were asked to respond to the invitations, but the pleas were largely unavailing.

When they read the papers tomorrow morning the delegates will learn what they missed, for the companies produced the rarest vintages from their private cellars to do honor to their guests and the menus offered surpassed in gustatory brilliance the viands that have been laid out at official banquets.

The general feeling in British circles is that with a gang of savages like that in town it is useless to expect anything constructive.

JAPS SET THREE RESERVATIONS TO ECONOMIC TRUCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, June 21 [Wednesday].—The Japanese cabinet submitted the American tariff truce proposal to the privy council this morning. The cabinet recommended participation in the truce with these three reservations:

1. Japan, because of the attitude of other nations who have already submitted reservations, is obliged to reserve the right to adopt protective measures.

2. Japan reserves the right to withdraw from the agreement immediately in case the participating nations adopt measures which violate the fundamental spirit of the truce.

3. Japan reserves the right to adopt an autonomous tariff policy in event the participating or nonparticipating nations obstruct international trade.

British Again Strike at Japan.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, June 20.—Fresh obstacles to the entry of Japanese goods are reported from the British federated Malay states, which have raised duties from 30 to 80 per cent. The new tariffs affect the bulk of Japan's trade with Malaya. Consul General Tamura at Singapore has been instructed to call the attention of the Malay government to the effects of the new duties on Japan's business.

Britain to Send Debt Envoys to U. S. after Parley

LONDON, June 20.—(AP)—The present plan of the British cabinet, it was understood tonight, is that if the world economic conference has concluded by the end of July Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir John Simon, foreign minister, will go to Washington to discuss a debt settlement.

NIP PLOT TO KILL TWO CHIEFS OF TINIEST REPUBLIC

SAN MARINO, Republic of San Marino, June 20.—(AP)—A plot to assassinate the two captains regent, presiding government officials of San Marino, the smallest republic in the world, seize the government and burn the city of San Marino has been uncovered by police. Many arrests have been made here and in Italy.

The plot was disclosed in documents found on two young Sicilians who were arrested in San Marino while photographing public buildings. The documents revealed, police said, that the two were agents of a band which planned to invade the smallest and oldest state in Europe from Italy and start a reign of terror.

Besides the captains regent, several other government officials were slated for death. Thereafter a person, not named by the police, was to come to the republic to take charge. San Marino authorities issued a manifesto assuring the populace that they have the situation in control.

The city of Marino has a population of 3,500. The republic, with a population of 13,000, has an area of 38 square miles. It is situated high in the mountains 15 miles from the Adriatic sea.

RUSSIA EYES U. S. IN ITS HUNT FOR CREDIT FOR FOOD

Brookhart's Cotton 'Deal' Amuses Baltic Nations.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, June 20.—The speech delivered by Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov at the London economic conference has provoked bitter comments in the Baltic press. In his address Litvinov attempted to depict Russia's population as being well fed and happy under bolshevism. He called the world's attention to Moscow as a source of help in alleviating the depression by becoming a buyer, providing it was granted sufficient credits.

Baltic newspapers report that after weeks of bickering with Riga the soviet trade delegation has obtained a year's credit for an order of 300 tons of pork for the Moscow garrison of the Red army.

Seeks Credit for Grain.

The Riga Sevoydnja wonders to what extent Litvinov has succeeded in hoodwinking the world. It says the communists have succeeded in postponing their inevitable collapse by playing off nations against each other. While the Germans provided the millions of dollars of credits necessary for the Russians to buy machinery for the five year plan, today Moscow's trade monopoly is eagerly searching for a nation which will grant additional millions of dollars of credits necessary to buy grain with which to feed the population, the paper continues.

Other Latvian papers remark upon the soviet purchase of Lettish pigs as soon as the Latvian government granted a year's credit. Moscow's attempts, however, to persuade other Baltic countries to increase their credits were unsuccessful.

With reports of thousands dying of famine and typhus arriving in the Baltic from all provinces in Russia, the local press is closely watching negotiations opened by Smith Wildman Brookhart, former Iowa radical senator. Brookhart, as an agent of the American department of agriculture, is attempting to sell the Russians American cotton. According to information from Moscow, the cotton selling scheme is a camouflage which is hiding secret negotiations between Brookhart and Boris Svirski, Amtorg chief in New York, concerning large credits for purchases of American grain.

Tries to Hide Famine.

Svirski has received instructions to do everything possible to purchase grain with a minimum of publicity since Russia has decided to keep the tragic news of the present famine hidden from the world.

The Letts and Estonians are amused about the alleged cotton deal. They say that Russia was selling Turkestan cotton to local mills only a month ago. The Latvian State bank sent a confidential circular to all mill owners to purchase cotton hereafter from England, while Estonia also intends to halt importations of cotton from Russia.

According to Latvian and Estonian diplomats stationed at Moscow, Russia has cotton enough to export but not enough to operate her own mills and that while Moscow is willing to take anything the United States will sell her on credit, the nation's chief need is grain.

Man Hunted as Slayer of Seamstress Ends Life

Los Angeles, Cal., June 20.—(AP)—Clifford Sherwood, 40, found shot in the head early today while police hunted for him as the slayer of Gabrielle Andrieux, French seamstress, died this afternoon at the county hospital. Officers said Sherwood apparently had committed suicide.

American Heiress Weds Prince

'5 & 10' HEIRESS WEDS A PRINCE; RETAINS FORTUNE

Barbara Hutton Bride of Alexis M'Divani.

PARIS, June 20.—(AP)—Barbara Woolworth Hutton, her 5 and 10 cent store millions kept her own by the wedding contract, was married today to Prince Alexis M'Divani of Georgian nobility.

About fifty relatives and intimate friends filled the little salon in the 16th arrondissement city hall where the perfunctory civil ceremony, lasting only two minutes, was performed. A religious wedding will be held Thursday in the Russian Orthodox church.

Miss Hutton and her prince said "yes" in French to the accompaniment of a camera barrage which caused Barbara's aunt, Mrs. James P. Donahue, the former Jessie Woolworth, to exclaim:

"Hollywood at its best!"

Most Photographed Wedding.

It was the most photographed wedding in the memory of French officials. Eighteen cameras recorded every movement of the couple from the signing of the various documents upon their entrance in the city hall to the final speech by Assistant Mayor Daniel Marin, who married them.

Marin talked briefly of the history of the Georgian princes—the athletic 29 year old Alexis; his brothers Serge, former husband of Pola Negri and now of the opera singer, Mary McCormic, and David, the husband of Mae Murray, and their father, the late Prince Zachary M'Divani, one time aide de camp to the czar of Russia.

Brothers Attend Wedding.

The Princes Serge and David attended the wedding. Their wives only recently entered suits against them in the United States, Miss McCormic seeking a separation and Miss Murray a divorce.

The bride brought a large dowry to her husband. But by a marriage contract signed before the ceremony, she retains sole control over the property she inherited from her grandfather, the late Frank W. Woolworth, chain store founder. This has been estimated at $20,000,000.

Witnesses for the bride today were her father, Franklyn L. Hutton of New York and her aunt, Mrs. Donahue. Those for the prince were his brother-in-law, the Spanish mural painter, José Maria Sert, and the Georgian minister in Paris, Akaki Tchenkeli.

The bride wore a pearl gray crêpe dress, with a waist length cape of the same material, a mushroom shaped gray organdie hat and a sable scarf. She had no flowers. The prince wore a cutaway with striped trousers and a silk hat.

The bride's wedding gift to her prince was a string of polo ponies and a set of pearl shirt studs. The bridegroom presented her with a rope of pearls.

The gifts to the couple, representing a fortune, included a motor boat and a jade necklace from Mr. Hutton.

U. S. MEDIATION PLAN PUT UP TO CUBAN EXILES

Line Up or Get Out; Professors Told.

HAVANA, June 20.—(AP)—Professors of Havana university, favorable to accepting mediation in Cuban political affairs by American Ambassador Sumner Welles, today invited their thus far recalcitrant delegates in the United States to either line up with them or get out.

Dr. Carlos de la Torre, the professors' representative in the New York revolutionary junta, Dr. Ricardo Dolz, former dean of the university, and Dr. Grau San Martin, delegate in Miami, were given until 8 o'clock tomorrow morning to answer, it was learned.

If by that hour they have not indicated their willingness to abide by the action of the professors in Cuba, they will be notified that henceforth they will be considered as "revolutionists" and not professors.

Report Exiles Accepted Action.

De la Torre was reported to have said by telephone that all the university professors exiled in the United States, numbering about 30, would abide by the action of the 122 here. The latter are represented by the "commission of nine" appointed last week by delegates from each of the eleven schools to treat with Mr. Welles.

With the assured support of the A. B. C. Secret society, the professors, the Nationalist union, the faction headed by Miguel Mariano Gomez and, probably, the partisans of former President Mario G. Menocal, observers here believed the ambassador had behind him sufficient opposition strength to justify the early opening of deliberations.

Dissension in the ranks of the O. C. R. R. secret opposition group, which Saturday pledged Mr. Welles its support, came to light today with an announcement by that body's Miami representatives that it "has not and will not accept the mediation." It was pointed out, however, that Welles has in his possession a written promise of O. C. R. R. support.

Program of Conciliation.

Out of the deliberations observers predicted some program of conciliation would come embodying, in general, these main points:

1. Immediate restoration of political normalcy throughout the island, liberation of political prisoners, restoration of the suspended guarantees, press freedom and recall of military supervisors.

2. Constitutional reforms restoring the office of vice president, eliminated in 1928, providing for his selection immediately after the reforms go into effect; curtailment of the terms of public officials prorogued in 1928 and forbidding any president to succeed himself.

3. Reform of the electoral code. In this Dr. Howard Lee McBain of Columbia university has been invited to aid. He will arrive in Cuba late this month.

COOLING SYSTEM AT WHITE HOUSE TO BE IN OPERATION SOON

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—When President Roosevelt returns from his vacation he will find a cooling system installed and in operation in the principal rooms on the second floor of the White House where are located the living quarters of the executive mansion.

The equipment, with the recently constructed swimming pool in the west wing and the cooling system that has been in the executive office for several years, will make easier the President's residence here this summer, except for ten days or two weeks in August when he will go to his Hyde Park home on the Hudson.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

About 900 unclaimed articles are in the lost and found bureau at the Fair. More than 400 have been returned to their owners.

A party of 300 urological specialists, attending the annual convention of the American Urological association at the Palmer house, visited the Hall of Science yesterday.

Texas day at the Fair, Aug. 23, will be featured by a benefit performance of the opera Aïda, to be given in Soldiers' field by the Houston Civic Opera company. Vice President Garner and Gov. Miriam Ferguson of Texas are expected to attend.

A ticket issued by the World's Fair Steamship company during the Columbian exposition in 1893 was used Monday night by a passenger on the S. S. Florida. D. K. Cochrane Jr., assistant to the president of the Columbian Transportation company, recognized the ticket as one issued by the boat line of which his grandfather, Capt. David Cochrane, had been vice president. The ticket was presented by Duncan McDougall of Guelph, Ontario, who said his father bought it in 1893 and failed to use it.

The hours and days of greatest attendance at the Fair were announced yesterday by Maj. E. S. J. Irvine, in charge of transportation, to help visitors choose a time when it will not be necessary to wait at the gates. On week days the greatest rush is at 11:30 a. m. with a smaller rush at 7 p. m. Saturday crowds are greatest at 8:30 p. m., while Sunday's greatest influx is between 3:30 p. m. and 4:30 p. m. The days of the week in order of attendance are Sunday, Saturday, Friday, Wednesday, Tuesday, Thursday and Monday.

The new approach to the Adler planetarium, built and contributed to the Fair by the National Terrazzo and Mosaic association, was dedicated yesterday by members of the association attending the annual convention. The esplanade is made of 75 tons of marble chips, 25,000 lineal feet of brass strips, a ton of paint pigment, 700 cubic yards of sand, 3,000 bags of cement and 36,000 square feet of reinforcing fabric.

Joe N. Weber, national president of the American Federation of Musicians, was the chief guest yesterday at a luncheon given by delegates to the convention of musicians being held this week in Chicago. The luncheon was in the Pabst Blue Ribbon casino. James C. Petrillo, head of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, and William C. Kowalski, general chairman of the entertainment committee, were other guests.

The Minnesota state exhibit in the Hall of States will be dedicated at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The dedicatory address will be made by either John R. Foley, chairman of the Minnesota conservation commission, or Gov. Floyd B. Olson.

Admiral W. H. Standley, en route to Washington, where he will relieve Admiral W. V. Pratt as chief of naval operations, was a Fair visitor yesterday.

SQUARE RIGGER FROM NORWAY SAILS INTO FAIR

Ship Becomes Country's Official Exhibit.

BY EARL MULLIN.

The Norwegians made a peaceful invasion of A Century of Progress Exposition yesterday, descending on the Fair grounds by land and water to form an army of occupation many thousands strong. Drills, songs, banquets, and speeches were on the Norwegian day program, the second in a series of four special Scandinavian days.

The attendance yesterday failed to keep pace with the records set for the three previous days, when throngs of more than 100,000 were recorded each day. At 11:30 o'clock last night 91,610 persons had passed through the gates. Fair officials said this figure was encouraging in view of the heat.

Wisconsin Day Tomorrow.

Today the Danes will hold the spotlight, and tomorrow the Swedish, Danish, Norwegian, and Finnish groups will join to present a gala program in Soldiers' field, marking the colorful conclusion of the Scandinavian series. Sharing honors with the Scandinavians will be hundreds of Wisconsin residents, many of Scandinavian descent themselves, who will observe Wisconsin day tomorrow.

One of the high lights of yesterday's program was the arrival of the Sorlandet, square rigged training ship from Norway, which will be the official exhibit of that country at the Fair. Ninety cadets, boys ranging from 15 to 19 years of age, who are training for commissions in the Norwegian navy and licenses in the merchant marine, manned the vessel on its trip.

Sails to Chicago.

The Sorlandet left Milwaukee early yesterday under full sail and arrived off Navy pier shortly after noon. Crowds along the lake front paused in wonder as the first full rigged sailing vessel on the great lakes in years appeared on the horizon.

Off Navy pier Capt. Helgar Brunsvik backed his main yard and waited for the official reception party, including Mayor Kelly, aboard the U. S. S. Wilmette, and the accompanying flotilla. The coast guard cutter, Escanaba, and the yachts Mizpah, Kenkora, and scores of small craft formed an armada for the trip to the 23d street dock.

When the flotilla arrived off the 23d street dock Capt. Brunsvik tried to beat in under sail, but was prevented by cross winds. Pulling out into the lake, the sails were furled by the 90 cadets, who swarmed through the rigging like so many monkeys. In 20 minutes all sails were fast and the Sorlandet was towed in by the Escanaba.

Wilmette Fires Salute.

Ten thousand persons crowded the docks as the ship was made fast. The Wilmette, drawing too much water to dock, pulled out into the lake and fired a salute of 13 guns for Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, commandant at Great Lake naval station, and a salute of 21 guns for H. H. Bachke, minister to the United States from Norway. An official reception was held on the Sorlandet for the army, navy, city, and Fair dignitaries.

Broadcasting over a national radio hookup speeches were made by Rear Admiral Cluverius, Minister Bachke, President Rufus C. Dawes of the Fair, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commandant of the sixth corps area, United States Commissioner New, and officers of the training ship. Other persons in the official party included Olaf Bernts, Norwegian consul.

Music was furnished by the United States army band and bands from Concordia college, Moorhead, Minn., and the Sea Scout band from Grand Rapids. The training ship will be opened to the general public beginning today.

Picture in White and Gold.

The Sorlandet is constructed of steel and was built in Norway in 1927. She is over 300 feet in length, but with narrow beam which gives her a trim appearance. Her main mast towers 195 feet above the main deck, surmounting a veritable wilderness of lines and rigging.

The ship, with sails set, presents a picture in white and gold, with a gold decorated bowsprit. She came from Norway under her own sail, with the exception of the trip through St. Lawrence river and canals and the journey into the Chicago harbor.

In addition to the cadets, who serve as ordinary seamen, the ship carries a complement of three licensed mates and four able bodied seamen. She is under the command of Capt. Brunsvik, but carries as honorary captain and commissioner to the Fair, Capt. Magnus Anderson, who sailed the old Viking ship to the Columbian exposition.

ASK TRANSFERS BETWEEN 2 BUS ROUTES AT FAIR

Cite Extra Cost to Those Entering at South.

The unexpected size of the crowds pouring into A Century of Progress grounds has disarranged the original traffic and transportation schedules set up on the estimate of officials. Complaints as to transportation facilities are being received daily and, as far as possible, are being met. One of the complaints, made by Chicagoans more than by out of town visitors, is the absence of transfer facilities on the buses within the Fair grounds.

When the bus routes were laid out officials of the buses and of the Fair estimated that only about 25 per cent of the crowds would ride the buses. Records show that nearly 95 per cent are doing so. To handle the additional crowds it has been necessary to order twenty additional buses, making a total of sixty vehicles to operate within the Fair grounds.

Two Fares if Starting at South.

Visitors entering the grounds at the south entrances, as urged by Fair officials, to avoid the congestion at the Roosevelt road gate, find that two fares must be paid on the bus to get to certain destinations. Officials are working on a solution of this trouble.

At the Roosevelt road entrance buses on one of two routes may be selected. South bound buses on the mainland travel on a high speed highway and provide rapid transportation to any exhibit or location on the mainland. At the end of the run they reverse in the same route. The alternative route is a bus crossing the Roosevelt road bridge and running south along the island. No transfers are issued between these two lines.

Originally it was intended to allow buses to cross the lagoon bridge at 23d street, making a loop through Northerly island and ending at the bus terminal at Roosevelt road. Under that program one entire tour of the Fair could be made for one fare. Pedestrian congestion on the bridge and crowds in the Midway prevented the following of this program.

Discrimination Is Charged.

Complaints have been made that visitors from the south side and the west side who do not drive north to the Roosevelt road gate are discriminated against. A man and wife bringing four children to the Fair under the present system will save money by going to the Roosevelt road gate. From that entrance they take the children directly to Enchanted Island. If they enter the grounds at the south gates they may follow two courses. They may take the bus to Roosevelt road, paying another fare to get to the island, or they can get off the bus at 23d or 18th street and walk about eight blocks to the island.

"If the general public would learn to use the buses in the proper manner," said Maj. L. R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair, "much of the difficulty would be eliminated. The buses are not intended as sightseeing trips, but purely as mass transportation. At present many visitors ride to and end of the line, pay another fare, and ride back to their destination. If they would get off at the destination as they passed it much of the congestion would be relieved. By the use of bridges over the lagoon visitors on the mainland may come within walking distance of any point desired on the island."

LAYS STUTTERING TO PAMPERING.

Dr. Frank Pearson, widely known psychologist, says stuttering is a personality defect rather than a speech defect, and that it is caused by pamperig in early childhood.

MISS BOOTH HERE TODAY TO GET MEDAL FROM KING

Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army is scheduled to arrive in Chicago this afternoon to attend the Scandinavian congress of the army, which begins tonight and continues until next Monday. Tonight's session of the congress will be held in the parish house of Trinity Lutheran church, Osgood street and Barry avenue. The morning sessions will be held in the Oriental consistory. Tomorrow evening in the Swedish mission tabernacle at 59th and Carpenter streets Commander Booth will be presented with a medal from the king of Sweden. The presentation is to be made by Count Folke Bernadotte.

SCIENCE LOOKS BACK ON 1,200 MILLION YEARS

Expanding Perspective of Man Described.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Glimpses from vanished worlds have been found by geologists during this century of scientific progress, J. J. Sederholm of Helsingfors, Finland, told his fellow scientists at a sectional meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Rosenwald hall at the University of Chicago yesterday afternoon.

Physicists, mathematicians, meteorologists, psychologists, agronomists, and other sections dealt with many problems from the measurement of nerve heat to polar fronts of the stratosphere, but it was only occasionally that the laymen delving into these depths could discover an assimilable idea. The lecture of the Finnish geologist was in this category.

Man's Perspective Enlarged.

"In the century of scientific progress, the perspective of time looking backwards, has been enlarged many hundreds of thousands of times," said Mr. Sederholm. "Most of this lapse of time is usually allotted to the pre-Cambrian geology, the archeology of the earth. Already there is sufficient evidence for the conclusion that the pre-Cambrian series really form the main part of the geologic record.

"Even in the oldest rocks there is no vestige of a beginning.' On the contrary, evidence exists that the paleogeographical conditions were in most ways similar to those of the present day except that life was more restricted.

"The belief is common that mountain building has been universal during the oldest times, but a detailed study of the structure of the oldest formations makes it probable that mountain building has always taken place within belts of restricted breadth.

"A century is a very short epoch compared with the aeons with which geologists reckon in their chronology. Concerning our notions of the length of time, the general belief of a hundred years ago was that the history of the earth comprised less than 6,000 years or 60 centuries [Bishop Usher's Bible]. Now the lowest estimates of geologists for the time since the beginning of the Cambrian period is 60 million years, or 600,000 centuries, while most geologists reckon with several hundred million years for these eras.

1,200 Million Years or More.

"Geophysical research has, by determination of the changes which radioactive minerals have undergone, arrived at the result that 1,200 to 2,000 million years have elapsed since the beginning of pre-Cambrian time. These figures refer only to our own small planet, whose life is a second in eternity, and to periods of which a record has been left, not to the astral phases of the evolution of the earth.

"Of all the aeons of time probably less than a third comprise the time which is recorded by the fossiliferous systems, from the Cambrian upwards. This is the realm of historical geology in a narrower sense, while the remaining two-thirds of geological time comprise what may properly be called the archeology of the earth. It is, in other words, the pre-Cambrian geology. By the process downwards of geology the pre-Cambrian geologists act as pioneers who strive to enlarge its domain by adding older and older series to those already known, and thus to fill the empty spaces of time, as determined by physical method with paleographical facts.

"The pre-Cambrian complex contains those rocks which have once been most deeply buried and we may therefore, by studying them, contribute to the solution of some of the most difficult tectonic and geographic problems. Geophysics and especially radium research may be of value in explanation of the pre-Cambrian. This complex contains a great part of the most valuable ores [50 per cent of the iron, 70 per cent of the gold, all of the nickel, and a considerable part of the copper] and its study is important, therefore, both from a practical and theoretical point of view.

"The first part of a new century of scientific progress has already provided many of the geologic enigmas of the pre-Cambrian with more satisfactory solutions. Much of this will have to be rewritten."

On Weather Forecasting.

Prof. J. Bjerknes of the Geophysical Institute, Bergen, Norway, told of experiments in atmospheric soundings in relation to the science of weather forecasting. The quantum theory, he said, would probably lead to the final explanation of the average distribution of temperature and also the wind in the whole atmosphere. The theoretical side leads to a mathematical study of long waves, about 500 miles, in the so-called polar front surface between the polar and tropical air.

The polar front surface or the troposphere or lower atmosphere separates air of polar origin from the so-called tropical air masses. The polar front surface ascends polewards, so that unstable waves constantly form on it. The evolution to cyclonic vortices offers the next wide field of research. Soundings must be coördinated, Prof. Bjerknes said, for analyzing the structure of cyclones and as the only way toward complete understanding of weather forecasting.

Measurement of Temperature.

Explorations of the upper air by unmanned balloons is now fairly simple, Dr. Bjerknes said. They may go up 20 kilometers before expansion bursts the balloon and brings down the meteoragraph, to which has been attached a wireless transmitter which telegraphs automatically the pressure, temperature, and humidity.

"There is everywhere," he said, "a systematic decrease of temperature with increasing height, which ceases suddenly at a certain height, 9 kilometers above sea level in Europe. The lowest temperature ever measured in the atmosphere, about —90 degrees centigrade, occurs over the equatorial belt.

"The atmosphere lets the sun's rays penetrate to the ground without much absorption, but at the same time is almost impervious to outgoing terrestrial radiation. The atmosphere thus plays the part of the glass cover of a greenhouse."

Heat Produced in Nerves.

Prof. A. V. Hill of the University of London lectured on heat production in nerves at a sectional meeting in Thorne hall on McKinlock campus of Northwestern university.

Along the nerves, he explained, are weak points where the ability to transmit impulses to the brain fails or is delayed. The nerves can accommodate only a limited amount of impulses, then the trouble begins. Prof. Hill suggested that persons are slower in their reactions after steady activity; quicker when fresh, and that response to stimuli is subject to the law of diminishing returns.

In order to study the nerve response Dr. Hill used a thermometer that registered a temperature change as small as two-millionths of a degree. He found that nerves, like muscles, produce heat when stimulated. He applied electrical stimuli to living nerves. If a strong stimulus was given and at frequent intervals, the nerve continued to produce heat, but only up to a certain point. Too much stimulus resulted in a shutdown of the nerve's activity. The nerve became inhibited and inoperative when given too much to do.

FINDS TENDENCY IN MAN TO REVERT TO SAVAGE STATE

Cause of Most of Insanity, Says Doctor.

Dr. F. W. Seward Jr. of Goshen, N. Y., in an address before the American Institute of Homeopathy at the Morrison hotel yesterday, advanced the theory that the tendency of man to revert to ancient savagery is the cause of most of the insanity and criminality. Dr. Seward is the grandson of William H. Seward, Abraham Lincoln's secretary of state.

Sketching man's physical evolution from life in the sea, he declared that the mental processes had undergone a similar change. Primitive man reacted to emotions rather than mentality which, he said, has become the basis of civilization.

"When we find members of society who react to their emotions without using reason we may consider them throwbacks to the savage state," Dr. Seward said. "Having reasoned thus, we are brought face to face with the fact that there is a relation between the insane and criminals."

Dr. Seward warned that no family tree is immune from insanity, criminality, or feeblemindedness. He declared that the same tendency to revert to savagery is potentially present in every individual."

In the National Society of Physical Therapeutics meeting, a sectional session of the institute, Dr. Charles W. Perkins of Norwalk, Conn., called the development of the electric knife one of the most important advancements in physical therapeutics.

"The advantage of an electric knife over the scalpel is that it sterilizes the wound, sealing tissues and preventing malignant cells from being spilled into the blood stream and causing infection. This method has passed from the pioneer state to the practical era in electro-surgery."

DAIRY INDUSTRY TO DEDICATE FAIR BUILDING FRIDAY

The Dairy Industries building at A Century of Progress Exposition will be formally dedicated Friday, which has been officially designated Dairy day.

Several thousand Chicago children will march in a parade through the grounds to the building, which is located near the Enchanted island. In the parade also will be several prize cows.

The building was erected coöperatively by all groups within the dairy industry. It will be presented to the Fair officials by Dr. H. E. Van Norman, president of the sponsoring group. The exhibits within illustrate a century of progress in dairying.

For greatest safety, greatest savings

—only these purest of soap flakes!

HERE in the Middle West, Kirk's American Family Flakes is the outstanding choice of thousands of women who have lovely things to care for. Not just for safety's sake, but because it saves time and clothes and precious dollars . . .

"If it were not for American Family Flakes I am sure housekeeping would be a greater and more complex task," says Mrs. Chalmers. "—Because it is the one soap flakes we can always depend on for its absolute safety. My lingerie, my precious laces and colored silk sheets come out each time as fresh and dainty as flowers—and they wear, oh, ever so long, no matter how frequently they are laundered."

"Perhaps I inherit the trait from some thrifty ancestor," says Mrs. Frank Hibbard, "but I'd rather have fewer things and have every one of them spotlessly fresh than to have no end of things that are ever so slightly faded and shabby. That's why I have always insisted on the purest soap I know—American Family Flakes."

• • •

Because American Family is used in the finest homes, you may have thought that it's more expensive than other flakes. On the contrary, it's by far the most economical flakes you can buy. Use it freely—for laundering, dishwashing, household cleaning. It's the double-suds that makes the difference!

TELLS CENTURY'S BATTLE AGAINST HEART DISEASE

A Challenge to Medicine, Doctor Says.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Heart disease, which ranks first as the cause of death, presents now, as it did one hundred years ago, an increasing challenge to medical science, Dr. Paul Dudley White of Harvard medical school said last night. He spoke in a symposium on a century of progress in medicine before members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Thorne hall on McKinlock campus of Northwestern university.

Cancer, second to heart disease as "captain of the men of death," is curable if recognized and treated in its early stages, according to Dr. Max Cutler of Michael Reese hospital, who told of an increasingly high percentage of cures, particularly in external cancer. Internal cancer presents just as dark a problem as some forms of heart disease.

Cites Century Old Report.

Dr. White read from a medical report of 100 years ago, in which a physician of that time looked with alarm upon the increase in heart disease and called attention to the powerful results of emotions upon the human system, and wondered whether the French revolution and the Italian civil wars had brought on this scourge.

"The argument is just as pointed today," Dr. White said. "We have more troublesome times and crime and recklessness. Progress, indeed, but whither? Heart disease is all about us. How far are our bad habits responsible? In 30 years we have made rapid progress and the treatment is less guesswork. Americans have led in this. I would mention your own Dr. Herrick and Dr. Richard Cabot of Boston. Modern treatement is rational. The old fatal view of heart disease is wrong. Proper treatment will prolong life for years. It is possible to prevent heart failure with a carefully outlined plan of life.

Importance of Prevention.

"Prevention is most important. A dozen causes are recognized, but we are still ignorant of its fundamental nature. The next great step is to cut down presenile morbidity from heart disease. The speed of life, hard work, high nervous tension, are mentioned as causes. It seems likely, but there is no proof. We must keep open minds. We must preach better habits, food and exercise in moderation, so that men will not be removed in their prime. It is a potent force in retarding civilization.

"It is all very well to boast of the fact that the duration of life has been doubled, but this is due to the great conservation of youth. When a man reaches 60 he has less chance of reaching 70 than he had years ago."

Dr. White mentioned results of nervous prostration, which are often mistaken for heart disease, and said it was better to miss some cases than to emphasize slight defects.

Tells Toll of Cancer.

Dr. Cutler said that 120,000 lives are taken annually in the United States by cancer, and the rate has gone up steadily in recent years. The tumor stage is the keystone of control and here there is a high percentage of cures, he said. Laymen are impressed by the idea that cancer is a hopeless disease. The answer to this is the last meeting of the American College of Surgeons, which discussed the subject, "Cancer Is Curable." Cases were presented as cured with the cures lasting 15 and 20 years.

"The answer to this question is in the affirmative," Dr. Cutler said. "Many cases can now be prevented. There is a definite increase in the percentage of cures. Diagnosing internal cancer in early stages presents a challenge to the medical profession. Abnormal symptoms are too often neglected. The treatment is by surgery, radium, and X-Rays. All fail if the treatment is begun after the disease is too far advanced."

Moroccan Pavilion at World Fair Is Dedicated

Hold Reception

The Moroccan pavilion at the Fair was dedicated yesterday with scores of Chicago society people taking part in the ceremonies. The dedication speech was made by Rene Grimm, province commissioner from Morocco to the Fair. President Rufus C. Dawes responded for the Fair.

Following a reception tea was served by Mrs. Dawes and Mrs. Potter Palmer. The pavilion was closed to the public. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, George W. Dixon, and Prof. and Mrs. George Dejardin of the University of Lyons, France.

BIG STORES ADD INTERPRETERS FOR FAIR GUESTS

Interpreters have become a regular part of the staffs of State street stores to accommodate foreign visitors to A Century of Progress. A survey yesterday showed that some of the stores have hired interpreters, while other merchants have pressed into service members of their regular force who are able to speak foreign languages.

One store reported visitors from Russia, Iraq, Canada, England, France, Spain, South America, Austria, Holland, Denmark, Syria, South Africa, Japan, India, Poland, Norway, and the Philippines. Four skilled interpreters and 150 employes speaking 21 different languages make up the foreign bureau of one of the large loop department stores.

Another merchant reported that he had established a bureau in which 210 employes able to speak 27 languages, ranging from the Zulu tongue to the sign language used by the deaf, are employed.

AVOID IRRITATION OF SKIN, WARNS CANCER EXPERT

Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, chairman of the Illinois committee of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, yesterday warned a group of surgeons for the New York Central lines that skin irritations are likely to develop a cancerous condition. Dr. Fitzpatrick, speaking at the convention of the railroad surgeons in the Hotel Sherman, said that cancer is never a primary disease and always results from a precancerous condition in the body. As an illustration he told of a young woman patient, who had neglected a small irritated spot on her heel which had been rubbed sore by an ill-fitting pair of shoes. After six months a cancerous condition appeared.

DR. C. H. PHIFER ELECTED TO LEAD MEDICAL SOCIETY

Dr. Charles H. Phifer, professor of surgery at the University of Illinois College of Medicine, was elected president-elect of the Chicago Medical society last night. His home is at 690 Oglesby avenue.

He defeated Dr. Pliny R. Blodgett of Chicago Heights, an independent candidate, by a vote of 841 to 394. Dr. Phifer was the regular candidate of the society. Dr. Blodgett, supported by a so-called rebel group, entered the race two weeks ago in the hopes of overthrowing what he described as a small clique which controls the society.

Other officers elected were Dr. Thomas P. Foley, secretary, and Drs. Oscar Hawkinson, Charles B. Reed, E. W. Mueller, H. J. Way, and E. H. Ochsner, counselors at large. Drs. Phifer and Foley will take office in 1934. At the annual dinner this evening at the Medical and Dental Arts building, 185 North Wabash avenue, Dr. Austin A. Hayden, chosen as president elect last year, will take office as president for 1933-'34. Prof. Gordon J. Laing, University of Chicago, will be speaker.

PREDICTS GAINS IN PREVENTING LOSS OF HEARING

The future holds great hopes for the prevention of the loss of hearing, Dr. Austin A. Hayden, president of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing, declared yesterday in speaking before more than 500 experts on the subject at a conference at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

"Despite the depression the federation has gone ahead with its aims," asserted Dr. Hayden. "We have been concentrating on examinations of school children and industrial employes, seeking to correct hearing defects or to aid them in other ways should a complete cure be impossible."

Dr. Hayden called attention to extensive research work being carried on into otosclerosis [the growth of a soft bony substance in the inner ear] as an indication that within the next few years many problems in connection with hearing will be solved.

STRUCK BY TRAIN, DIES.

Joseph Parchan, 79 years old, 1422 Noble street, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries last Wednesday when he was struck by a Chicago and North Western passenger train at North avenue and Holt street.

SYMPOSIUM WILL BE HELD THIS MORNING BY SCIENCE GROUPS

A symposium on isotopes will be given at joint sessions of the American Mathematical society and two sections of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at International house at 9:30 o'clock this morning. Dr. F. W. Aston of University of Cambridge, England, will be one of the speakers.

Six organizations interested in plant pathology will meet in Kent theater, University of Chicago, at 10 o'clock this morning. Jean Dufrenoy, Pont-de-la-Maye, Gironde, France, will speak.

The measurement of geologic time will be the symposium subject at a joint session of four technical societies at south hall of the Hall of Science, on A Century of Progress grounds, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Alfred C. Lane of Tufts college, Medford, Mass., will give a general survey of the problem.

The American Society of Naturalists and the Genetic Society of America will meet at the James Simpson theater in the Field museum at 2 o'clock this afternoon to hear Richard Goldschmidt of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute of Biology, Berlin.

The American Society of Plant Physiologists and the American Society of Agronomy will meet at the Chicago Woman's club at 8 o'clock this evening to hear Sir Daniel Hall of London and Jean Dufrenoy of France.

200 SEE WOMAN AND MOTORCYCLE PLUNGE AT FAIR

Two hundred spectators saw Miss Virginia Dawn, 26 years old, a stunt rider at the Motordrome at the World's Fair, plunge to the bottom of the bowl last night when she lost control of her motorcycle while traveling fifty miles an hour.

The motorcycle fell upon her. Attendants carried her away. Other riders continued the show. Miss Dawn was taken to the Exposition emergency hospital by Dr. Paul Johnson and then removed to the Chicago Memorial hospital, where it was found she was suffering from a hip fracture and a possible skull fracture.

W. H. Kent, manager of the Motordrome, said that Miss Dawn was taking a few spins around the bowl preparatory to performing her act with lions. Her real name is Mrs. Virginia Shumway.

MATHEMATICS IS SUCH JOLLY FUN FOR SCIENTISTS

Also It's Poetry and Art, Says Prof. Birkhoff.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Prof. G. D. Birkhoff of Havard university proved yesterday at Eckhart hall at the University of Chicago that not all scientists are lugubrious individuals who can't appreciate a joke. He was ably seconded by a full attendance at the morning session of the Mathematical Association of America, which laughed quickly and often at the professor's quite humorous sallies during his quite serious presentation of a theory he has developed, that esthetic appreciation is based in some degree on mathematical forms.

His audience was attentive and interested while the Harvard savant sketched the theory, originated in 1925, and told of progress made to date in observing various experiments. But his hearers waxed giggly when he passed from the forms of vases and bars of music to the field of poetry.

A Challenge from Audience.

Somebody anticipated him. "What about poetry?" came a challenge from the audience.

"I'll come to that in a moment," retorted the speaker suavely.

"I've written a six line poem," he announced, "keyed to the mathematical formula, to prove my point in analyzing poetry by the method I developed."

When he finished his discourse and sat down there was a call for the poem. The professor shrugged, mounted the platform again and protested, "I dislike to be put in the position of a small boy at school, but I'll read it." He did. It ran:

VISION.

Wind and wind the wisps of fire,
Bits of knowledge, heart's desire;
Soon within the central ball
Fiery vision will enthrall.
Wind too long or strip the sphere—
See the vision disappear!

Enthusiastic applause proved that he had scored his point and that his colleagues were quick to acknowledge it.

Why We Look at Moon.

Primitive man, Prof. Birkhoff declared, was fond of contemplating the moon because he found it a precise geometric figure. Modern man today, he said, is pleased by the subtle mathematical forms in the formal side of art.

By diagramming a series of vases and pointing out the mathematical principles embodied in their construction he demonstrated the theory. Similarly he charted a few notes of music and a verse by Coleridge. Edgar Allan Poe, who tried application of the principles of music to his poems, was not entirely successful, he added.

ILLINOIS HOUSE VOTES CONTROL OVER UTILITIES

Bill Is Passed by Count of 85 to 48.

among the supporting speakers. Three of them, William G. Thon, David I. Swanson, and William E. King, hail from the metropolis, and the fourth opponent, Richard J. Lyons, comes from Mundelein in the Eighth district, adjoining Cook county.

In calling up the Sinnett bill, Adamowski spoke at length upon the present lack of power in the commerce commission to compel reductions in utility rates, charging "red tape" now permits the companies to tie up rate proceedings indefinitely.

He argued that the assembly, because it created the commission with inadequate authority, is responsible for this situation and now must either grant extended powers or abolish the commission. Without mentioning the former magnate's name, he referred to the Insull "scandal," a topic that came in several times for mention by other speakers.

Says Bill Will Increase Rates.

Thon's charge against the bill was that it would increase rates because it provides that the companies shall pay for the cost of rate investigations.

Swanson argued that the commission does not need more power but "an incentive to work."

Speaking for the bill, O'Neill went at length into the history of rate regulation in Illinois, saying, among other things, that rates for gas and electricity doubled between 1915 and 1929.

McClure condemned the past Republican administrations and assemblies as typifying his charge that the Republican party "has been the handmaiden" of the utilities.

Apparently the debate was over when the Republicans launched a demand for a luncheon recess which, in spite of opposition from Adamowski and other Democrats, was voted, 70 to 61, much to the encouragement of the opposition.

Just a Breathing Spell.

But the breathing spell seemingly stocked up some of the orators, for when the house reconvened Howard L. Doyle of Decatur took up the Democratic battle with an attack on the conduct of the utilities.

He was followed by another Democrat, John P. Devine of Dixon, who recited the utility history of former Gov. Small and the most recent Republican mayor of Chicago and his "five cent fare" slogan. He said the big need of the situation is the ouster of politicians from the utility field.

There was little surprise that Devine opposed the bill, but there was some when Sinnett arose and, after an explanation, voted "present." His explanation was that, although he had introduced the bill, he could not vote for it because he had accepted per diem "emoluments" as legal fees from utility companies.

In general, the roll call showed a party division, most of the Democrats voting for the bill and most of the Republicans against it.

No Debate on Race Bill.

The horse racing commission bill was passed in the senate without debate. George M. Maypole, Chicago Democrat, who introduced it merely identified it when he called it up, and the roll call was begun. In spite of the active hostility of Richard J. Barr of Joliet, the minority leader, there were only three votes against it—those of Barr and two Cook county Republicans, James J. Barbour, Evanston, and Roy C. Woods, Chicago.

Bruce A. Campbell, southern Illinois leader and a candidate for the governorship nomination last year, appeared here to oppose some features of the bill and amendments may be agreed upon before house action is taken.

HOUSE APPROVES DEVINE BILL ON STATE U. FUNDS

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—(AP)—Representative John Devine of Dixon today received approval of the house of representatives for his revised bill to require that funds of the University of Illinois be kept in the state treasury. The bill was sent to the senate after a vote of 112 to 4.

The bill is a substitute for an earlier proposal by Devine to give the state treasurer control over university funds.

It would create a revolving fund in which the univeristy would pay its revenues and from which it would receive money appropriated. For payment of vouchers the university would be permitted a working cash fund of not more than $100,000.

Army Flyer Is Killed When His Plane Crashes

SALES TAX BILL BLOCKED IN HOUSE BY REPUBLICANS

Democrats Muster Votes for Showdown Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—Opposition to the new 2 per cent occupational [sales] tax, which the Horner administration is backing, materialized in full force on the Republican side of the house tonight and blocked advancement of this senate bill to second reading.

By almost a straight party vote—72 to 63—the house refused even this temporary approval. It was not a full attendance and Democratic leaders expressed confidence in being able to swing the move tomorrow. But tonight, Representative L. M. Green [Rep., Rockford], and his opposition colleagues held sway.

Find They Lack Voters.

Every parliamentary obstacle which could be placed was thrown in the way of advancement and when the Democrats found they did not have 77 votes, they moved adjournment and carried the motion—only a few moments after blocking a similar motion presented by Green.

Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem. Chicago], who is handling most of the administration measures in the house, made the motion to advance the bill as midnight was drawing near.

"I object," called Green, and the battle was on.

Win on Adjournment.

On Green's motion to adjourn the roll was called and decided in favor of the Democrats—72 to 63. Then R. V. Libonati [Rep., Chicago] raised the point that copies of the bill were not on the members' desks. Speaker Roe waived this aside and the next roll call began, this time on the question of advancement. Before it had been announced Howard L. Doyle [Dem., Decatur], seeing that the 77 necessary votes had not been cast, moved adjournment and this was carried.

POLICEMAN DIES; BEATEN IN FIGHT WITH PICKETS

Policeman Oscar Brosseau, 55 years old, of the Fillmore street station, who was beaten with a baseball bat on June 1 during a fight with union pickets in front of the Royale bakery, 1240 South Kedzie avenue, died yesterday in St. Anthony's hospital as a result of his injuries. The bakery, which employed nonunion workers, was being picketed by local 237 of the Jewish Bakers' union, the proprietor told police. Brosseau is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nellie Brosseau, 5317 West Congress street; his mother, Mrs. Virginia Brosseau, a sister and two brothers, one of whom, Policeman George Brosseau, is assigned to the Warren avenue station.

Crowds Watch Gary Fire; Loss Is Put at $50,000

Loss estimated at $50,000 was caused by fire which early this morning swept through half the yards of the Gary Lumber company at 10th avenue and Madison street, Gary. No one was injured. The fire shot flames high into the air and attracted crowds to the scene. Firemen prevented the flames from spreading to neighboring plants. The cause of the fire was undetermined.

SALES TAX PROPOSAL IS DEFEATED IN OHIO HOUSE BY 88-37 VOTE

Columbus, Ohio, June 20.—(AP)—The Ohio house of representatives today defeated by a vote of 88 to 37 a proposal for a two per cent sales tax, the nucleus of Gov. George White's program for idle relief, school financing and relief for real estate owners.

The administration had waged a fight for six weeks for adoption of a program which included, besides the sales tax, an earned income tax, reduction of the maximum levy on real estate, provisions for school reorganization and financing. Two administration measures, reënactment of the cigaret tax and diversion of $2,000,000 in gasoline tax funds for idle relief, have been passed by the house.

The Ohio senate by a vote of 18 to 10, refused to take a job insurance bill, previously passed by the house, from the labor committee, thus virtually blocking all attempts to bring the measure to a senate vote.

TRIES TO SERVE GOVERNOR WRIT AND IS SEIZED

Atlanta, Ga., June 20.—(AP)—A deputy sheriff seeking to serve Gov. Eugene Talmadge with notice of an injunction suit was arrested by National Guardsmen today as the governor and the military forces took over complete control of the state highway department under the governor's martial law proclamation.

The new highway organization, headed by Commissioner Judson P. Wilhoit, made arrangements to pay more than $1,300,000 to workers of the department who have not been paid since the governor's budget dispute with the highway board began on April 1.

Meanwhile, Chairman J. W. Barnett of the highway board, who was ousted from office yesterday by the governor's martial law proclamation, along with Commissioner W. C. Vereen, announced that he was "still chairman" and would set up new offices for operation of the department's affairs.

That federal intervention in the feud may be sought tomorrow was indicated late today when Barnett conferred with Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

Judge Underwood said the petition was not presented today, and that the attorneys left the conference with the understanding that it would be presented tomorrow.

RECOVER BODY OF SWIMMER.

The body of Willard Quinn, 19 years old, 1610 South 50th court, Cicero, was taken from the lake off Ohio street yesterday by coast guards. The youth was drowned Monday night when he went swimming with three companions.

HORNER, KELLY URGE DEMOCRATS TO VOTE AS UNIT

Hope to Harmonize Chicago and Downstate.

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—Mayor Kelly of Chicago and other Democratic leaders tonight added their voices to that of Gov. Horner in urging the general assembly to stand by the legislative program of the administration and the party organization.

A caucus of Democratic members of the house held in the Centennial building was addressed by both the Chicago mayor and the governor. They urged the party majority to vote as a unit on all of the legislation covered by the eight point program agreed upon early this month, and, while there was no formal vote taken, those present assumed that an agreement to that effect had been made.

Believe Trouble Is Over.

Both the speakers urged that any feeling that might exist between Democrats from downstate and Democrats from Chicago be laid aside for the sake of the general welfare. There have been indications of a rift in the majority organization along territorial lines, but it was believed that this danger had been avoided by the harmony talk.

The first result of the caucus became apparent later in the evening when the Roberts-Carlson senate bill was called up for passage in the senate. This measure eliminates the terms of office for the Chicago school board positions of business manager and attorney now held respectively by Howard P. Savage and Thomas V. Sullivan by appointment of the former Republican controlled board of education.

As soon as the bill was called the Republicans began a demonstration against it, led by Roland V. Libonati of Chicago.

Beat Off Republican Attacks.

The direct attack came from Elmer J. Schnackenberg, minority leader, who moved that the enacting clause be stricken. The Democrats stood solidly behind their leaders and beat the motion by tabling it, the vote of 72 to 61 being strictly on party lines. Then the bill, which already has passed the senate, was advanced to third, or final, reading.

This bill was not mentioned during the speeches in the caucus, but it was said that during the meeting the word was passed that Mayor Kelly felt that enactment of the proposed law is essential to the proper conduct of school affairs and that he and his advisers are determined particularly upon the ousting of Attorney Sullivan, a former Minnesotan brought to Chicago by a former Republican mayor as a campaign speaker.

Discuss School Bonds.

The subjects in the caucus also included the Chicago school board $40,000,000 bond issue for the board's working cash fund, the housing bills, the minimum wage bill, the sanitary district bond bill, the sales tax bill, and the bill to enlarge the powers of the state tax commission and the commerce commission.

Those who accompanied Mayor Kelly to Springfield included National Committeeman P. A. Nash, State's Attorney Courtney, and A. J. Horan, a leader of the Cook county Democratic organization. The party will remain here tomorrow in a further effort to advance the Horner-Kelly program.

STATE SENATOR BARES OFFER OF BRIBE FOR VOTE

James O. Monroe Charges It Happened Before.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—The rare spectacle of a legislator announcing that he had been offered money to influence his vote was presented in the state senate today.

Senator James O. Monroe [Dem., Collinsville], a newspaper publisher, made the assertion. Twice in the four years he has served in the general assembly has he been offered cash for his vote, he said—once at the close of the 1931 session and again today.

His declaration came when the Graham-Gunning bill to regulate the practice of dentistry in Illinois—and aimed specifically at corporate dentistry—was on third reading. When his name was reached on roll call Monroe rose.

Explains Vote for Bill.

"I shall vote for this bill," he said slowly, making each word count, "as a rebuke to venality and corruption. I have consistently taken a position for legislative independence and honesty. Only twice have I been offered money to vote for or against a bill.

"One of these occasions came today, and upon this bill. Money was proffered if I would not vote for it and another senator told me that he had been approached with the same proposition. Because of this I vote for the bill."

Off the floor Monroe amplified his statement.

"No definite sum was mentioned," he said, "but I was told it would not be very much. No, I shan't tell who made the offer. The other occasion I referred to came at the close of last session when I was offered $1,000 if I would move to bring a movie operator's bill from the license and miscellany committee."

"Who made that offer?" he was asked.

"The man is now dead," came the answer.

This bill would have made mandatory the placing of two operators in each theater booth. It passed the house but was killed in the senate.

Investigation Demanded.

Monroe's statements drew recommendations from two of his colleagues —Senators W. H. Hickman [Dem., Paris] and Louis O. Williams [Dem., Clinton]—that the state's attorney of Sangamon county investigate the alleged attempted bribery.

The dentistry bill was sponsored by Majority Leader R. V. Graham [Dem., Chicago] and Thomas P. Gunning [Rep., Princeton], a dentist. Its principal provision would regulate the practice of dentistry by corporations and prevent the advertising of prices. Needing 26 votes, it received just that number. Two members—Arthur A. Huebsch [Rep., Brookfield] and George M. Maypole [Dem., Chicago] voted present. No nay votes were tallied.

The Monroe incident was the star happening at the early senate session. An attempt was made to pass the prevailing rate of wage bill, but it received only a dozen affirmative votes, so further consideration was postponed.

At its late session this evening the senate passed two score house appropriation bills, many of them on one roll call, completing enactment. It refused to sanction the Parker house bill increasing mothers' pensions in Illinois.

PHILADELPHIA MAN REFUSES TO GIVE UP HIS $120,000 IN GOLD

Philadelphia, Pa., June 20.—[Special.]—A Philadelphia textile manufacturer, whose name is being withheld, possesses a hoard of $120,000 in gold coins which he has refused to return to banks, according to agents of the federal bureau of investigation.

The manufacturer converted cash into gold coins a few weeks prior to President Roosevelt's issuance of his ban against withdrawing and hoarding gold and gold notes. Agents said they had visited the owner and urged him to return the gold but that he, "on advice of counsel," would neither affirm nor deny that he had such a private store.

Continuing their inquiry, the agents discovered, they said, the caches where the gold was hidden. They indicated they could do nothing further until Attorney General Homer S. Cummings made a decision in the case.

Asks $2,000 for Cat Killed by a Taxicab

Baltimore, June 20.—(AP)—Claiming that his late Angora cat's "beauty and intelligence" was of "great value" as an "attraction" in his restaurant business, Peter G. Mentis today filed suit asking $2,000 damages for the animal's death. The cat was struck by a taxicab last week.

Charged with Violating National Banking Law.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—Andrew Russel, former state auditor and state treasurer, was named in a federal indictment today along with Millard F. Dunlap, former treasurer of the Democratic national committee, and William G. Goebel, former treasurer of the Illinois college of Jacksonville. The three are charged with misapplication of funds of the Ayers National bank, of which they were officials and which was closed last fall.

Dunlap and Goebel were named in a second indictment which charged them with making false entries, deceiving the controller and national bank examiner, and of conspiracy. They were acquitted this morning in the state court at Jacksonville, where they had been on trial under charges of larceny by bailee and embezzlement. Dunlap blamed his difficulties on Russel and said he was unable to prevent Russel from overdrawing his bank account for $1,000,000.

Prominent in Politics.

Russel, who has been prominent in Republican affairs in the state for 20 years, issued a statement asking the public to withhold judgment on him until he has had an opportunity to defend himself in court. He said the indictment came as a surprise to him. Russel was vice president of the bank.

The trial at Jacksonville involved more than $100,000 of bonds owned by the Illinois college. Dunlap, as president, and Goebel, as cashier of the bank, were accused when the bonds appeared in the Chicago market. Several members of the college board testified that the bonds had been entrusted to Goebel for safe keeping. Goebel said the bonds had been borrowed, rather than stolen, and would have been returned if college trustees had not interfered.

Acquitted in One Trial.

The verdict of not guilty, rendered by a jury before Judge L. E. Stone, ended the state's prosecution of Goebel, but two other state cases are pending against Dunlap, who is 76 years old and who was Russel's partner for more than two decades in the banking firm of Dunlap, Russel & Co.

MITCHELL STORY BRANDED 'FALSE' BY PROSECUTOR

Banker Hears Himself Denounced at Trial.

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—Charles E. Mitchell, the former chairman of the National City bank, on trial for income tax evasion, heard himself described in federal court today by United States Attorney General George Z. Medalie as a man "whose purported heroism at the time of the market crash in 1929 was a sham" and one who "was motivated in all his actions by a desire for profit."

Mr. Medalie spoke in a loud, clear voice in launching his argument for the conviction of the banker, who is charged before Judge Henry W. Goddard with evading tax payments of $850,000 on an estimated net income of $4,000,000 for 1929 and 1930.

Attacks His Story.

He described Mitchell's testimony on the stand as "a tale adorned with sanctimonious rubbish, and he described him as "one who can make a commonplace thing seem more important than any one I ever knew."

Mitchell was a dynamic personality, Mr. Medalie said. But he was subtle, and the things he did "took the odor of sanctity from him."

In the sale of 18,300 National City bank shares to his wife he had only one desire, Mr. Medalie said, and in that connection he felt that the defendant's own words, "to register a tax loss," were particularly well chosen..

As a member of one of the two ruling classes in this country—the political officeholders and the financial backers—Mitchell was a man of tremendous power, Mr. Medalie said.

Denies He Was Singled Out.

"The public has the right to look to those men for guidance," he said, "and when one of them does a wrong he has no right to shout that he has been singled out.

"The failure of this office to prosecute the defendant for tax evasion practiced two and three years ago was due to no intentional delay," he said, "but to the fact that Mitchell's misdeeds were discovered quite by accident..

"And when one in high place is found who betrays a public confidence the last thing he has the right to do is to shout that he has been singled out," he repeated. "Let him take his punishment like a man."

GREEN APPEALS TO LABOR TO AID KELLY IN DRIVE

Edward Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, yesterday gave Mayor Kelly a copy of a telegram sent to John Fitzpatrick, president of the federation, by William Green, president of the American Federation, instructing Chicago labor officials to extend the most complete coöperation to authorities in driving racketeers and gangsters out of unions.

"There must be no doubt regarding the extension of coöperation of all bona fide American Federation of Labor locals with the law officers in Chicago and Cook county in driving out racketeers and exploiters of labor," wired President Green.

"If there are any pretending to be representing the American Federation of Labor, but who are known to be either sympathizing or actively assisting in gangster control, they must be dealt with the same as others not connected with organized labor."

Continue Gasoline Theft Case Against City Workers

Charges of petty larceny against two suspended city garbage truck workers, who confessed to stealing city gasoline, were continued until July 7 yesterday by Judge Joseph H. McGarry. The defendants are James Lynch, 43 years old, 758 South Western avenue, and Carmen Severino, 31 year old, 5027 Winona street.

FEDERAL BARGES REACH JOLIET ON TRIP TO CHICAGO

Waterway Dedication Ceremony Held.

Joliet, Ill., June 20.—[Special.]—The four 500 ton barges which are carrying the first freight to Chicago over the lakes to gulf waterway from New Orleans today climbed the "Chicago divide," as it has been named by government engineers, on the 50 mile stretch of the Illinois waterway from Ottawa. The boats lifted 140 feet in this short distance.

Upon their arrival here the flotilla, which is being propelled now by the towboats William T. Warner and the Gouvenor, since the Tom Sawyer was too large to pass under bridges upriver from Ottawa, were met by a convoy of yachts and police boats. They were lashed to the concrete wall of Joliet's "channel on stilts," the water level of which is sometimes as high as 70 feet above the streets, while the city fathers gathered to formally dedicate the waterway.

Hold Ceremony.

E. R. Daley, chairman of the welcoming committee, and City Attorney J. W. Faulkner asserted that Joliet would take its place with other river ports as a transfer point which will connect the middle west with southern salt water and world commerce.

Dan I. Sultan, chief engineer of the waterway, and E. H. Beechley, engineer in charge of the Joliet area, met the yacht Hugh McCloskey at the Dresden locks, coming 15 miles down river in a speedboat to greet the commissioners of the harbor of New Orleans and Carl Giesow, traffic manager of the St. Louis chamber of commerce, who are accompanying the tow aboard it.

Pass Through Five Locks.

The tow was lifted over the enormous rise in the waterway up from Ottawa through the five huge locks upon which most of the waterway funds were spent in construction. They are named in their up river order: Starved Rock at Ottawa, where the lift is 17 feet; Marseilles, lift 22 feet 6 inches; Dresden, lift 17 feet; Brandon road, lift 31 feet; Lockport, lift 41 feet.

The remainder of the "climb" is accounted for in the gradual incline in the river bed which barely keeps a one mile an hour current on the river.

The nine foot channel in the waterway has not yet been completed to the satisfaction of engineers and the towboats encountered a dozen bridges which still are at work on it. River men say that once the channel is completed it will remain permanent, not changing from week to week as does the Mississippi channel.

Has "Sinking Pilot House."

The one difficulty with the waterway at present is the presence on the stream of many low bridges under which the towboats have difficulty in passing. The William T. Warner, which is skippered by its builder and owner, was specially designed to meet this problem. The pilot house, the roof of which stands 19 feet above the water level, has a pneumatic pump arrangement which allows it to sink down into the boat until the roof is only 14 feet above the water.

Both the Warner and the Gouvenor will start for Chicago tomorrow morning. They will lie at the Damen avenue dock of the Federal Barge company until early Thursday, when they will steam down to the Michigan avenue bridge for the Chicago dedication ceremonies.

Start Trying Lang July 11 on Nitti Assault Charge

The trial of Detective Harry Lang, former member of the mayor's hoodlum squad, on charges of perjury and assault to kill Frank Nitti, once business manager of the Capone syndicate, was set for July 11 by Judge Thomas J. Lynch yesterday. The trial date was fixed over objection of Defense Attorney A. L. Marovitz, who asked that the case be delayed until the fall term of court. Nitti, who was not in court, telephoned the state's attorney's office that he would appear on the trial date.

BLAST CAUSES FATAL BURNS.

Elizabeth Comer, 758 East 37th street, died yesterday in Michael Reese hospital of burns received Monday when a can of naphtha exploded as she was lighting a hot water heater in the basement of her home.

DERN WILL FLY TO DEDICATION OF WATERWAY

Rainey to Accompany War Secretary.

Secretary of War George H. Dern, Henry T. Rainey, speaker of the national house of representatives, and Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, U. S. army, will take off from Washington by plane today for Chicago to participate in the dedication of the Illinois waterway and the lakes to the gulf water route tomorrow. Both the secretary and the speaker are to deliver addresses.

The ceremonials are attracting political and commercial leaders from all over the Mississippi valley and great lakes basin. A naval parade and water pageantry in which will be portrayed the early French explorers, La Salle, Marquette, Joliet, the trappers and pioneers who first made commercial use of the water route over the Chicago divide, will be held on the Chicago river and the lake front.

Barge from New Orleans.

The dedicatory exercises are to start shortly before noon at a point just east of the Michigan avenue bridge. One of its features will be the arrival of a tow of Mississippi river barges carrying the first commercial cargo over the lakes to gulf route from New Orleans to Chicago. The tow, which left New Orleans May 31, will be escorted by the Hugh McCloskey, official yacht of the port of New Orleans, and other craft.

Secretary Dern will speak from the deck of the training ship Wilmette, which will be moored just east of the Michigan avenue bridge on the north bank of the river, within stone's throw of the site of the old John Kinzie home, first dwelling built in Chicago.

In one ceremony, Mayor Kelly will join Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans in blending water brought from the Gulf of Mexico with those of Lake Michigan. Among other speakers will be Gov. Horner and Maj. Gen. Thomas Q. Ashburn, president of the federal barge lines, who is bringing the tow up from New Orleans.

Tow to Arrive Today.

The tow is expected to arrive in Chicago waters late today. It is to dock at the Damen avenue terminus, six miles from the lake, where it will remain until it is moved toward the river mouth tomorrow morning. The tow is to be greeted at Lockport by a delegation representing Mayor Kelly, headed by Frederick J. Ashley of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Martin Ottershagen, president of the Chicago Propeller club.

The plan to carry 100 members of congress down the waterway from Chicago to New Orleans has been postponed. Congressman Frank Reid received a message yesterday from Secretary Dern, saying that after a conference with Speaker Rainey it had been decided to delay the trip until fall.

Members of the New Orleans port commission headed by Seymour Weiss, president, arrived at the Congress hotel last night for the waterway fête. They accompanied the barge tow from New Orleans as far as Joliet. They will rejoin the tow at Lockport this morning for the last leg of the trip to Chicago. In the party are Sidney Nunez, treasurer; I. B. Rennyson, secretary; John McKay, general manager, and Rene Speigler, general agent of the New Orleans port commission, and Capt. Geissow, traffic manager of the St. Louis chamber of commerce.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In a story in THE TRIBUNE on May 30 it was stated that the law firm of Shulman, Shulman & Abrams had received $44,500 in fees in receivership cases. The table of figures had been prepared by the Chicago Bar association. The bar association and Attorney Bernard Shulman said yesterday that the firm had only received $1,950 in the cases listed.

L. A. MEEKER'S WIFE IS HERE TO SEEK DIVORCE

Mrs. Ruth Campbell Meeker, wife of Lawrence A. Meeker, New York and Chicago society man, is in Chicago arranging for a divorce, it was learned yesterday. Mrs. Meeker is staying at the College club, 196 East Delaware place.

yet," Mrs. Meeker said. "I can't say much about it for the present. You know how those things are."

The Meekers were married in June, 1927, in the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church. Mrs. Meeker is a daughter of Mrs. Virginia Adams Campbell.

It was the second matrimonial venture for Mr. Meeker, a son of Mrs. George W. Meeker and a nephew of Arthur Meeker. His first wife was Miss Lois Dempster Field of Haverford, Pa., whom he married in 1915. She divorced him.

Mr. Meeker, a native Chicagoan, Yale graduate and an army captain in the war, was formerly associated with his uncle at Armour & Co. Of recent years he has been in investment banking and resided in New York.

LOOP PRAISED FOR ITS LACK OF SMOKE PALL

Convention Speaker Lauds Inspector Chambers.

The Chicago loop is as clear of smoke as any large business area in the world as the result of the activities of the city smoke inspection bureau, members of the Smoke Prevention Association of America were told yesterday when they opened their 27th annual convention in the La Salle hotel.

The speaker was Joseph Harrington, chairman of the advisory smoke abatement commission. He praised the work of Frank A. Chambers, city smoke inspector and secretary of the association.

"In taking food and water," said Mr. Harrington, "we can use our own discretion. We can even wait for long periods until we find what we want. But the normal person breathes 16 to 18 times a minute and can hold his breath only two or at the most three minutes, so we can't use our discretion about the air we breathe.

Stresses Need for Control.

"Therefore it is important that pollution of the air by smoke be eradicated, and that the government have authority to regulate the purity of this life-giving element. When coal consumers learn the economic benefit that there is for them in smoke abatement, then there will be a real diminution of smoke.

"Chicago is the greatest fuel consumption center in the world. In normal times the city consumes about 35,000,000 tons of coal annually, which gives off 52,000 tons of solids into the air.

"The Chicago loop is as clean an area as any business district in the world, and you can give the Chicago smoke department credit for that. But the jurisdiction of the department shouldn't be limited to the city, because a lot of smoke that comes into Chicago originates outside. To have an effective smoke campaign we should extend the authority of the department outside the city in all directions to the open areas.

"Rules for Homes Difficult."

"Smoke from residences is one of the most difficult problems in abatement work. You can't lay down standard rules for firing which give the same results in every residence. Therefore smoke abatement efficiency must be built into residential heating apparatus."

The convention, which will last four days, is attended by 300 smoke abatement engineers and city officials engaged in smoke abatement work. The meeting was opened with an address by Frank E. Trumble of Buffalo, president of the association. The delegates spent the afternoon inspecting technical exhibits at the World's Fair.

DEATH TOLL CAUSED BY TORNADOES SMALL, SAYS WEATHER MAN

Tornadoes are fearsome works of nature, but the number of persons killed by them is inconsequential as compared to those who die from less spectacular accidents. So stated Truman G. Shipman of the Davenport [Ia.] weather bureau yesterday at a meeting of the American Meteorological society, held at the University of Chicago.

An American's chances of being murdered or executed, Mr. Shipman said, are 48 times as great as his chances of meeting death in tornadoes, while 121 die in auto smashes to every one who loses his life by twisting winds.

Another speaker at the meeting was Dinsmore Alter of the University of Kansas. In an effort to determine if sunspots caused cycles of rainfall, he said, he had examined weather records covering 230 years in England. He said he had found no evidence to support the sunspot theory.

TRY FIVE TODAY FOR JAILING GIRL IN TRAFFIC CASE

CRIMINAL COURT.

Francis Thomas, contributing to delinquency of a child, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell and fined $200 and costs by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Four policemen and a police matron will go on trial today before the civil service commission on charges growing out of their treatment of Miss Lilyan Zagel, 18 years old, 1357 North Rockwell street, who was denied the right of furnishing bail and was locked up for nearly 24 hours after she had hurt a small boy with an automobile.

The defendants are Sergt. Joseph J. Purcell and Patrolmen Walter H. Green, Patrick Griffin and Eugene Piggott of the West North avenue station and Matron Margaret Jones of the Racine avenue station. Sergt. Purcell was in charge of the station when Miss Zagel was arrested on May 19. The three patrolmen investigated the accident and arrested her.

Matron Jones is charged with conduct unbecoming a policewoman in that in locking up Miss Zagel "she placed Miss Zagel in a cell with Mrs. Josephine Zavotsky, who was awaiting removal to the psychopathic hospital for an examination of her sanity, and kept her there all night, although there were four other cells vacant in the women's lockup."

Sergt. Purcell and the patrolmen are charged with conduct unbecoming policemen. Patrolman Green, head of the squad which made the arrest, is also charged with making a false official report. He embodied in his report statements from a witness who later told police investigators that he had not seen the accident.

Dr. Benjamin Goldberg Is Divorced by Wife

Mrs. Hilda Goldberg, 411 Fullerton parkway, was granted a default divorce yesterday from Dr. Benjamin Goldberg, former secretary of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium. The decree was granted by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan. Mrs. Goldberg charged cruelty. She was given custody of her son, Richard, 11 years old, and given almony of $250 a month.

Mother's Helping Hand

THINK OF THE MILLIONS of stitches that went into the beruffled and beribboned dresses young women wore to Chicago's first World's Fair. Mothers wanted their daughters to look their best—and they did. But at what a cost of every mother's time and patience. That was before the electric sewing machine had come to lend a helping hand with the sewing.

Pretty dresses then grew out of hard, confining work. Today even lovelier clothes are created in a fraction of the time—with Mother just doing the guiding, not the work. She now has time to be a companion to her daughters as well as seamstress, cook and general manager. Electricity has brought her freedom.

One cent will operate an electric sewing machine for four hours at the average rate in the average Chicago home. Electric sewing machines, embodying the newest features, are demonstrated and sold at the Electric Shops of COMMONWEALTH EDISON COMPANY.

CAB FARE SLASH OR YEAR'S GRANT, KELLY'S DEMAND

Mayor Serves Ultimatum on Company Heads.

Officials of the Yellow and Checker cab companies were summoned yesterday to Mayor Kelly's office where they were told he insists they reduce their rates. If they are to get a five year franchise, Mayor Kelly told them they must reduce their charges to at least 25 cents for the first mile.

Thomas Hogan and Benjamin Samuels, president and vice president of the Yellow Cab company, and Michael Sokol, president of the Checker Cab company, with several aldermen, heard the mayor's views on the provisions in the taxicab ordinance now under consideration by the city council committees on transportation and traffic. The mayor said he would allow the cab companies to charge for additional passengers if they deemed it necessary, but their mileage rate must come down and wages of the drivers must go up.

For 6 Year Depreciation Account.

The mayor said the cab companies are not entitled to returns on expensive cabs. Where the Yellow Cab company set up a depreciation fund to pay for each cab within three and one-half years, the mayor said this should be strung out over six years. Mr. Samuels replied that this change would only mean about $175,000 a year and that a 5 cent reduction in cab rates would mean a loss of $400,000 a year. In 1932 the profit per trip was 3.3 cents, he said.

The cab officials were not disposed to agree to the reduction. The mayor and the aldermen said a five year franchise would be of great value to them and in order to get it they must accept the city's terms. The ordinance under discussion is called a contract ordinance and the companies must accept it or it is of no force.

Sees Threat to Monopoly.

The council would then have the alternative of making terms under which year to year licenses would be issued and the monopoly now enjoyed by the two companies in possessing all but 200 of the licenses permitted by law might be taken from them, Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] leader of the group demanding a reduction, explained.

The cab company officials were told to think over the city's proposal and to return to the mayor's office Friday morning with their answer. If an agreement is reached, the mayor and the aldermen said they hoped to have the ordinance passed before the summer adjournment of the council.

CHICAGO MAN IS KILLED IN AUTO CRASH IN INDIANA

Ted Bresnahan, 30 years old, of Chicago, was killed yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a truck near New Carlisle, Ind. Three other Chicagoans, Lucille Henderson, 23 years old; Wilma Rector, 21 years old, and Benjamin Bernacchi, 26 years old, who were riding with Bresnahan, were injured.

Two automobile deaths reported yesterday in Cook county raised the motor toll to 448 since Jan. 1. The victims:

John Beukema, 22 years old, 7250 South Aberdeen street. Died in the county hospital from injuries incurred June 18, when the automobile in which he was riding overturned at 79th and Rockwell streets.

Henry Beyers, 63 years old, 1623 South Keeler avenue. Died in the county hospital. Struck by a hit and run taxicab driver yesterday at Sheffield avenue and Roscoe street.

Nils Bisgard, 35 years old, whose home is in the vicinity of 70th street and Kimbark avenue, was killed in Hammond yesterday when he fell under the wheels of his own truck while chasing several boy hitchers from the rear end of the truck. The accident occurred in 112th street.

OLIVER HARDY OF FILM TEAM ASKS DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Cal., June 20.—(AP)—A suit for divorce from Mrs. Myrtle Lee Hardy was filed in Superior court today by Oliver Hardy, rotund member of the film team of Laurel and Hardy, who charged his wife with mental cruelty.

In asking the divorce, Hardy charged that many times Mrs. Hardy would leave home for a long period of time and when he found her "she was in an exhausted and bedraggled condition, due to intoxicating liquors."

The Hardys were married in 1921 and separated June 7, 1933, the complaint said. In 1929 Mrs. Hardy sued the comedian for divorce, charging he "had been in too close proximity to persons using powder and other cosmetics." The suit later was dismissed.

QUIZ WITNESSES ON CHARGES OF POLICE SLUGGING

Varying Stories Told by Spectators.

Conflicting testimony of witnesses marked the investigation yesterday into the alleged brutality of two Evergreen Park policemen in connection with the arrest of a party of Chicago motorists. The inexperience of the policemen, Charles Roche and Herbert Drabandt, who were commissioned less than two months ago, was looked upon as a factor in the case yesterday.

They were quizzed in the state's attorney's office on charges made by Edwin G. Tuerk, 30 years old, 7826 Lawrence avenue, and his wife, and W. Don Lowrie, 6150 Greenwood avenue, and his fiancée, Miss Elizabeth Scott, 8046 South Carpenter avenue. Tuerk and Lowrie charged that their car was halted early Sunday by the policemen, who tore up documents offered as identification. When they protested, Lowrie said, one of the policemen struck him with a blackjack and also beat Tuerk.

Says Police Hit Him Again.

Lowrie said that he ran to Jim's barbecue at 95th street and Western avenue to use a telephone and was followed by the policemen, who again struck him. Miss Kathleen McDade, 2710 West 96th street, Evergreen Park, a waitress, and Robert Cunat, 5136 West 29th place, Cicero, a watchman for the American Detective service, who were in the barbecue stand, were questioned yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley.

Miss McDade said that Lowrie came into the barbecue stand at 3 o'clock Sunday morning and obtained a telephone slug. Policemen Roche and Drabandt followed immediately, she said, and ordered Lowrie to come out of the telephone booth. When Lowrie failed to do so, Miss McDade said, the policemen pushed the booth door open and Roche struck Lowrie with his fist. Neither the policemen nor Lowrie had been drinking, Miss McDade said, but all were excited. She said that Lowrie was hustled out of the barbecue stand by the two policemen.

Watchman Gives Testimony.

Cunat said that he did not see any blows struck by either of the policemen. He told Prosecutor Crowley that Lowrie, when the policemen forced the telephone booth door, clubbed one of the policemen six times with the telephone receiver.

Thomas Sweeney, owner of the Golden Pheasant club, 95th street and Western avenue, was questioned after state's attorney's police had received information that the policemen had spent several hours in his cabaret before the arrest. Sweeney said that Roche came in early Sunday morning, bought cigarets, and departed. The report of Prosecutor Crowley will be submitted to State's Attorney Courtney today when the latter returns from Springfield.

100 YEARS of REAL ESTATE VALUES in CHICAGO

THE past hundred years cover the complete cycle of Chicago's growth from a wilderness settlement to the fourth largest city in the world. Eight years ago, a professor and statistician undertook to trace Chicago land values throughout this cycle. Though half the wealth of America is in its real estate, no such comprehensive study of the complete cycle of real estate market values throughout the life of a great city has ever been published. This study of Chicago's growth is a pioneer work.

The study has now been completed, and the Chicago Title & Trust Company proposes to discuss its findings in a series of advertisements.

The time is peculiarly appropriate. Chicago is celebrating its Centennial. Real Estate throughout Greater Chicago has recently passed through its fifth great deflation. A hundred-year perspective upon Chicago land values is the tonic needed in these times.

In it there is courage and inspiration for real estate ownership.

It proves that depressions, panics, wars and fires have not been able to stop the city's growth nor discourage the spirit of its citizens.

It shows that after every depression, Chicago's aggregate land value has recovered and gone ahead.

Not in any of these five major depressions have total values gone so low as in the previous one.

Chicago Title & Trust Company has undertaken this interpretation of basic facts about Chicago land values. It does not trade in real estate nor real estate securities. For 86 years, its business has been to keep the records of Cook County real estate, to make abstracts of title and issue title guaranty policies. The records of this company have played an important part in this study. By assisting in the publication of the results, the Chicago Title & Trust Company hopes to serve the interests of sound and conservative real estate ownership in Greater Chicago . . . to assist recovery . . . and to advance the knowledge of real estate as an investment.

The method used in making this study has been to divide the present area of Chicago into its 210.74 square miles and in each, to fix the market value of land at various periods, on the basis of all available sales and records.

•

The author of the study is Homer Hoyt, formerly a professor of economics and a statistician with U. S. War Trade Board, etc. Working with economists in leading universities, and with real estate and appraisal specialists, he has devoted eight years to this laborious task.

•

He has had access to the records of the Chicago Title & Trust Company and all other important sources. The study has included an examination of many thousands of records; as for example, the real estate and historical entries in more than 22,000 newspapers.

•

The survey traces and charts the course of land values, excluding buildings, in each section and for the entire city, as affected by business conditions year after year, including particularly the five major depressions beginning in 1837, 1857, 1873, 1893 and 1929. It is the judgment of those associated with this work that the methods have been accurate and exhaustive, and that the results are of major importance to everyone interested in real estate.

WELCOME TO SCIENCE.

The serious purpose inspiring the Exposition at Grant park is especially emphasized in the meetings of scientists and of engineers this week. The casual visitor caught up in the carnival spirit of the Fair may overlook its higher aspects. No doubt the Fair is a great show, the most sparkling and vivid ever held on such a scale. But the inspiration of A Century of Progress was the rôle of modern science, pure and applied, in broadening the horizon of human thought and experience and in harnessing the mysterious forces of nature to the will of man. This central purpose of the Exposition was emphasized brilliantly in the opening ceremony, so dramatically staged by Dr. Fox, the gifted director of the Adler Planetarium, and so impressively celebrated in the address of the venerable astronomer, Dr. Frost, when the light of Arcturus after traveling forty years touched into magic life the electric glories of the Exposition. And this week there is gathered at the Fair an assembly of scientists representing the manifold activities in the study and conquest of nature's forces. They include many men of world-wide fame and all are contributing to the progress of civilization in a magnificent coöperation which marks our age and gives it its chief claim to glory.

To the guests of the Exposition, members of the Association for the Advancement of Science and distinguished foreigners, and to the convention of engineers which follows, the community offers its cordial welcome, hoping that they will find their visit in every respect happy and rewarding, and offering to them its sincere tribute of admiration and gratitude. No city in the world has more reason than this city of Chicago to realize the debt which mankind owes to the scientist and the engineer, for Chicago was born, as Prof. Compton said in his impressive address Monday night, in the early days of the great epoch of material development over which the genius and devotion of the scientist and the engineer have presided. With the swift advance of their triumphs Chicago has grown from a trading post in the wilderness to a world center of energy and intelligence. Upon their achievements it has eagerly and masterfully builded and to them it owes its gratitude and allegiance. We hope the sense of this will make them at home with us and insure for us a place in their friendly memories.

PUTTING THIS JUNE IN ITS PLACE.

World Fair visitors will be good natured to understand that this June weather has a California characteristic. It's quite exceptional. It is not in the Chicago habit. It is an eccentric sport. Chicagoans are not perfected in the art of explanation as are the Californians. For one reason climate is not the Chicago preoccupation and the year around the weather stands well up to any one's reasonable expectation of it.

Visitors who have been here two weeks have seen a variation from about 55 degrees to 100. That is record pole vaulting. One day belonged to a nice open winter and another was a Saharan particular. That's genius, dispassionately considered. It's the genius of the Chicago spring which now has yielded to summer. People in these parts do not require too much of spring. It is recognized as a wild girl who worries her folks, a jazz damsel who settles down in the more matronly months and has a family of delightful days.

These days will come. A dependable reliance is placed on the lake. It will stand just so much from the winds off the plains and when it gets its back up the order for ice tea is changed to hot coffee. Chicago people have never cared to regard a two days' downpour as a high mist, a flood as a watering of the geraniums; a temblor as a bonfire, or a snowstorm as carnival confetti, and no radio announcer has been lynched for saying: "O, boy, is it hot in this ball park!" nor has any reporter lost his job because he told the world that a football game was played in a blizzard.

Yes, it has been what you were saying it was, but the old timers know that this is the eccentricity of climate. It is not the true, accustomed and expected article, which combines a moderately warm sun with a sprightly breeze, a blue sky, a blue lake, and tonic air, cool enough for a brisk walk, warm enough for a swim. All this is on the calendar for most of the days of the Fair.

TWO RADICALS BECOME DEMOCRATS.

John J. Blaine of Boscobel, Wis., has been relieved of whatever embarrassment he felt at finding himself suddenly off the public pay roll. Man and boy he has been getting his living from the government most of the time since he started as mayor of Boscobel, became a supervisor of Grant county and, settling down in earnest, served for the last fifteen consecutive years as attorney general, then governor and finally United States senator.

He was unexpectedly returned to Boscobel last fall after the Republicans of Wisconsin decided they preferred John B. Chapple as candidate and the voters decided they preferred F. Ryan Duffy, a Democrat, as senator.

Blaine, a radical of the La Follette camp, has won to previous offices as a Republican, it being a peculiarity of Wisconsin politics that radicals called themselves Republicans and distinguished themselves by opposing party programs and fighting party candidates.

The late United States senator has been spared the ignominy of an extended residence at Boscobel by his appointment by President Roosevelt to be director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. This permits him to continue at $10,000 a year to serve an unappreciative people who showed their gratitude for his persistent public labors by voting in large and unexpected numbers for young Mr. Chapple.

Mr. Blaine now takes his place with former Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, another radical who held high office as a Republican and who also was returned to private life by a similarly unappreciative people. Brookhart was named by Secretary Wallace as agricultural ambassador to soviet Russia. The appointment restores to him a substantial place on the pay roll and opportunity to meddle in the country's foreign relations which the limitations of the state department heretofore in the main denied him.

Whatever the basis of Blaine's appointment, his acceptance, as well as Brookhart's eagerness to line up with the party in power, serves a useful public purpose. It makes it perfectly clear that while the party is something to talk about, the job is the important thing.

Blaine has paraded his party principles in every town in Wisconsin. For years he has been radical of the radicals. In accepting the Democratic appointment he subscribes with equal facility to the Democratic doctrine.

The two radical Republicans have demonstrated that it is only the pay roll that is vital. Brookhart and Blaine, eager professional servants to a public that has repudiated them.

BISHOP CANNON'S OWN.

Federal prohibition agents here and elsewhere in the country hear a small voice telling them that in the reorganization of bureaus and the swinging of the pay roll ax they probably will be looking for something else to do by the close of summer. A cheerier adios could not be given any other outfit in the government service. To the better of them, if there are such, it can be said that their enforcement job was impossible. To the others, concerning whom there can be no doubts, one tribute can be paid. They made the impossible job unbelievably bad.

The adherents of Volstead made no mistake about their law. It was a dragoon act. It was intended to override every individual right and constitutional limitation. The sneakeasy men were to be more numerous than the speakeasies, but not to molest them, except perchance for gain. Manslaughter, extortion, corruption, and plug-ugliness were written into the act and employment under it was the least congenial work the average man could imagine. He couldn't meet its requirements because he couldn't force himself to do so and he would not accept its lawless privileges.

There has been a decided change of sentiment and it should be effective against the enforcement unit. The country has repudiated the objectives of such medievalism and should no longer be burdened with the expense or disturbed by the abuses of Bishop Cannon's Own dragoons.

J. BULL IN THE CHINA SHOP.

An Englishman saw a picture of John Paul Jones in THE TRIBUNE and wrote the Voice of the People to say that the man was an unprincipled scoundrel, a low born commoner, a pirate and a person of moral depravity and that a comparison of this person with a hero, gentleman and patriot, such as Lord Nelson, was sacrilegious. An American seeing the Englishman's letter, replied, with book and verse, to prove that Lord Nelson was vain, treacherous, vulgar and libidinous and that any comparisons were cruel to Jones.

Although evidence is lacking on the point the English correspondent probably landed recently upon these shores and was gunning for the first conspicuous American mark. A traveler from no other land would seek instantly to give his bad manners a workout as soon as he was in an alien land. No other would write to the country's newspapers to belittle an honored name. It's an Englishman's disposition to think he has done himself an injustice if he has not said or done something which by reflecting upon other people's ideals, customs or traditions increases his own superiority.

In genius of bad taste and bad manners that superiority is incontestable. There is little competition, and the world, for its own peace, may hope there never will be much. It's a mystery to J. Bu! how other peoples manage even to abide themselves and why. The other peoples seem so unnecessary, except at times when they have some money from which they can be separated.

INTEGRITY WILL PAY.

With most of the governments repudiating their obligations and many private debtors seeking ways to evade theirs, personal integrity is going to a premium. In the long run little Finland, for example, is going to benefit by its good faith, and individuals who refuse to welsh on their debts and who pay their taxes will establish a reputation which in years to come will mark them as men with whom other men are glad to deal and as outstanding members of their community. The sacrifices they make today will repay them many fold.

Editorial of the Day

CHARLES II. AND 3.2 BEER.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

When Charles II. brought about the restoration of monarchy in England he did not dream that any act of his would help bring about the restoration of beer in America almost three centuries later. But that has come to pass, with the help of a little American ingenuity. It was a lucky day for a future beer garden entrepreneur when King Charles, tinkering with the Virginia-Maryland boundary, gave the latter colony authority over the Potomac to low-water mark on the opposite side. This map did not change with the revolution, and the two states confirmed it with a treaty, still effective, signed in 1785. Now that Virginia bans beer and Maryland lives up to its name of free state, this boundary quirk is put to practical use. An inspired beer vender has set up his tables, steins, and barrels at the end of a pier, over deep water, at the extremity of King George county, Virginia. His customers are, we hope, good Americans, but they may be pardoned if they drink a few refreshing prosits to the clairvoyant King Charles, who created the oasis in soda pop territory before any one dreamed it might be needed.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AND, ALTHOUGH I'VE BEEN down to the World's Fair several times, I've never yet been able to get as far as the building containing the exhibit of all the states. But I've got my own idea of what it will be like. Or, anyhow, what it ought to be like. Every state is outstanding in my mind for one great characteristic. If you know what I mean. Now, for instance, when I go into the Missouri state show, I will fully expect to see a mechanical man such as eats things and then lights up his insides and brags about it. But the mechanical man in the Missouri section will have on farm togs and he will put his hand continually over his forehead and lean forward with an anxious, questioning gaze. Then from way down somewhere in his lungs a deep, rumbling voice will say: "Well, you gotta show me."

Then, over in the state exhibit labeled California I expect to find a great glass tank, twenty or thirty feet square. I'll know even before I am told what is in that glass tank in the California exhibit. Some people will look in it and turn away disappointed and holler for their admission fee to be paid back because they'll say the tank is empty. Nothing of the sort. As long as the magic word "California" is over that glass case I'll know what's in it. Climate! That's what'll be in the great glass case in the California state exhibit. For isn't the climate the greatest industry in California and isn't it what they're always bragging about? Certainly. So, of course, California will have a big glass box full of its glorious climate and I'll wait around to see the men come in with fresh barrels of the California climate and watch 'em while they pour it into the tank.

When I get around to the Louisiana exhibit I'll know right away what the signs mean when they say, "We Feed Him Raw Meat at Four O'Clock Every Day." Senator Hooey Long, of course. And he'll be jumping all over the place and making speeches and having the time of his life. Could you imagine a Louisiana exhibt without Hooey Long being the whole show? Certainly not. Neither could Hooey Long.

And Mississippi and Virginia! I'll know before I go in what I'll see in those exhibits. In the Mississippi section they have pot likker and cohn pone and they'll serve it free to one and all. And never was there anything that tasted more heavenly. And in the Virginia state exhibit they will also have pot likker and cohn pone. And some visitors will be deeply disappointed and say, "Why, they've both got the same show." Not at all.

In the Mississippi exhibit the pot likker will be cooked with a ham hock and in the Virginia section it will be stewed with pig's jowls. Which makes all the difference in the world, as anybody from Mississippi or Virginia will prove to you if you have to have proof. And in the Mississippi state exhibit you crumble the cohn pone into the pot likker. But if you try to crumble the cohn pohn into the pot likker in the Virginia state exhibit they will politely but firmly throw you out.

IT WERE ENOUGH.

From dark to dark again! Oblivion
Our lightless and eternal home at last!
All that was miracled to mind and soul
From earth's dry matter quenched in some dim vast?

Dream not so ill of Him. And yet it were
Enough to be a fragile lamp of clay,
Lighted between two darks, in which there burns
The very flame of God for one brief day!

THAT WAS QUITE a clever idea of the New York society leader who married a detective. Usually at weddings the bridegroom is horribly in the way, but at this wedding he must have come in mighty handy watching the wedding presents.

"ALFONSO'S SON, Prince of the Asturias, to Wed Commoner at Lausanne."—Headline. There it is again and it gives us a pain in the neck. "Prince Weds Commoner." And we ask you what is commoner than a prince these days? We've got one washing our automobile and we're going to give a couple of 'em (no, one's a grand duke) a job helping us move next month.

THOSE DOUKHOBORS, wearing only their birthday clothes, staged another parade up in Saskatchewan Monday, and the police carted over fifty of them to jail. The Doukhobors are having a hard time spreading their nudist ideas in northwestern Canada, where it's generally quite cool to chilly. They ought to send a few missionaries down to Chicago. Another hot day like the two we've just had and I'd join.

"FOES OF SMOKE Open Convention in Chicago Today."—La Trib. And we do hope they do something about those terrible creatures who throw a burning cigaret stub into the teacups and on their saucers. As the society lady at the next table in the speakeasy the other night so well said: "It's horribly mussy and it stinks lykell."

EXPLANATION.

It's not that I
Cannot be true,
But simply that
I've studied you:

For should I prove
I could be stable,
It would be you

SHERRY KING.

"WIFE HIRES FOUR MEN to Kill Her Husband."—Headline. Anyhow, that's a great compliment to the husband. Lots of wives would only need to employ a crippled match girl to come over and bat the poor simp on the bean with a feather duster. And poets still talk about love. Bah!

LIME AND OTHER MINERALS.

"THESE X-ray pictures show a considerable degree of porosity of your bones. I do not find any evidence of bony spurs to explain your pain. I am not able to say whether porosity of bones could cause your pain. But I think some other explanation must be sought. Have you been drinking enough milk? I suggest you increase the cheese, milk, butter, oatmeal, whole grains, and nuts in your dietary."

These statements, made by a physician to his patient, will serve as a text for a dissertation on the need of stored minerals in the human body.

Lime is to be found in the blood and in all other tissues and in this liquid form keeps the nervous system on its keel and performs other useful services. So necessary is it that nature carries a surplus stored in various places, but available if need arises. The principal place of storage is the bones, in which location it serves as stiffener and a source of strength. Even in the bones the storage of lime is not permanent and unchangeable. On the contrary, the warehouse is being drawn on constantly for some of its lime, while new sacs of the mineral are being daily unloaded into it. Even the lime in the teeth is checked out at times to some extent. A pregnant woman generally needs more lime than she gets in her daily diet. Hence the loss of one tooth for each baby—a fact well known to lay people for centuries.

Iron is another mineral which serves a most useful purpose when it circulates in available form, and a reserve of which is stored in the body. Rather more than any other mineral the iron supply is reused not once but repeatedly. When the iron pots become worn they are rushed to the second hand shops for old iron, melted down, recast into new utensils, and put back into use.

However, there is a little waste in spite of the Scotch characteristics of our physical makeup. This calls for a slight daily intake. The surplus is kept in the storage warehouses. Since a baby's food is very poor in iron he draws on his stored iron daily. By the time baby reaches six months of age he has often bankrupted his savings account and the once lobster red infant has become pale—almost lily white.

It is now accepted that the human body needs a small amount of copper. The quantity needed is so small that there is no way of ascertaining how much of the stock on hand is kept in storage and how much is in actual circulation. What is known on the subject indicates that copper behaves like iron, and, probably like iron, some of it is in solution and is in daily use, while a reserve is kept in the vaults.

There is some reason for thinking manganese belongs in the class with iron and copper. Some of it is a necessary ingredient of the diet, but the total required for use and for storage is small. When man lived close to nature he was not often reminded of his mineral needs. His foods were coarser and he ate them without much fabrication, getting a sufficiency of minerals as a matter of course. Now that we live on a higher level and our foods are more elaborately prepared for the market and for the table, there is need to do some planning if the daily intake of minerals is to be ample.

To supply enough lime to keep the nerves calm, and to keep the bones and teeth of good quality, we need especially cheese, milk, and butter. To keep up the supply of iron we need the yellow of eggs, meats, and green vegetables; of iodine, sea foods of one kind or another.

JAUNDICE.

E. S. B. writes:

1. Could you advise me what will clear up yellow, bloodshot eyes? I am bothered with liver and gall bladder trouble, and am told that this brings on the trouble.

2. I have had a sore throat for three months. I gargle salt water. It seems to stay on the left side, never leaving entirely. Will this condition cause mastoid?

REPLY.

1. I judge you have jaundice due to gallstones or infection of the gall bladder. Turkish baths and other hot baths are of service in getting rid of jaundice. Have your physician decide which gall bladder disorder underlies your trouble. Carefully regulated eating is of service in most cases of infected gall bladder.

2. Probably not. Have you cheesy masses in that tonsil?

ATTACHMENT OR GARNISHMENT!

Aurora, Ill., June 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An attachment was served on me a year ago by a party who claimed I owed him money. The case has come up for trial several times, but was always postponed by plaintiff. My money is still held by the company which I worked for at that time and upon which the attachment was served. 1. How long is this attachment legal and binding upon this company? 2. Without forcing the issue regarding the postponed trial, can I now force the company to release the money? H. E. J.

1. Technically, attachment must be based on the defendant being a nonresident or on other exceptional facts. It seems probable that you mean something different from what you say, but we do not understand what it is that you do mean. If the creditor has served a garnishment demand notice without first securing judgment against you, then this notice should have been ignored from the first.

2. We cannot advise without knowing the facts. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

RAILROAD FENCES.

Chicago, June 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there a law compelling railroads to keep a fence along their right of way passing through residential properties? If so, who should enforce it? At the time we bought our property the fence was in good shape, but it has now rotted away. A representative of the railroad promised they would build another fence, but they have not done so. A. C. O.

The act of 1874 relating to the fencing of railroad properties provides in section 1 that every railroad shall erect and maintain fences on both sides of its road sufficient to prevent cattle and hogs or other stock from coming on such railroad, and when such fences are not kept in good repair such railroad shall be liable for all damages.

Sections 3 and 4 provide that whenever a railroad corporation shall neglect to build or repair such fences the owner or occupant may give notice in writing to build such fences within ten days, and if the party so notified shall refuse may enter and build such fences and recover double the value thereof. FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

GENEVA.—The disclosures regarding Dr. Arthur Hoffman's connection with Robert Grimm, a Socialist, who tried to induce Russia to make a separate peace with Germany, led to excited protest meetings and pro-ally demonstrations last evening that culminated in a descent on the German and Austro-Hungarian consulates. These were stoned and their windows smashed before the police could interfere.

NEW YORK.—Germany's undersea war on British, allied, and neutral shipping has again reached alarming proportions. The week's losses in British shipping were the highest in tonnage for six weeks. The latest figures—for the week now ended—show twenty-seven British vessels of over 1,600 tons and five under 1,600 tons sunk. Since the middle of April, when the undersea boat activity recorded its highest toll, 303 British vessels, of which 220 measured more than 1,600 tons, were sunk.

PETROGRAD.—The provisional government has begun to take severe measures against the highest officials of the old régime, who are declared to be guilty of breaches of the laws of the empire. Former Prime Minister Sturmer M. Kruizhanovsky, former secretary of the empire; M. Chtcheglovitoff, former minister of justice; former Gov. Kourloff, Gen. Rennenkampf, and M. Protopopoff, former minister of the interior, are a few of those taken into custody.

WAR SUMMARY.—President Wilson has issued a call for 70,000 volunteers, between 18 and 40 years old, to complete the regular army, June 23-30 being recruiting week. Labor leaders warned the President that a general strike may come unless high price of living is reduced by early legislation. Secretary of Navy Daniels charged that vice at Newport, R. I., perils naval recruits. London reports the recapture of positions lost to the Germans east of Monchy-le Preux. Counter attacks north of Souchez river were repulsed. Paris reports continued heavy artillery fire along the Champagne front, with vicious German attacks repulsed. Rome reports resumption of the Italian offensive, the capture of Austrian positions on Monte Ortigara, in the Trentino, and the capture of more than 900 prisoners.

NEW YORK.—Eleven American aviators who decided not to join the American forces and go abroad with them are on their way to France to join the Lafayette escadrille. Among them are George C. Moseley and Dumaresq Spencer of Highland Park, Ill., and Allan F. Winslow of River Forest, Ill. Moseley and Winslow are Yale graduates.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—Is it possible to purchase Fair tickets by mail, and if so to whom do I write?

ANSWER—Address orders to William Ellis, ticket cashier, A Century of Progress Exposition. Money orders are preferred. If checks are sent tickets will not be mailed until the checks have cleared.

QUESTION—Is A Century of Progress Exposition awarding ribbons or gold medals for industrial exhibits at the Fair?

ANSWER—There are no competitive exhibits and therefore no awards of any kind.

JOHN PAUL JONES.

Chicago, Ill., June 14.—I do not break into print very often, but the letter written by one Robert Allen Sherwood attacking the character and naval ability of John Paul Jones was too much. Mr. Sherwood probably got his misinformation from some rabid Englishman who could not stomach the whippings Jones gave the English navy.

True, Lord Nelson was a gentleman, a trained sea officer and an admiral of distinction, but so was Jones, except that he was a rear admiral. At the age of eighteen he was a slave trader, but after two voyages he became so disgusted with this occupation that he sold his interest in the ship and embarked for England. The captain and mate died of fever during the voyage and Jones assumed command, bringing the vessel safely to port. The owners gave him 10 per cent of the cargo and made him captain of a merchantman. Pretty good for an ignoramus and third class sailor, as Mr. Sherwood puts it.

Returning to America, he was made a first lieutenant by the Continental congress. In 1776 he raided British shipping from Bermuda to Nova Scotia. For this he was promoted a captain. With the little Ranger he captured two forts at Whitehaven, and four days later encountered the British Drake, gave her a sound licking and took her to Brest. By this exploit he became a hero in the eyes of the French, just beginning a war with England. Later he captured two war vessels greatly superior to his—Serapis and the Countess of Scarbrough. Louis XVI. gave him a gold hilted sword and the royal order of military merit and made him chevalier of France.

In 1787 he returned to America and received a gold medal from congress in recognition of his services. In 1788 he entered the Russian service, but the jealous intrigues of Russian officers compelled him to remain in idleness while they plotted against him and even maliciously assailed his private character. He left Russia bitterly disappointed and retired to France, where he remained during the rest of his life. His body remained in France for some years and was finally transferred to America by a fleet of American warships.

Jones was a seaman of great bravery and technical ability, and charges by the British that he was a pirate were particularly galling to him. He was noted for his pleasant manners and was welcomed into the most brilliant courts of Europe.

The Encyclopædia Britannica states that "Romance has played with the memory of Paul Jones to such an extent that few accounts of his life are correct."

Mr. Sherwood, no doubt, read one of the incorrect accounts of this great man. ERNEST J. LOEHRL.

WE THOUGHT WE HAD MENTIONED IT.

Chicago, June 14.—Quoting from Mr. Pegler's article on Mr. Will Carey in today's CHICAGO TRIBUNE:

"So now we have Mr. Carey definitely out of Madison Square Garden after seeing the big store through the worst of the present panic, which may prove to have been only a practice panic for the main event when the time comes to pay for spending the country out of the depression."

This expression from Mr. Pegler is truly a subject meriting a strong editorial address to the American people before his prediction comes to pass. WILLIAM PRESTON.

CONCESSIONS IN THE FOREST PRESERVES.

Chicago, June 14.—The recent action of President Emmett Wheelan and the board of Cook county forest preserve commissioners in protecting the Elk Grove preserve from further applications for special concessions is welcomed by all friends of the county's forest preserves.

The policy of keeping the entire area of all of the preserves open to all of the people rather than granting special concessions and setting aside restricted areas to special groups has been carefully considered by all of the important outdoor and civic organizations interested in the preserves. The policy now being followed in this respect by the present administration has been unanimously approved by all friends of the preserves, including such groups as the City Club of Chicago, the Prairie club, the Women's City club, Friends of Our Native Landscape, Chicago Woman's club, the Conservation council, and many others.

If special organizations interested in the outdoor opportunities which the preserves afford wish to locate cabins or other facilities near the preserves, these can easily be acquired at reasonable cost on private lands directly adjacent to the preserves without infringing on either the tracts themselves or sound public policy.

It is to be hoped that the recent decision of the forest preserve commissioners with respect to new concessions in Elk Grove will be followed up by steps to eliminate the unwise and undesirable concessions granted in the past and still restricting the public rights and interests in the preserves. ARTHUR FISHER.

SERVICE MEN'S CLAIMS.

Lafayette, Ind., June 16.—Can it be that some persons think the disabled veterans so completely discredited and crushed by so-called economy propaganda that their service connection may be severed, the pittance they receive reduced to almost nothing and their cries ignored? No doubt ruthless economy aimed principally at the disabled veteran looks easy, just like taking candy from a baby. Taking candy from a baby requires no high quality of courage. But in this case the baby's friends will not stand for it. Evidently THE TRIBUNE does not realize what is being done to honest disabled veterans, many of whom fought in battle. The great confidence you express in the President's wisdom and in the inspiration of his advisers seems to center mostly in their handling of the rights and lives of disabled ex-service men and their dependents. We have noted and shall continue to note with interest what THE TRIBUNE thinks of this same wisdom and this same brand of inspiration in the forcing and handling of numerous other experimental and tax raising projects. WARNER A. ROSS.

HIGHER THAN THE SKY RIDE.

Dolton, Ill., June 16.—In today's TRIBUNE you have an item which states that the towers of the Sky Ride at the Fair grounds are 628 feet tall and that they are the highest structures west of New York. The smokestack at the Washoe smelter of the Anaconda Copper Mining company located at Anaconda, Mont., is 685 feet high above top of foundations. The horizontal dimensions are likewise of immense proportions, 75 feet inside diameter at the base and 60 feet at the top.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Christian friends of the pageant drama, "The Romance of a People," which will climax Jewish day at A Century of Progress on July 3, yesterday were told how the spectacle was first conceived. About 60 members of the Christian committee met with leaders of the general committee at the City club to plan further coöperation in the event.

Judge Harry M. Fisher, general chairman of Jewish day, recalled the problem presented when the question of Jewish participation in the Exposition was first considered. He explained that instead of trying to depict Jewish progress during one century, it was decided to show how a great idea had been kept alive during 40 centuries.

Quotes Prophet Isaiah.

"That idea, summarized by the prophet Isaiah—'at the end of days all peoples shall be coming to the mountain of the Lord'—will be portrayed," Judge Fisher said, "in a mighty spectacle of color, dance, music, and light, which we have named 'The Romance of a People.'"

Judge John P. McGoorty, chairman of the committee of Christian friends, presided at the luncheon. He spoke enthusiastically of the response from leaders of all religious groups in support of the Jewish day program.

George W. Dixon, chairman of the religious committee of the World's Fair, asserted that "a new day not alone of religious tolerance but of religious coöperation has dawned," and added "that Jewish day will go down in history as one of religion's most significant moments."

Bogan Also Speaks.

Supt. William J. Bogan of the public schools, declared the privilege granted to Christian friends to participate in the drama was an "opportunity for Christians to regain their self-respect." Other speakers were Clifford W. Barnes, founder of the Sunday Evening club; Dr. Paul Rader, evangelist, and Dr. J. M. Artman.

The Jewish day committee held a reception for Isaac Van Grove, director of the pageant, at the Palmer house last night. More than 1,000 members of the 300 organizations cooperating in the production were present. Previews of some pageant scenes were staged, with Mr. Van Grove as accompanist, assisted by Emman Lagaroff Schaver of the Tel Aviv Opera company of Palestine

WILLIAMS' NEW OCEAN PLANE TO BE AT AIR RACES

Roger Q. Williams, who flew the Pathfinder from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome in 1929, arrived in Chicago yesterday to discuss his plans for a second flight to Rome this summer. This flight is to originate in Chicago about July 24 and will include one stop for gasoline, at New York City. Williams also announced that he will bring his new ocean flying plane to the American air races, to be held at Chicago airport July 1, 2, 3, and 4.

In addition to the flight from Chicago to Rome, he has made plans to continue that flight to Athens, Greece, and to Dublin, Ireland, where he plans to take off about Aug. 18 for a nonstop flight to Chicago. Williams said he hopes to pioneer a fast mail and express service to Europe in the flights he has planned this summer.

The plane he is having built for the flights will be powered by a Wright cyclone motor of 700 horsepower. Williams will be accompanied by a radio man and co-pilot.

Williams will be only one of many oceanic flyers at the American air races, which are sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Many famous foreign pilots and the leading American racing pilots will gather here for the four day spectacle.

Williams will describe his plans for two ocean flights, and his plans for participation in the American Air Races, over W-G-N tonight.

Ex-Boxer Forfeits $12,500 Bond on Robbery Charge

The $12,500 bond of Samuel Taran of St. Paul, former boxer, known in the ring as Sam Terrin, was forfeited yesterday by Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry when Taran failed to appear for hearing on a fugitive warrant charging him with taking part in the $175,000 holdup of a bank in Fairbury, Neb. Taran was arrested on June 5 in the Edgewater Beach hotel, where he had gone on his honeymoon following his marriage the night before to a Chicago girl.

26 FALSEHOODS FOUND IN WORLD WAR PROPAGANDA

Twenty-six major falsehoods formed the main content of the world war propaganda and even now, more than fourteen years after the signing of the armistice, these "obvious lies" still find credence, Prof. Ralph H. Lutz of Stanford university declared yesterday at the institute of the Norman Wait Harris foundation at the University of Chicago.

The institute is considering the theme of "The Formation of Public Opinion in World Politics." As chairman and director of the Hoover war library at Stanford, a library reputed to contain the greatest collection of war propaganda in existence, Prof. Lutz was chosen to discuss "The Propaganda of the World War."

"The purpose of all war propaganda," he said, "is to increase the national fighting zeal and to establish in the national consciousness the humanitarian aim of the belligerents. Such propaganda is made effective through censorship and a measure of social control.

First War Propaganda.

"The first war propaganda recorded is that of Sun Tzu, who set forth his principles in his 'Art of War,' the oldest military manual known, written 2,400 years ago. War propaganda did not reach a scientific footing, however, until the world war.

"In the world war, propagandists fought battles for control of human opinions on the mental, moral, and economic fronts, just as armies fought for supremacy on the battle fronts. Their propaganda was organized to predict the certainty of victory, and was unaffected by temporary reverses, by food shortages and other disabilities.

"In attempting to control enemy opinion, the world war propagandists distinguished between the enemy government and the enemy people proper. They emphasized the certainty of ultimate victory by their side and stressed the futility of resistance.

Germans Take Offensive.

"The Germans took the offensive in the world war propaganda struggle, and thereby had the advantage of the allied powers. The imperial German government saw the war of opinion that would arise and were quick to invite military correspondents and publishers to visit the German lines.

"In their propaganda for foreign consumption, the Germans contrasted the strong and peaceful purposes of Germany with the reckless ferocity of the allies and maintained that Germany was fighting a defensive war. The allies, on the other hand, played up the plight of Belgium, the viciousness of submarine warfare, and the militaristic idea of German life.

"The most effective American theme in wartime propaganda was not originally envisioned as propaganda—Woodrow Wilson's fourteen points. The propagandist effect of the fourteen points exceeded all expectations. Both neutral and enemy countries were told that under the Wilson leadership the war might be made to serve a sublime purpose for all mankind."

FORMER KAISER ESCAPES DEATH ON RAIL TRACKS

AMSTERDAM, June 20.—(AP)—The former Germain kaiser had a narrow escape from death while motoring recently in Holland. This was revealed today.

His automobile was crossing railroad tracks between Amsterdam and Haarlem when the bars were let down automatically at the moment when Wilhelm's motorcar was on the tracks.

One of the heavy bars hit the machine, damaging it considerably. The chauffeur was able to [illegible]e the car from the tracks only a few seconds before a train hurtled past.

WHEN MME. LYOLENE ASKED FOR THE SCISSORS WE KNEW SHE MEANT BUSINESS

When a Paris designer comes to America it is usually for just one thing—to see America. But Mme. Lyolene wasn't in Field's twenty-four hours before she asked for the scissors—felt of all the fabrics she could lay her hands on and set to work. The audience watched her breathlessly while she draped, cut away, twisted and pinned . . . in less than two hours a bicycle suit—an exotic color tennis dress . . . a slithering evening gown . . . swept into life.

So inspired by the American scene—Mme. Lyolene was in a high heat of genius when she created these dresses just for us. And we are thrilled to be able to present the first . . .

Chicago Federal Official Thinks Democrats Safe.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—It's really a very nice office. Freshly painted woodwork and a brand new rug; tasteful draperies and a comfortable couch. And Mr. M. S. Szymczak was well pleased when he arrived here from Chicago and hung up his hat in this office, over at the treasury, and settled down for work as a new member of the federal reserve board.

But the office is haunted. We have the solemn word of old Cap Dyson, dusky messenger who's general handy man and messenger over at the federal reserve board. Ever since the afternoon of Nov. 29, 1930, when Federal Reserve Member Edward H. Cunningham of Iowa dropped dead at the very desk which Mr. Szymczak now uses, Dyson has been uneasy about the office. He was sure he heard a ghost in there.

"Seen" by Messenger.

Duty kept summoning him into the room, and he went, gingerly and against his will. Then one winter evening, when the shadows were playing about the treasury and most of the office force had gone home Dyson took a peek, just a tiny peek into the office.

"And there, I swear to God, miss, there I seen the ghost of ole Mr. Cunningham a-rollin' and a-tossin' on that couch. Yassir. It was him; I swear to God it was him."

Since that evening nobody, not even the secretary of the treasury, could persuade Dyson to take another peek into the room.

During the recent bank holiday, when federal reserve members were working into the dawn, a young woman stenographer, dead for sleep, slipped down the corridor, found this room empty and darted in to catch a cat nap on the big couch. Suddenly she heard a screech that sent the chills down her spine. She jumped up, looked around. At the door stood Dyson. He shook a trembling finger at her.

"Miss, for the love of God, miss, don't stay in this room; it's got the hants."

But she was sleepy and insisted.

All Democrats Safe.

He made her turn on all the lights, while he, courageously but timidly, patrolled the corridor so the ghost would be warned away.

Mr. Cunningham, who was appointed to the board May 5, 1923, dropped dead over his desk. He was a Republican and his Republican successor was Wayland Wells Magee of Nebraska, who was appointed May 18, 1931, to fill out the unexpired ten year term, and who was not reappointed when the Democrats came in.

Just another example of the bad luck that follows the occupant of this room, Dyson maintains.

And does Mr. Szymczak worry about his nice office with the pretty draperies being haunted? He does not. Mr. Szymczak is a Democrat. He should be bothered, he figures, about a Republican ghost.

GIVES HUSBAND A BOAT; SAYS IT LURES HIM AWAY

Mrs. Esther Thurston bought her husband a $10,500 cabin cruiser to grace his position as commodore of the South Shore Power Boat club, but she did not expect him to make the boat his home, she complained yesterday in a divorce bill filed in the Circuit court against Lyman N. Thurston.

She charges, however, that he left their home at 7004 Oglesby avenue and lived on the boat for the last few months, where, she charges, he "wasted his time playing cards and keeping company with a number of women." She also charges him with repeated intoxication.

Judge Philip J. Finnegan issued an injunction yesterday restraining Thurston from disposing of the cruiser or of a substantial amount of securities which Mrs. Thurston charges he has in the Jackson Park National bank.

Mrs. Anderson's Libel Suit Will Go on Trial Today

The $500,000 libel suit of Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson against Ernest R. Graham, prominent architect, and Thomas McGuire, private detective, will go to trial today, according to arrangements made yesterday before Judge Michael L. McKinley. Attorney Charlotte Slavitt, representing Mrs. Anderson, who had asked for a three weeks' continuance that she might get service on Mr. Graham as a witness, withdrew her request and agreed to an immediate trial when attorneys said that both defendants would be in court today.

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—A "royal" sculptor has hove on the Washington scene and is pursuing the novel task of preparing a gallery of molded likenesses of the President, his whole cabinet and leaders of the administration.

The artist, Nison Tregor, a young Russian ten years in the United States, has already fashioned heads of Prof. Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state and one of the principal advisers to President Roosevelt; James A. Farley, postmaster general, and Marvin H. McIntyre, assistant secretary to the President.

Roosevelt Consents to Sit.

Mr. Roosevelt, admiring the remarkably expressive bust done of Mr. McIntyre, agreed to sit for the sculptor when the President returns from his vacation two weeks hence.

Tregor's subjects have been done while they worked, in their offices of state, and the sculptor declares this is the secret of his success—that their most characteristic expressions may be caught while they are in their normal environment much better than while in the stilted, uneasy attitude of a formal pose.

Exhibited at Fair.

After completing the President, Tregor plans to do the rest of the cabinet, and then, in fitting ceremonies, the Roosevelt head will be presented to A Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, while all the heads, in a gallery, will be placed on exhibition at the Fair. Arrangements for this exhibition are being made by friends of the artist in Chicago, and Tregor himself expects to go there tomorrow.

The sculptor is well known in artistic circles in Chicago. He has done busts of Edward N. Hurley and Vincent Bendix, and fashioned a head of Knute Rockne after the death of the famous coach, which has a place of honor at Notre Dame.

Tregor also has created likenesses of Henry Ford, Count Felix von Luckner, Marshal Haig, and other well known personages.

THREE VETERAN SENATORS ILL FROM OVERWORK

Washington, D. C., June 20.—(AP)—Three veteran senators were under the care of physicians tonight, two of them in hospitals, suffering from ailments traceable directly or indirectly to the rigorous special session of congress which wound up last week.

Most seriously ill, apparently, was Senator George [Dem., Ga.], whose friends said he was suffering from "a touch of pneumonia." Naval hospital physicians announced, however, that he had gone through a "very satisfactory day."

Senator Lewis [Dem., Ill.] was in Garfield hospital tonight, but his physician, Dr. Francis Hagner, said his condition was not serious. Dr. Hagner said the Illinois senator was at the hospital for a few days of observation in connection with recent ill health apparently aggravated by heavy work.

A third senator, Borah, [Rep., Idaho], was confined to his home for a few days, but it was reported at his office that his condition was not serious.

Appellate Court Rules Against Actor Keith

New York, June 20.—(AP)—The appellate division ruled today that bankruptcy proceedings of Ian Keith, stage and screen player, do not wipe out a Los Angeles court order directing him to pay $1,150 counsel fees to his divorced wife, Ethel Clayton Ross.

SERVE STATE, NOT SELF! GERMANY WARNS INDUSTRY

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 20.—"You stand in the service of the nation, not in the service of your purses. If you believe you can utilize your factories and plants for yourself the state will use thumb screws on you."

Johannes Engel, one of the newly appointed "trustees of labor," thus warned German employers at a meeting of 15,000 employés of the Berlin Traffic company at the sportpalast today.

"We do not think of reinstating Socialist and communist hatemongers," Engel assured the employers, "but whoever has terrorized others must put up with terrorism."

Get Dictatorial Powers.

The new "trustees of labor" conferred with Franz Seldte, reich minister of labor, today over their future activities. They will be endowed with dictatorial powers. It is reported that under the forthcoming labor law there will be no arbitrations by the state in labor disputes. The trustees will decide on questions of wages and discipline. They also will have jurisdiction over "protection of the cooperative ideal."

The Information news service reports that the trustees are "above all parties and interests and are only responsible to the state and its highest leader, Hitler."

Teach Girls Motherhood.

Meanwhile, the Fighting Association for Feminine Culture asserted that German women were robbed of their souls and womanly instincts in the previous liberal era. The association is the chief women's body in Germany today.

The leader of the "new" women, Guida Diehl, insists that women must concentrate on motherhood. She expressed the hope that the revival of "womanly life in Germany" would reform women of all nations.

"Young girls will be trained for their mission in life by a special compulsory year of national service in which they will learn housekeeping, motherhood and culture," she said.

To take care of "surplus women" new professions will be created, but all in the realm of the family. There will be a "family sister." She will help households with many children, teach motherhood in schools, and act as guides for homesteaders.

Guida Diehl and her followers also advocate restrictions in the sale of alcohol and purification of public amusements.

VIENNA, June 20.—(AP)—A roundup of Nazi leaders and a thorough searching of their homes were undertaken by the Austrian government tonight in its effort to stamp out allegiance to Chancellor Hitler of Germany in his native land.

Despite these drastic measures by the régime of Chancellor Dollfuss, bombings which terrorized the country most of last week, were resumed today, more telegraph wires were cut and Nazis in Innsbruck showed their contempt for the ban on the Nazi party emblem, the swastika, by wearing the old German colors—black, white and red—revived recently by the German Nazi government.

HIJACK 400 CASES OF BEER, KIDNAP TWO ON INDIANA HIGHWAY

Auburn, Ind., June 20.—(AP)—Two men driving a truck load of 400 cases of Milwaukee [Pabst] beer to Auburn reported to the De Kalb county sheriff today that their cargo was hijacked and they were kidnaped by five men who stopped them west of here this morning.

A. H. Thornton, driver, and R. E. Moeske, accompanying him, said five men in a large sedan crowded their truck to the side of the highway between Ligonier and Kendallville, Ind., at 4:30 a. m. Flourishing guns, three of the men pushed Thornton and Moeske into the sedan while the other two hijackers drove the truck away.

Throughout the day, Thornton told the sheriff, they were driven about the vicinity in the sedan, and about 5 p. m. their truck was returned, empty, to them near North Webster, Ind. They were instructed to drive on to Auburn without stopping, the gunmen following them a part of the way.

NEW LAWS ADD 7,000 TO 8,000 U. S. EMPLOYES

Used for Home Owners and Farm Credit Acts.

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—Between seven and eight thousand new employés will be put on the public pay rolls to administer the new home owner's loan act and the new farm credit act, it was learned today.

Hiring people in its new bureaus, the government continues to pare down its employment lists in the old departments, but one division which is safe from cuts is the bureau of internal revenue. Not one tax collector will be dropped.

Of the thousands of new employés who will be put on the pay rolls to staff the new home and farm credit bureaucracies, by far the larger share will go to the home owners' loan corporation being set up by the home loan bank board. William F. Stevenson, chairman of the board, indicated today that there might be 7,000 persons in this organization alone.

Average One in Every County.

In every county of the United States the new home mortgage corporation will have an appraiser and a lawyer, and there are 3,000 counties, Stevenson said. In addition there will be a general manager, a general counsel and a general appraiser for each state, with branch offices in some states. Everybody will be on a flat salary except the county lawyers and appraisers, who will be paid fees for each job.

The regional organization may vary somewhat, but, although there may be no county officers in some sections, there may be six or seven in other crowded counties, so that the average will be about one for each county.

Fewer for Farm Credit.

The farm credit outfit has less ambitious plans. It plans to add about 100 persons to care for mortgage refinancing applications, and perhaps another 100 for the staffs of local credit corporations. As far as possible, however, the existing land bank and seed loan staffs will be used.

Immunity from the economy ax which is slashing away in the old-line department was granted to the tax collectors by President Roosevelt himself upon the appeal of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin. To Woodin's way of thinking the tax collectors brought in the government's bread and butter, and were sorely needed in these lean times. Likening them to the sales force of an industry, he won the President, and the treasury got orders to make its economies elsewhere.

Bandits Disarm Two, Rob Currency Exch. of $2,000

Five bandits took $2,000 yesterday in a holdup of the La Salle Loan company, a currency exchange at 3459 South Michigan avenue, after disarming a guard and Maurice H. Wolpe, the manager. The loan company is in the former Franklin State bank, where a bang of Negro bandits killed a guard several years ago in a holdup, for which three of the gang were later electrocuted.

WIFE REPUDIATES CONFESSION OF OPAS DEATH PLOT

Mrs. Bessie Opas, 36 years old, mother of two children, who confessed Monday without show of emotion that she had hired four youths to murder her husband, as calmly repudiated the confession yesterday in the Hyde Park police station. In her original statement to police, Mrs. Opas, who lives at 1208 West 51st street, admitted that she planned the death plot in order to obtain $30,000 in life insurance carried by her husband, Marion Opas, owner of the Opas Motor Sales company at 5114 South Racine avenue.

The alleged plot was frustrated when Opas, who said that he became suspicious of the frequent visits of the youths to his sales room, seized a member of the gang and turned him over to police. The alleged hired assasins are held at the Stockyards police station after their confession that they were to receive $5,000 for the death of Opas. They are Dominick Zullo, 19 years old, 3226 Polk street; John De Salvo, 17 years old, 3103 Congress street; Angelo Masso, 21 years old, 518 South Central Park avenue, and Jerry Lehman, 18 years old 1959 Washburne avenue.

Shifts Blame to Boys.

Yesterday Mrs. Opas shifted the blame to the four youths with the statement: "I didn't have to kill him to get rid of him, I could have got a divorce. He beat me all the time."

"Two months ago those boys came to me," Mrs. Opas said. "They demanded money and said they were going to kill my husband if I didn't pay. I couldn't give them anything because I have no money. Then they threatened to kill me if I told him about it. I was afraid, so I didn't."

A charge of conspiracy to murder was placed against Mrs. Opas on the insistence of her attorney, Thaddeus G. Toudor, who appeared before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court seeking a writ of habeas corpus. Attorney Toudor charged that his client had been "framed" as a climax to a stormy married life of 18 years. He said that Mrs. Opas had been treated brutally by her husband and had started separate maintenance suits three times only to dismiss them and return to her husband.

Charges Husband with Plotting.

Later Attorney Toudor saw Mrs. Opas in the women's annex at the Hyde Park station, and quoted her as saying that her husband had conspired against her.

"Mrs. Opas claims she was conspired against by her husband," said the lawyer. "She says he had accused her of running around with different men and having no evidence, started this so he could get a divorce. She says there may be another woman in the case."

"I think she's crazy," Opas said yesterday afternoon. "She always had a car to drive, plenty of money, and good clothes. About a month ago she said, 'Let's go out and drink some beer because we never know how long we may live.' She looked at me when she said that. She ran away with a salesman once, but returned, and I thought she had settled down."

Tells of Slaving and Beatings.

"This is the first time in 18 years that I haven't had to work for some one," said Mrs. Opas as she lounged in the women's quarters at the Hyde Park station. "For eighteen years I slaved for my husband and got nothing for it but beatings."

Police said that the four youths, who are to appear with Mrs. Opas tomorrow in the Boys' court on charges of conspiracy to murder, admitted that Mrs. Opas had paid them $50 "as earnest money." The youths planned, police said, to kidnap Opas, hold him prisoner in a west side hotel, and kill him after collecting their fee from Mrs. Opas.

NAVY ACCEPTS AIRSHIP MACON; GOES TO COAST

Washington, D. C., June 20.—(AP)—The navy today officially accepted its new airship the Macon, and announced the ship will be commissioned June 23 at Akron, O., proceeding immediately to Lakehurst, N. J.

Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval aeronautics, will go to Akron to receive the ship formally and plans to fly with it to Lakehurst.

Under present plans, the sister of the ill fated Akron will remain at Lakehurst for several months, proceeding "not later than Oct. 20," to the naval air station at Sunnyvale, Cal.

The Macon's trial flights began April 21 and closed June 13 after a journey over Michigan and the Chicago World's Fair grounds. The next day, Secretary Swanson announced the trial board had recommended acceptance.

The Macon will be commanded by Commander Alger H. Dresel.

CAMP ALGONQUIN GREETS SEASON'S FIRST VISITORS

Will Have Two Weeks' Outing.

Camp Algonquin welcomed its first visitors of the summer late yesterday afternoon. The cool, shady acres, deserted since last September, rang once more with the shouts of happy youngsters released from the city's heat and turmoil. Mothers wandered about, gazing at the peaceful countryside as if they could not believe that a summer vacation had actually been given to them. They will have a two weeks' outing.

At 3:55 p. m. a Chicago and North Western train pulled out of the station carrying 140 mothers and children from underprivileged homes. Social workers from the United Charities were at the station to see them off. There was cheering and much shouting.

Greeted by Superintendent.

The guests were welcomed at the camp on the Fox river by Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent, and a staff of 25 counselors. Supper was ready and waiting. Afterwards each guest was assigned to a cottage or dormitory.

Today the camp will settle down to a routine program. There will be games and hikes and instruction for mothers on how to care for their babies. Clubs will be formed. There will be rest hours and good, nourishing food.

Tomorrow the second group of 140 will reach the camp, and on June 30 the division of undernourished children, who will remain all summer, will arrive. The camp's capacity is 500, including the counselors.

Camp Algonquin depends for most of its financial support on TRIBUNE readers. This custom was established in 1909 and ever since then loyal readers have generously contributed to the fund, giving vacation joys to 1,800 persons annually.

$187 Added to Fund.

Yesterday $187.49 reached the Camp Algonquin fund, giving it a grand total of $377.99. Most of this income was from the Abbie E. Tyrrell fund, a fund established before her death by an Oak Park school teacher, who realizes that country vacations in the summer make children better students in the winter.

Among the gifts was $1 sent by Paul Martin and Lester Lee Barnett, who gave a magic show for the benefit of the fund. The day's gifts are as follows:

CAMP ALGONQUIN FUND.

$2—E. A. M.
$1—Magic show.

Total $187.49

Grand total $377.99

The high temperatures of the last few days have increased the necessity for ice for underprivileged families where there are small children. Only $26 has been received since the last acknowledgment was made of gifts for this fund, which provides ice for needy families. The grand total is now $133.10. The latest gifts are as follows:

FREE ICE FUND.

$1—J. A.

Total ..... $ 26.00
Previously acknowledged 107.10

Grand total $133.10

Gifts should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower. All gifts are acknowledged in the columns of this newspaper.

Truck Carrying 41 Blind Persons Wrecked; 5 Killed

FREUNDENSTADT, Germany, June 20.—(AP)—Four blind men and one blind girl were killed and several blind passengers were injured today when a truck carrying 41 blind inmates of the Heilbronn convent catapulated down an embankment.

COUNTY WORKERS TO GET $500,000 IN CASH TODAY

County employés will get two weeks' pay, amounting to about $500,000, in cash today, and within a few days will get another month's pay in tax warrants, the county commissioners decided yesterday.

This will be the first time the county has used tax warrants for pay roll purposes. The pay roll to be met with warrants will be that for the month of January, and the county board intends to force all employés to accept the warrants. The school board and other governments which have paid in warrants in the past have usually made their acceptance optional upon the part of employés.

Face Only Small Discount.

Michael J. O'Connor, deputy county controller, told the commissioners yesterday, however, that the 1932 warrants to be used for the January pay roll are now selling at 98, so that employés will suffer only a slight discount in selling them. The present payment in warrants is in the nature of an experiment. If it is satisfactory the board plans to give employés three months' pay in 1933 warrants.

At present county employés are paid up to Nov. 15. The cash they get today will be for the last half of November. The commissioners were confident yesterday that they will soon be able to find cash to meet December pal rolls also.

Still Six Months Behind.

County workers will still have six and a half months' pay due them.

West park employés were eighteen months behind when the Republican park board left office. The civil service workers retained by the new board have had two months pay since March 1, but all of the old pay rolls are being scanned to weed out political pay rollers who did no work.

Lincoln park employés are paid up to Jan. 1, and those of the school board who work the year 'round had five and a half months' pay due them June 15. School teachers were owed a week less, since schools closed June 9.

The city has paid its employés up to March 1, and the sanitary district up to April 15. Of all the large local governments, only the south park board has its pay rolls up to date.

Boat with 2 Dead Aboard Picked Up by Coast Guards

Sandy Hook, N. J., June 20.—(AP)—The 45 foot trawler Avis G. Abel of Egg Harbor was picked up by coast guards two miles off Monmouth Beach early this afternoon with two dead men on board. A third man's distress signals brought the coast guard alongside. The lone survivor said he was Frank Myers of Atlantic City. Myers said he thought the two had died of carbon monoxide fumes.

Cloudburst Hits Liverpool; 8 Feet of Water in Streets

LIVERPOOL, England, June 21 [Wednesday].—(AP)—A violent storm, accompanied by a cloudburst, swept Liverpool and adjoining towns late last night and flooded some streets to a depth of eight feet. One drowning was reported. Streets over an area a mile square were under water here and hundreds of persons were marooned in the upper floors of their homes.

INHALES MOTOR GAS, DIES.

WARD LEADERS TO FACE QUIZ ON PARK PAY ROLLS

Calls Also Awaiting Many 'Temporary Workers.'

Eight Republican ward committeemen, charged with having boosted their precinct captains and ward heelers onto the west parks "gravy train" as temporary pay rollers during the administration of the former park board headed by W. R. James, are to be quizzed by the staff of State's Attorney Courtney, it was learned yesterday.

Subpoenas will be issued for them shortly, and for many of the 4,406 temporary appointees who worked or were supposed to work under the James régime. Henry Seyfarth and Thomas J. Strachan, assistants assigned to investigate the park scandal by State's Attorney Courtney, are understood to have requested a staff of policemen to serve the subpoenas.

Sponsorship Letters Missing.

The investigators have already, it is reported, completed case histories of the majority of the temporary pay rollers who helped pile up the debt load. The investigators have not been so fortunate, however, in their inquiry into the political sponsors of the temporary appointees. A majority of the sponsorship letters sent to the old board were destroyed before its successors took office, but letters which remained, it is understood, yielded the names of the following committeemen as prospects for questioning:

PAUL ROTHENBERG, 24th ward committeeman and a park pay roller himself.

JAMES VIGNOLA, 29th ward committeeman, also a pay roller.

FRANK A. HORRIGAN, 37th ward committeeman.

CHARLES J. MacGOWAN, 39th ward committeeman, who as superintendent for employment for the James board is charged with having put 150 residents of his ward on the pay roll, although the ward is outside the park district.

Find Employés Versatile.

The case histories of the temporary pay rollers represent an enormous amount of work on the part of the investigators, due to the numerous jobs given many individuals. Lists of some of the jobs held by a single employé indicate either that the park pay rollers were exceptionally versatile or that their political sponsors paid little attention to their qualifications for the jobs, investigators have said.

One man, first employed as a switchboard operator, was on the pay roll successively as a chauffeur, police operator, watchman, and head attendant. Another started as a special laborer and rose successively to the posts of timekeeper, gardener, low pressure fireman, and stationary engineer. A third was in turn a gardener, building inspector, and assistant engineer. Another was an electrical helper, rodman, foreman of road repairs, and foreman of laborers. Another was first a gymnasium instructor, then a chauffeur, and then a section foreman of boulevards. Another was employed as a timekeeper, attendant, low pressure fireman, and gardener.

Committeeman Horrigan yesterday sent a letter to Harry Joseph, president of the present park board, denying the charge made in President Joseph's recent report to Gov. Horner that furniture belonging to the park board had been removed to the 37th Ward Republican club. He purchased all of the furniture in the headquarters, in the name of the club, and has receipted bills for all his purchases, he stated.

2 U. S. Tars Lose Eyesight as Barrel of Lime Explodes

SLASH $71,000,000 BUDGET, IS ORDER TO SCHOOL HEADS

Suggestions Must Be Ready Friday.

Department heads of the public school system were directed yesterday to go over appropriations in the $71,000,000 budget for 1933 and suggest where savings may be made. Howard P. Savage, business manager, acting on orders of James B. McCahey, president of the school board, told the school officials to have their report ready by Friday.

After the department heads have submitted their recommendations a special committee of trustees will begin shaving down expenditures to offset a deficit of $8,000,000 for this year. The committee includes: Trustees Joseph P. Savage, William D. McJunkin, Charles W. Fry, Paul Drymalski and Joseph J. Salat. President McCahey will act as chairman.

Reductions for Future.

"I don't want to hear about savings made in the past," said Mr. McCahey. "What I want to know is where we can make reductions in the future."

Chief Engineer John Howatt summoney Joseph Spain, president of the school engineers' union; William McFetridge, president of the janitors' union, and Robert Tormey, an official of the school firemen's union, into conference yesterday. No statement was made after the conference, but it was reported that the discussion centered on the number of employés needed to operate the school plants, which was described as excessive. The union officials promised to bring in a new program on Friday.

Reduce Phone Service.

Mr. Howatt said that school telephone service is to be curtailed under the economy program. In 1932 there were 1,230,000 calls made over school telephones at a cost of $50,000. Mr. Howatt and Supt. William J. Bogan have forbidden the use of school telephones for personal calls. In addition all measured service phones will be taken out this summer to save a charge for three months, the first time this economy has been tried.

Another conference was held between Harry Brackett, school auditor, and John C. Christensen, architect, on savings to be effected in the bureau of repairs. The appropriation for this bureau in the 1933 budget is $1,025,000. According to Mr. Christensen the reduction of expenditures will take the form of elimination of positions and the postponement of many repair jobs.

PARLEY ON PRICE OF CREAM HELD UP FOR A WEEK

Negotiations between officials of the Pure Milk association, the bargaining agency for 18,000 dairy farmers in the Chicago area, and local milk companies, seeking to readjust prices paid to farmers for milk consumed as cream in Chicago and suburbs, have been postponed until June 28, it was announced last night.

A conference on the subject held in the Hotel La Salle yesterday is reported to have considered the testimony given before a legislative subcommittee in Chicago on Saturday. The testimony disclosed that dairy companies have been paying farmers "surplus" prices for the milk bought to be sold for table cream, and the cream has netted the dealers more per 100 pounds than the same amount sold as fluid milk.

A meeting of the dealers with officers of the milk wagon drivers' union was held at the La Salle hotel before the farmer-dealer conference. The drivers are working for the wages specified in their contract with the dealers which expired on May 1. Both negotiations are being held up to await the action of the federal government on a trade agreement submitted by the Chicago dairy interests under the new federal farm adjustment act.

BROKER JUMPS TO DEATH, SPURNING COAXING PLEAS

A porter, seeing him poised in the window, called to him.

The man replied, hysterically, "Close the door." The porter summoned Lee Barker, chief of the building's police and two other employés. Still poised on the window sill, the man refused to heed coaxing that he leave the window. Then, the porter said, he plunged to his death.

NORTHERN TRUST HIT BY JARECKI IN TAX CAMPAIGN

COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday totaled $306,185. The collections for the day and the total of uncollected taxes for four years as shown in the following table:

Uncollected .	19,278,826	50,587,550
	1930.	1931.
June 20.....$	90,941	$ 149,494

An information against the Northern Trust company as trustee for a tax delinquent property was ordered yesterday by County Judge Jarecki. He ordered Assistant State's Attorney William T. Crilly to make the information returnable Friday.

The property in question is located at 1561 Howard street. Attorneys representing George Moulopolous, the owner under the trust, said that he had given the trust company sums of money at various times to apply upon the back tax bill, which now totals $12,445. Recently, $991 was given the trust company to pay tax and other bills, the lawyers said, but the records showed no tax payment.

Taxes Come Before Debts.

"Make the Northern Trust company a defendant in the tax receivership," directed the judge, "and also prepare an information against the company. We must find out why these moneys have not been used to pay the taxes, which constitute a prior lien before all other debts."

Three properties were placed in receivership by the court, the county treasurer to collect income from them under the Kerner-Skarda act until the delinquent taxes are paid. The properties and the back taxes owed were: 512 South State street, $9,782; 179 North Wells street, $23,580; and 7715 North Hermitage avenue, $9,694.

Payments totaling $21,235 were made by four other property owners to avoid the appointment of tax receivers. The Arden Chemical company, 68 East Walton place, paid $14,235, in full settlement of all taxes; the 1037 Rush street property paid $5,500 on a delinquent tax bill of $11,417. Short postponements of receiverships were obtained by representatives of the 1201 North Dearborn street property, which paid $1,000 on a $15,720 bill, and the 119 East Cedar street property, which paid $500 on a $6,004 bill.

The call was comparatively light yesterday, but nearly 100 properties have been scheduled for receivership hearings today, among them several owned by J. L. Kesner, a leader in the tax strike.

Sue Apartment Buildings.

Several apartments in the Rogers Park and Edgewater residential sections were named in receivership suits filed in the County court by Assistant Corporation Counsel William A. Sullivan, aid to the county treasurer. Fifty petitions were filed under the Kerner-Skarda act against properties upon which the delinquent taxes total $385,168.

Representatives of the Textile building, 180 West Adams street, declared yesterday that taxes on the property had been paid and that it had no connection with the Textile building annex, 139 South Wells street, thrown into receivership by Judge Jarecki Monday.

RADIUM LIGHTS UP GRAVE UNTIL SKEPTIC ARRIVES

Noblesville, Ind., June 20.—[Special.]—A faint yellow light glimmered at night from a tombstone near here. Motorists drove cautiously past the cemetery, and, as in all graveyard mysteries, there was a legend.

The person whose body lies beneath the tombstone died of cancer, the story went. So much radium was used in treating the victim that its phosphorescent light illuminated the tomb.

Last night a reporter parked his car some 500 yards from the tombstone. Sure enough, a faint yellow light was seen around the stone. Other cars arrived and the occupants stared in amazement.

The investigator entered through the sexton's yard and walked more or less bravely to the tomb. The surface was polished black marble and it reflected a street light from Noblesville, a mile away.

TEACHERS JOIN FIGHT ON 15 PCT. TAX REDUCTION

Representatives of Chicago school teachers yesterday joined the legal fight against the board of tax appeals order for a 15 per cent cut in 1931 building assessments on homes and small flat buildings which the Illinois Supreme court recently upheld.

A petition for a rehearing in that case is now pending and the teachers are seeking to intervene through Attorney Allen Carter. Mr. Carter served notice yesterday on Attorney General Kerner that tomorrow he would file a petition at Springfield asking permission to appear as a friend of the court.

Mr. Carter represents 8,400 teachers. They oppose the 15 per cent cut, it is understood, because bankers have warned of the difficulty of selling school board tax warrants while the appeals board has the power to make horizontal tax cuts after taxes have been extended.

COUNTY'S COST OF IDLE RELIEF CUT 18 PER CENT

Increased Employment Is Shown in Report.

An increase in employment in the county was indicated yesterday in the announcement of Joseph L. Moss, director of the county bureau of public welfare, that $2,956,721 was expended for relief of the idle in May, compared with $3,609,614 in April. This is a decrease of $652,893, or 18 per cent. There was not a corresponding decrease, however, in the number of families on the relief rolls. There were 120,734 families on the list in May, as compared with 127,549 families in April, a decrease of only 5 per cent.

Food Prices Lower.

Aside from increased employment the two chief factors which accounted for lower relief expenditures, according to Mr. Moss, are the lower fuel requirements in May and reduced food prices.

The Illinois department of labor yesterday reported an increase in employment of 2.8 per cent in the Chicago metropolitan area and a pay roll increase of 8.2 per cent in May.

Despite the fact that April and May showed decreases in relief expenditures compared with preceding months, the figures for these months are still far in excess of those for April and May last year. In April, 1932, there were 55,484 families on the rolls and $1,518,066 was spent, and in May there were 66,402 families and $1,720,858 expenditures.

Ration Bids Opened.

Bids on relief rations were opened yesterday by the county board. These rations, which consist of staples exclusive of the regular grocery orders allowed the families, ranged from $3.34 a month for a ration for two people to $8.60 a month for a family of seven persons in the bids of Sprague, Warner & Co., the low bidder. Sprague, Warner & Co. specified that these bids apply only to the month of July, although bids were asked for the whole quarterly period beginning with July.

The bids were referred to the Illinois emergency relief commission with the board's recommendation to let the contracts to the lowest responsible bidder.

ROSE STOKES DIES; RADICAL LEADER IN U. S. FOR YEARS

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, Germany, June 20.—(AP)—Rose Pastor Stokes, whose radical activities in the United States brought her several terms in prison and a millionaire husband, died of heart disease today in the Frankfort Municipal hospital. She was 54.

The body will be cremated and the ashes sent back to New York, where in the early years of the century her social work made her known as the "Rose of the Ghetto."

Mrs. Stokes, who was divorced in 1925 from James Graham Phelps Stokes and later married Isaac Romaine, a labor leader, entered the hospital here on April 15 and was operated on for cancer.

Rose Pastor Stokes was born in Russia, and in her early years came with her family to London, whence they emigrated to the United States. They went first to Ohio and then settled in New York, where the young girl went to work in a cigar factory. She married Mr. Stokes, millionaire Socialist, in 1905. She was indicted in Chicago in 1920 with 85 communists on charges of violating the Illinois anti-sedition law.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Safe at Home

PAUL KESTER, NOTED AUTHOR, IS DEAD IN NEW YORK AT 62

Mohegan Lake, N. Y., June 20.—(AP)—Paul Kester, author of romantic plays, died today after a short illness. He was 62 years old.

Many of his dramas were played in Europe and Australia by Julia Marlowe, Lily Langtry, and Ada Rehan. His first play, "The Countess Roudine," was produced in 1892 by Mme. Modjeska, with Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske in the title rôle.

Alexander Salvina appeared in his next effort, "Zamar," and its successor, "The Student of Salmanca," adapted from the Spanish. "Sweet Nell of Old Drury" was first produced in England and was brought to America in 1900 by Mlle. Rhea and Ada Rehan.

Julia Marlowe gave "When Knighthood Was in Flower" its London debut in 1901 after Kester had dramatized the book. Kester followed these successes with a long line of romantic comedies, among them "The Cavalier" and "Mademoisalle Mars."

Kester, a cousin of William Dean Howells, was born in Delaware, O. Many of his earlier plays were written in collaboration with his brother, Vaughan Kester.

RITES TODAY FOR W. T. M'ELVEEN, PULPIT VETERAN

Funeral services for the Rev. William T. McElveen, former pastor in Evanston and Chicago, will be held at 4:30 o'clock today in the chapel at Graceland cemetery. The Rev. Mr. McElveen died Sunday in Atlanta, Ga., where he was pastor of the Central Congregational church. He was 65 years old.

The Rev. Mr. McElveen spent more than 20 years in service in the Chicago area. He was pastor of the Shawmut church of Chicago from 1902 to 1908, when he accepted the position of pastor at the First Congregational church of Evanston and served there for 10 years. He left Chicago for New York in 1918 and returned to serve as pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church of Englewood from 1926 to 1930.

The Rev. Mr. McElveen was active in civic affairs and at one time held the position of president of a board of eduction in Evanston. He was one of the founders of the National Congregational brotherhood. Known as an "outspoken minister," the Rev. Mr. McElveen once shocked a Portland congregation with the statement that "if a minister thinks a man is a damn fool he has as much right to say so as any one else." He is survived by his widow, Helen, and a daughter, Mrs. Eva L. Krumsick of Glencoe.

BRITAIN GREETS IRAQ KING AMID ROYAL SPLENDOR

Has 2 Motives: Oil and Air Fields.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 20.—A high pressure welcome wound up in reams of gold braid and garnished with airplanes, warships and bands marked the arrival in Great Britain today of King Feisal of Iraq. He was greeted by King George, the prince of Wales, the duke of York, the duke of Gloucester and the entire corps of government officials in levee uniform.

King Feisal is in Britain on a state visit. He will remain at Buckingham palace as a guest of state for two days. Later the ruler will tour the country and inspect the army and navy as a guest of the British government.

Not for years have so many royal governmental and civic attentions been showered on a visitor. Neither have there been many visits of such importance to the British empire.

Two Questions Behind Welcome.

While royalty and officialdom swarmed around the swarthy little Arabian, there were present in the background two vital questions—the Mosul oil fields and the British royal air force landing fields on the imperial air route to India.

Now that Iraq is an independent country, the British mandate having been given up, it is essential to maintain the friendliest relations possible between the two nations and Feisal's visit is an expression of good will to the British.

On the way across the English channel Feisal's ship was met by four British destroyers. Nine army airplanes circled overhead. The duke of York, the king's second son, met King Feisal at Dover and escorted him aboard the royal train to London.

Waiting at the platform of Victoria station were the king in a field marshal's uniform, the prince of Wales dressed as a colonel of the Welsh guards, the duke of Gloucester as captain of the Hussars, Prime Minister MacDonald, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon, and other cabinet ministers and Lord Allenby.

Wears Golden Spurs.

Wearing a spotless white tunic, dark trousers heavily braided with gold and golden spurs, King Feisal alighted. He shook hands with the king and to the crashing of royal salutes entered a royal carriage and was escorted my mounted guards to the palace.

Soon afterward Feisal drove to Westminster Abbey and placed a wreath at the tomb of the unknown soldier. Then he drove to St. James's palace to receive a deputation from the city of Westminster and an illuminated scroll bearing the Westminster and Iraq arms intertwined.

Tonight there was a state banquet at Buckingham palace at which Feisal was the guest of the king and queen.

TWO BADLY HURT IN EXPLOSION AT CHEMICAL PLANT

Two men were burned and otherwise severely injured by an explosion yesterday afternoon in the plant of the North Shore Coke and Chemical company on the lake at the north end of Waukegan.

The victims are Joseph Beyer, 60 years old, 232 South Lincoln avenue, and Spencer S. Graves, 34 years old, 1125 Chestnut street, Waukegan. They were repairing a large gas meter in an isolated brick shed when the explosion occurred. The walls were torn away and the two men were hurled about 30 feet. It is believed that a gas packet collected around a leak and was set off when one of them, tapping a pipe with a wrench, made a spark.

At the Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan it was said the condition of Beyer was critical last night.

Clara M. Schevill Service to Be Held Today at U. of C.

A memorial service for Mrs. Clara M. Schevill, wife of Prof. Ferdinand Schevill of the University of Chicago, will be held at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the university chapel. Mrs. Schevill died Saturday in her summer home near Michigan City. The memorial service is held as a recognition by the university of the musical work of Mrs. Schevill in university circles. She was the contralto soloist at the university chapel for five years.

Dies of Broken Back After Helper Falls Upon Him

Ralph Holden, 50 years old, 8224 Ellis avenue, died yesterday in St. Bernard hospital of a broken back suffered Saturday at his summer home near Allegan, Mich. Holden and another man, Manus Blackburn, 25 years old, were putting a radio aerial in a tree in front of the house. Blackburn fell from the tree and struck Holden, who was standing below.

Matthew White, died Jan. 5. Estate, $11,500, to widow, Izora White. The Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company is executor.

CLARA ZETKIN IS DEAD; LEADER OF GERMAN REDS

MOSCOW, June 20.—(AP)—Clara Zetkin, for years a communist member of the German reichstag and once candidate for the presidency, died in a sanatorium near Moscow last night. She was in her 76th year and death was ascribed to natural causes.

Since 1924 Frau Zetkin spent most of her time in Russia although repeatedly elected to the reichstag. She made a trip to Berlin last year to preside, as its oldest member, over the opening session. At the time she demanded the impeachment of President von Hindenburg and of the members of the cabinet.

Frau Zetkin died in her sleep in Archangelskoye, near Moscow, where she had made her home since June 1932.

Dr. Frank Nagel Sr. of U. S. Health Service Is Dead

Dr. Nagel, who lived at 1407 Addison street, is survived by his widow and two sons, Dr. Frank Nagel Jr. and James P. Nagel. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the chapel at 2742 Lincoln avenue, with burial in Acacia Park cemetery.

Founder of British Society in America Dies at 84

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Mrs. J. Elliot Langstaff, founder and president of the Daughters of the British Empire in the United States and honorary president of the Needlework Guild of America, died today at her home in Stony Brook, Long Island. She was 84 years old.

WILLIAM WALLER IS DEAD; RETIRED REALTY BROKER

William Waller, retired coal and real estate man, died yesterday of a heart attack in his home at 1117 North Dearborn street. Mr. Waller was 76 years old. The family announced that the funeral services would be private.

Born in Lexington, Ky., Mr. Waller came to Chicago as a boy with his parents. He was graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic institute at Troy, N. Y., in 1879. Upon his return to Chicago he entered the real estate firm of Waller & Co. and later became president of the Waller Coal company. Ill health forced his retirement from business three years ago.

Mr. Waller is survived by two daughters, Mr. Edward Harris Brewer and Mrs. Howard O'Brien, and one son, William Jr., all of Chicago. He was a member of the Chicago and University clubs and the Chicago Athletic association.

Morris Lazar Dies; Veteran in Plumbing Supply Trade

Morris Lazar, 53 years old, who had been engaged in the plumbing supply business on the south side for 30 years, died suddenly yesterday of heart disease as he was walking to the garage behind his home at 7743 Phillips avenue. His widow, Mrs. Rose Lazar, a daughter, Mrs. Lottie Kreilewich, and five sons, Bernard, Julius, Irving, Edward, and Leonard, survive. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock today in the chapel at 3125 West Roosevelt road, with burial in Waldheim cemetery.

Alumni of Country Day School to Present Vaudeville Show

"Touch and Go" to Be Given Saturday Night in Winnetka; Has Many Original Tunes.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A GROUP of north shore young people who all went to the North Shore Country Day school in Winnetka are busy this week rehearsing for an old fashioned vaudeville show that they are going to give Saturday night at 8:15 o'clock in the auditorium of the school. "Touch and Go" is the title of the show, which takes its name from the title of a song written by Larry Burr, and which the score or more of Country Day school alumni who are going to be in the show anticipate will be a decided hit.

Edwin M. Ashcraft III., better known as Squirrel, who used to be one of the stars of the Princeton Triangle club, has written some original tunes and lyrics, and Eleanor Sherman, a daughter of the Roger Shermans, will play the piano in several scenes, including one in which the "dancing debs" will be featured. Francis Moore and Thomas Dammann are rehearsing the orchestra and Mrs. Ayres Boal Jr. is coaching the chorines.

Mrs. Scott J. Dow Jr. (Louise Badgerow), John Davis and Larned Blatchford are to be headliners, and some of the chorus girls will be Miss Susan Badgerow, Miss Evelyn Bouscaren, the three Street sisters, Katharine, Jeanné and Marjorie; Miss Antoinette Lackner, Miss Virginia Hobart, Miss Mira Lee Benoist, Miss Louise Lackner and Miss Helen Walcott.

In the male chorus will be Percy Davis, Frank Blatchford, Thomas Boal and George B. Massey Jr. In addition to the song and dance numbers and the usual skits, Pierre Bouscaren will do a strong man act. Handsome young Mr. Bouscaren was a great athlete at Yale, where he was graduated last June, and he went to the Olympic games in Los Angeles last summer.

There is to be just the one performance of "Touch and Go," and the tickets, which cost "six bits" and the proceeds of which will go to the alumni association of the school, are going rapidly, according to all reports.

Third Week of Concert Series

Another gala evening at the old Auditorium, so alive and so much a part of Chicago's musical and social life again, with the third week of the symphony orchestra concerts sponsored by the Friends of Music. Before the concert, dinner parties galore, with the Howard Linns and the junior Edward A. Cudahys giving a joint party at the Casino for the Karl Kreugers (he is to be the guest conductor tonight) and Mrs. John N. Stearns Jr.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 20.—[Special.]—The new American minister to Rumania, Alvin M. Owsley, who is here for final instructions before taking up his new duties, was entertained at dinner last evening by the Rumanian minister, Charles A. Davila.

Mrs. William Fitch Kelley of Aurora, Ill., and Washington, has opened her country home, The Knole, on the Rockville pike.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davis have taken a house at Watch Hill for the season. They will motor to Chicago for the Exposition, accompanied by their daughters, Miss Rachel and Miss Emlen Davies, and will go to Watch Hill upon their return from Chicago.

Mrs. Kreuger, the former Emita Jewett, is Mrs. Linn's cousin, and Mrs. Stearns, the former Alice Cudahy McCormick, is arriving this morning from New York to visit her family here.

The John Alden Carpenters are entertaining their box guests at dinner at their residence, and among others who will be hosts at dinner and box parties are the Laird Bells, the Clay Judsons, Harold F. McCormick, the Chauncey McCormicks, Miss Gwethalyn Jones, and many others, for every box is taken.

After a day of comparative rest and leisure yesterday the Danish minister, Otto Wadsted, will be busy today with the Danish festivities at A Century of Progress.

Mr. Wadsted arrived yesterday afternoon from Washington and is making his headquarters at the Palmer house with the celebrated sculptor, Gutzom Borglum, who is also here for the day's activities. At noon a military escort and band will take them to the Hall of Science, where

Good Bets for Bathing Beauty Winners

If blonde beauty counts for anything little Miss Dorothy Halvorsen (left) or tiny Janet McKnight may well wear the crown of Miss Enchanted Island Friday afternoon as the result of the subdeb bathing beauty contest that is to be held on the fairyland isle at the World's Fair. Dorothy and Janet, great nieces of Mrs. Mark W. Trude of the Drake hotel and residents of Indian Hill, were the first to register in the competition which is to decide the most beautiful, the most ideally developed, and the healthiest little girls under seven years.

Water Theater Opens Concert Series at Fair

Two Good Singers Appear with Orchestra.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

An uncommonly agreeable series of concerts began last night at the Water theater in A Century of Progress. This is the large barge moored just south of the Administration building and made into a floating theater in the typical A Century of Progress colors and lines.

There was both orchestral music and singing. The Wheeler-Wadsworth orchestra played popular music, not in this case popular songs but selections from "Lucia di Lammermoor," Kreisler's "The Old Refrain," the "Blue Danube," waltz, selections from "The Student Prince," and other works of like order.

The soloists were Margery Maxwell, soprano, and Forrest Lamont, tenor, both of them in their days with the Civic Opera company, more than competent members of the organization, and even better singers now than they were then. Their share of the program was operatic. Jointly they sung the best known ducts from "Madame Butterfly" and "La Boheme." Individually Miss Maxwell sang "One Fine Day" from the first, and Mr. Lamont Rodolfo's aria from the second, and all numbers went with delightful tone and ease of manner.

A first class system of electrical amplification, one which enlarges and does not in the least distort the sound of the voices, made everything audible throughout the full length of a gallery of seats which, it is said, can accommodate an audience of 1,200.

Though the series had little advance publicity a large crowd gathered and emphatically showed its approval of this kind of music. Another concert will be given tomorrow night with John Pane-Gasser, tenor, and Sonia Sharnova, contralto, as soloists. The music of "Il Trovatore" will be featured.

The name of Marion Claire, soprano, has been added as soloist in the concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in A Century of Progress series under the auspices of the Chicago Friends of Music at the Auditorium tonight. She will sing "Elsa's Dream" from Wagner's opera, "Lohengrin. Karl Krueger, former conductor of the Seattle Symphony orchestra, is making his first Chicago appearance as conductor on this program, and will direct Brahms' First Symphony and briefer works of Debussy, Mendelssohn, and Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Fur Prices Higher at Auction Sale of Pelts at Montreal

MONTREAL, June 20.—(AP)—General advances in price were recorded all along the line at the fur auction of the Canadian Fur Auction Sales company, Ltd., today. White foxes brought prices 15 per cent higher than previously and 330 pelts were sold.

Advances of 30 per cent in price were made in beavers when the bulk of a lot of 8,700 skins were disposed of. Beaver prices ranged up to $19 to $23.50 for blankets and $17 to $19 for extra large.

Cross foxes were 20 per cent higher with 88 per cent of 540 pelts sold; red foxes were up 15 per cent and about three-quarters of a lot of 2,185 pelts were sold. Marten advanced 20 per cent on sales of 85 per cent of the 1,220 pelts offered and others were 5 per cent higher when more than 700 pelts out of a lot of 900 were sold.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Two important royalties have been here, and, being women as well as queens, they picked some clothes in the salons of the big dressmakers. The queen of Denmark chose some of Lelong's prettiest frocks and also had some designed especially for her. The queen of Spain ordered several from Schiaparelli.

The dress in our sketch today is an evening frock that Lucien Lelong made for the queen of Denmark. It has the special dignity that makes this couturier a favorite of great ladies. The queen chose this model in black satin—not lacquered—just superbly soft black crêpe satin, which is more elegant and a lot less flashy.

Fall Outfits a Cool Topic for Summer

First of Next Season's Clothes in Town.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Any shopper these days can borrow some snap and excitement, to say nothing of crisp coolness, by hurrying into a shop where the newest collections are being featured . . . and by newest collections we mean, a perfectly tantalizing pre-view of what "they" are going to wear this coming season.

While lucky shoppers have been literally covered in cool cottons and summer clothes, other equally enthusiastic clothes-hounds have been busy with shears, lovely fabrics, and a lot of new ideas about dressing the great American shopper. The few new things will probably cause a panic.

First you will hear the inevitable swish of silk . . . gowns of crisp, crackling, rustling silk taffeta . . . gowns fashioned of an old favorite gros de londres, a stiff silk that can practically stand alone.

Ruffles, flounces, dust ruffles or sweepers, fluted yards of silk around the hem, perky bows on each shoulder, and knee ruffles make sweeping, picturesque gowns that will knock your eyes out. Black taffeta in a langorous Spanish manner practically stops the show. And wait till you see all the luscious shades of American beauty red that is featured in early fall showings . . . every delectable tint of this flattering color is being used . . . you even see it in summer sheers and cartwheel hats contrasted and cooled with wisps of white organdy.

For the gal who yearns for slinky outfits, satin satisfies that yen . . . some of the satin models are breathtaking affairs with short trains that drag devastatingly behind you as you make a grand entrance. Icy white and jade green satin provide a contrast for sun tanned beauties that can't be equaled with any other color . . . and most of all these new things can be worn immediately for summer gala events in town.

"The Life of Richard Wagner," by Ernest Newman. [Knopf.]

"The Unconquerable Tristan," by B. M. Steigman. [Macmillan.]

Here are two additions to an already large library of works dealing with a famous figure. They are widely different in point of view. In the first one is permitted to view Wagner through the eyes of a painstaking, judicial, and, at the same time, brilliant historian; in the other, through those of an unconquerable romanticist.

There is only one trouble with Mr. Newman's book. It is that it is the first volume of what in good times will be a set of three, and, having read it, one is afflicted with impatience for the arrival of the other two. Otherwise it is the Wagner biography we all have been waiting for.

First of all, Mr. Newman's use of the English language is a joy in its vividness and charm. One might have suspected it from his earlier writings, but in this case he has surpassed even himself.

Next, his attitude gives the reader confidence in what he has to say long before the end of the first chapter. After the enormous amount of partisanship pro and con in the Wagner case, the lavish adulation on the one side, the heaping up of epithets on the other, Mr. Newman's serene, sunny impartiality is refreshing. He would seem to have made a sincere effort to weigh every statement, to analyze and then reconstruct. He has a passion for hearing the other side of the story, and until he has heard both sides he suspends judgment. At that, he admits that the end is not yet. New documents bearing on this copiously documented personage are turning up all the time, and frequently a new discovery will give an entirely new slant on a situation. But Mr. Newman has done an unbelievable amount of research—the list of sources for this first volume is something like 157 other volumes, the greater number not translated into English. He says that he has tried to bring into focus what is known about Wagner now and he has succeeded admirably.

Naturally he does not permit himself the delusion of believing that a man who wrote some of the greatest music of all time is by that token a divine person in his human relations. Sometimes he is inclined to believe, and we with him, that the only divine thing about Wagner was his music. But Newman weighs scandal as carefully as he does praise. Gossip must be backed up for him to accept it. At the same time, when he falls upon one of Wagner's numerous acts of incredible meanness, he has no objection to calling it mean. He does not enrage the reader, as authors like Du Moulin-Eckart seldom fail to do, by interpreting it as part of the man's inherent nobility of soul.

The book takes Wagner from his birth to the year 1848, through the period of "Rienzi," "Tannhäuser," and "Lohengrin," and before his later and more gorgeous creations, just before, also the time that Wagner began to think well of himself as a politician, with the result that he left Dresden in a vast hurry just ahead of a warrant for his arrest on the charge of being a revolutionist.

Throughout Wagner is presented as a man of the highest, most conscientious artistic integrity where his music was concerned, and generally a complete reversal of all this in every other human relation. He was a curious mass of contradictions.

The Steigman book, on the other hand, deals with the composer something like a fictional character, but with Steigman glamor falling a bit short of Newman accuracy. The biography begins when he was 20 years old and carries through to his death in 1883, in fact, though briefly, to Cosima's death in 1930. It is chiefly concerned with his relations to the three most important women in his life, his two wives, Minna and Cosima, and another man's wife, Mathilde Wesendonck, who furnished an unrestful midchannel episode. Mr. Steigman would seem to believe that Wagner's career as a great lover is quite as interesting and important as that of the music he wrote. Unfortunately this is not the right year for some of the rest of us to share his belief. E. M.

Aster.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This flower design is considered comparatively new, because examples of it never have been found among the old time patterns. The color scheme may be planned with the petals cut of two contrasting colors and pieced sunburst fashion around a standard yellow center; or all of the innumerable colors of the gay aster may be used. "Aster" is the name of the pattern.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Sally Issues Last Call for Party Letters

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Here's the last call! You children will have to move quickly if you want to get aboard for our trip to White City next week! Tomorrow's the important day, you know—when I choose my guests for the marvelous party we're going to have at the south side amusement park. So your letters absolutely have to be mailed today if you want to come!

Next Sunday's CHICAGO TRIBUNE will carry the names of the fortunate 100 who'll accompany me to White City. On Thursday, June 29, we're going there for a high old time.

You'll always enjoy the steep, exciting rides, I know, but if the day is extremely warm the water rides will be popular, too. One of them is called the Water Scooter, which consists of motor boats we can steer all around the cool, shady lagoon. Won't that be fun?

Now, if you'd like to be included in this party, this is your very last chance. You must sit down today and write to me, telling me just why you'd like to come. Don't forget to include your name, address, and your age and send it to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

"Swell" Garrick, the world's perfect tailor dummy, is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training rather than tailoring skill. When his friend, young Alistair, a subaltern in the Guards, is taken over by card sharpers and gives a check he can't meet, Garrick promises to retrieve the check. Maitland, the gambler, is the purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Fairclough, who is unknowingly being used as a decoy. Her presence makes Garrick's task to his liking. Maitland plots to trick Rhoda out of a fortune left her by an uncle who died in Rome. Garrick exposes to Rhoda, before Maitland and his gang, their crooked card tricks. Garrick is overpowered by Schewan, Maitland's chief, but manages to defeat Schewan's purpose of burning him alive in his car. Maitland has Rhoda committed to a mental institution as a certified lunatic. Garrick calls on his uncle, professor of therapeutic chemistry.

INSTALLMENT IX.

AN ABOMINABLE CONSPIRACY.

Peter Garrick was an alert man in the middle fifties, well dressed and not in the least like the traditional, absent minded professor.

"Hullo, Lyle! By the look of it you're in trouble. Can I do anything, boy?"

"You probably can, if you will, Uncle Peter. Is there a drug in existence which can produce the symptoms of madness?"

"Dozens. With their derivations you could say there are forty or fifty."

"Thank God!" For the moment Garrick could not go on, so great was his relief. Then he pulled himself together. Nevertheless his voice was more than a little unsteady. "The symptoms are a flushed face looking like fever—failure to recognize friends. The whole thing sufficiently thorough to deceive Sir Arnold Heppinstall and a colleague of his."

"The feverish appearance ties it down to two possibilities," announced Prof. Garrick. "It might be hilvanium. This produces temporary total loss of memory, generally accompanied by suicidal mania."

"That's the one!"

"It is frequently used in France by criminals anxious to escape the death penalty. But the trick is very rarely successful. For the effects of the drug wear off in four or five days leaving the patient quite normal. Hilvanium is a distillation from a herb that grows in Paraguay and is used by the natives——"

"Splendid, Uncle Peter!" broke in Garrick. "You've helped me tremendously. Just one thing more! If you were to see a patient who had had this stuff administered—could you tell that it had been administered?"

"The feverish appearance ties it down to two possibilities," announced Prof. Garrick. "It might be Hilvanium. This produces temporary total loss of memory, generally accompanied by suicidal mania."

"No. Hilvanium gives no reaction to a blood test—the reason being the corpuscles——"

"Thanks awfully, Uncle Peter!"

"You'll stop and have some lunch?"

"I can't, thanks. I've got to do what is commonly called 'set the law in motion.' Awfully decent of you, Uncle Peter, not to ask me a lot of questions! Good-by!"

But the law, in the person of Mr. Bonniwell, the solicitor, revealed itself as a two-edged sword—one edge of which distinctly menaced Garrick himself.

"I don't see how you can move in the matter," said the solicitor. "We will suppose that you are absolutely correct in assuming that this guardian injected the drug. On Prof. Garrick's authority there is no means of proving that the drug has been administered. You have against you Sir Arnold Heppinstall and any other mental expert who sees the patient in her present state. This man Maitland would promptly go for you for criminal libel."

"I'll risk the damages."

"It would not be a matter of damages. He would have you arrested. Then you would have to prove positively that he administered the drug, which is impossible, or you would go to prison——"

"——Where I shouldn't be much good to Miss Fairclough," said Garrick, half to himself. "Thank you, sir! I shall have to settle it in my own way."

"Is it—is it the young lady you were speaking of this morning?" And as Garrick nodded: "In the event of the young lady being certified as a lunatic the guardianship would probably be extended beyond her twenty-first birthday—and the guardian would have control of the fortune."

"No he won't!" said Garrick with such concentrated ferocity that the solicitor started. "Please don't think I am contradicting you on a point of law, Mr. Bonniwell. Only the law, as far as I can see, will not figure very largely in this matter. I am beginning to realize that I shall have to settle the whole thing as you people say 'out of court.' Very much out of court!"

"There is something about you today that rather alarms me," said Bonniwell. "I trust, my dear Garrick, that you do not intend to do anything—criminal."

"O yes I do, Mr. Bonniwell!" drawled Garrick. "I have appealed to the law to defeat an abominable conspiracy. You advise me that the law will do nothing. I intend to defeat it myself—if I can. If I fail I will ask you to conduct my defense or—er—to see that I am duly buried in the family vault. Unless, of course, the law undertakes my burial in—er—quick-lime under the floor I believe. Good afternoon, Mr. Bonniwell!"

Garrick was inclined to feel that he had been a little bombastic in talking to Mr. Bonniwell. After all, it was impossible for the gang to play any tricks in Crannaway—and in four days at the outside Rhoda would have recovered from the effect of the drug and would be seen to be as sane as anybody else.

Beneath the surface of him was a cold fury at the thought that the woman he loved had been subjected to this horror. But Garrick was ever one to keep a tight rein on his emotions.

Raging and fuming would lead nowhere. He fully intended to hit back at the crooks, but his first care must be to get Rhoda free.

On the surface he was his normal, gay and magnificent self as he strolled into the palatial premises of a leading motor car agent and ordered a new car for immediate delivery.

On returning home he found that Schewan had ignored his demand that three thousand pounds, the price of the new car, should be paid to him by midday.

Even so large a sum was a comparative trifle to a man of Garrick's great wealth. But it was by no means a trifle that Schewan should be able to burn his car with impunity.

"I must collect that three thousand—or the gorilla will think he can take liberties!" mused Garrick. "But not this afternoon. . . . Four days, Uncle Peter said."

For the next three days Garrick did nothing in particular. And did it very thoroughly. He put in two hours' revolver practice at the club each day and another two hours in the gymnasium.

On the fourth day he had Richards, the chauffeur, drive him in the new car to Crannaway asylum. He knew little of the procedure in such cases and half believed that once he had demonstrated her sanity he would be allowed to take Rhoda away with him.

He was driven into the courtyard, where the car made its invariable impression of wealth and distinction.

"I wish to see the senior medical officer on an urgent matter," said Garrick to the clerk in charge of the office.

"Yes, sir. If it is in connection with one of the patients will you please give the patient's name?"

"Miss Rhoda Fairclough."

"Yes."

"Miss Fairclough was removed yesterday, sir. She was only brought here temporarily."

"Indeed! Will you kindly tell me who took her away and where she was taken?"

"She was taken by her guardian-in-law, a Maj. Maitland," answered the clerk. "I cannot tell you where she was taken as we do not record this. It is none of our business," he added.

For the moment Garrick was nonplussed.

"You cannot tell me where she was taken by Maj. Maitland?" he repeated. "This is a serious matter. I had better discuss it with the senior medical officer, please."

The senior medical officer was everything that such an official should be, but he could give Garrick no help.

"But surely, Mr. Garrick, if you only want to know where Miss Fairclough is you should apply to her guardian!"

"Her guardian is a crook," said Garrick equably. "And I want to keep a tab on him. Perhaps you would be so very kind as to advise me how I could find her in the event of her guardian refusing to tell me where she is?"

"I can't even do that," said the doctor. "There are hundreds of mental homes in the country—quite possibly thousands for all I know. They are all registered, of course, but it would take you some time to work your way through them. Some of them are very good—some of them—between you and me—some of them are a national disgrace."

"And Rhoda, no doubt, was in one of the latter," thought Garrick—"where they could administer hilvanium to her as often as they thought necessary to their purpose."

Ginger Rogers Fears a Fast Rise in Movies

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 20.—[Special.]—After meeting various unusual persons around the studios, it remained for Ginger Rogers to supply a completely new point of view with regard to her own film rise.

"I don't want to have too many compliments paid me, and I don't want to become famous over night, and I don't want things made too easy for me," the red haired miss said as she relaxed over a salad at Radio-RKO lunch room.

"My experience has been that girls who become overnight sensations in films drop just as hard and as fast as they went up. I want to learn while I am working, and improve myself as an actress. I always felt I didn't want to be put into something big until I was ready to handle it."

Ginger Rogers [real name Virginia] is one of the influx of talented young actresses likely to produce dominating feminine stars of 1934 and 1935. She's been in pictures three years and she has appeared in 19 films, and Radio has her named for two more just as soon as her present rôle in "Rafter Romance" is over.

Evidently other studios think well of Ginger, too, for she's worked on all the Hollywood lots except MGM and Paramount, and she did appear in five films at Paramount's Long Island plant before she came here.

She's an example of the success of the mother-daughter combination in getting a girl ahead professionally. Of course, a lot depends on the mother and on the daughter. Her mother, Mrs. Lela Rogers, formerly Lela Lelbrand, for a long time theater reviewer and society editor for a Fort Worth, Texas, newspaper, wrote scenarios for "Baby Marie" Osborne and the Sunshine Sammy group for Pathe in the old silent film days here for a short time while Ginger was very little. She is still rather little, but she's 21 years of age.

Then the mother went back to Fort Worth, where Ginger attended high school and was a chum of Florine McKinney, who is also pictures now.

As a little girl in Texas, Ginger took juvenile star parts in some school dramatics her mother helped write to help swell the grade school playground fund, and from school dramatics she progressed to the Fort Worth Little theater.

Finally, after winning a state Charleston contest, the chance came for stage appearances in New York, and mother and daughter went east. Ginger sang and danced her way to more than local note in the revues, "Top Speed" and "Girl Crazy." Her movie debut followed, at the age of 17, as Puff in "Young Man of Manhattan." It was a good film, and sent Ginger off to a good screen start, and she's been going good ever since.

I asked her which of her rôles she liked most. "I got a big kick out of doing 'Forty-second Street,' but I like the rôle of Glory Eden in 'Professional Sweetheart,' and I still think Puff was perhaps the most interesting character to portray."

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE MURDER OF CHARLES BYRON.

Prof. Fordney, Inspector Kelley and Dr. Lyman entered the luxurious suite of Charles Byron on the ninth floor of the exclusive Hotel Royal. They found him dead, slumped over a large, elaborate, practically completed jig-saw puzzle.

"I understand you were the last known person to see Byron alive," Kelley remarked.

"Well, I don't know about that," Miller replied. "I was chatting with him here until 9 o'clock. As I left he started to work on that puzzle—said he wanted something to occupy his mind until his fiancée arrived. I went directly to my suite next door. Then I heard a shot at 9:30 and came back here just as Helen Willets, his sweetheart, let out a scream. She told me she had just arrived and found him dead."

Fordney, again staring at Byron's feet, said to the doctor, "This man certainly was not killed between 9 and 9:30. Better have the girl in, Kelley." He stooped down and picked up a small pearl handled revolver near the dangling hand of the dead man.

Helen, a tall, stately brunette, was now quite composed. She said she had an appointment with Byron at 9:30 and on entering the suite had found him dead. She touched nothing.

"You're right, Fordney," the physician said, "this man was murdered before 9 o'clock. But, tell me, how did you know?"

HOW DID HE? AND WHOM DID HE SUSPECT?

Then tonight is the banquet the Danish-American society is giving at the Palmer house, with Mr. Wadsted delivering the message of his monarch, King Christian X. of Denmark.

At 2:15 this afternoon the Danish prime minister, T. H. Stauning, and the American minister, Ruth Bryan Owen, are to send messages across the water by radio.

Mr. Wadsted and Mr. Borglum are staying over tomorrow noon for the luncheon the Danish consul general, Reimund Baumann, is giving for them at A Century of Progress.

Many Parties for Wives of Scientists

While their husbands are considering scientific problems the wives of the members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science are enjoying a well rounded program of entertainment.

After a visit to the Northwestern campus this morning there is to be a luncheon at Shore Acres, with the wives of the officials of A Century of Progress as the hostesses. The afternoon will be spent on a tour of Lake Forest gardens arranged by Mrs. Tiffany Blake and Mrs. Irving Cutter.

Tomorrow the visitors will devote the day to the south side, visiting Jackson park with its great new industrial museum and the University of Chicago. Tea is to be served in beautiful Ida Noyes hall. There will be a dinner tomorrow evening at the Stevens hotel.

A number of our yachtsmen have generously offered their boats for Friday to takes the wives on a trip along the lake shore. Luncheon in the trustees' room at the Administration building will be the meeting place for the trip.

Dinner Tonight for Bernadottes

It is appropriate that Mr. and Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris should entertain for Count and Countess Bernadotte at one of the most important private dinners during their stay here. Mr. and Mrs. Morris knew them well during Mr. Morris' tenure as minister to Sweden.

The party, to be held tonight, is to start with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres at the Tavern, then move on by water to the Century club for dinner. And after this comes the real excitement. Through the courtesy of O. W. Rosenthal, the Bernadottes, their host and hostess, and the other guests will go across the street from the Century club to Hollywood to see a motion picture in the making.

Besides this they will have "movies" made of themselves that will be developed and shown to them at once.

The Kellogg Fairbanks are invited to the party. And so are the Edward H. Bennetts, Joseph T. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton, the Augustus Eddys, and the Roscrans Baldwins.

Beveridge-Scaife Wedding Today

A young man who has many Chicago associations, although he never has lived here, will meet Miss Elizabeth Lincoln Scaife at the altar of St. Michael's church in Milton, Mass., this afternoon to make her his bride. The young man is Albert J. Beveridge Jr. of Indianapolis. The ceremony will be performed at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Vincent Leroy Bennett and Dr. William Greenough Thayer in the presence of a large and fashionable assemblage.

Later there will be a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Scaife. Miss Leila Delaw of New York and Miss Alice Dalton of Milton will be maids of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Abby Beveridge, the bridegroom's sister; Mrs. Carl S. Petrosch Jr., Mrs. Ernest B. Dane Jr. of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Edward Hamlin of Boston, Mrs. Joseph Lyman of Northampton, Miss Rosamond Musgrove of Boston, Miss Susan Wigglesworth of Milton, and Miss Barbara Wendell of Chicago.

Julius Birge of New York will attend Mr. Beveridge as best man and ushering will be Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr. of Chicago, C. F. Adams, Eben Draper Jr., John M. Hall, and Henry T. Mason Jr., all of Boston; Henry Chalfont Jr. of Pittsburgh, C. Douglas Dillon, Robert I. McKisson, and Henry Schniewind III., all of New York; P. S. Garrison of Chattanooga, K. Marvin Scaife, the bride's brother, and Samuel S. Tymball of Indianapolis.

Miss Trowbridge to Be Bride Today

At a very small wedding at 5 o'clock this afternoon Miss Katherine Trowbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius M. Trowbridge, is to become the bride of Edward Arpee, son of Mrs. Stephan T. Arpee of Athens, O. Only the immediate families and a few close friends have been invited to witness the ceremony and enjoy a wedding tea afterwards, both at the home of the bride's parents on Mayflower road in Lake Forest.

Two prominent Evanston families will be united tonight when Miss Helen Jones, daughter of Mrs. Walter Clyde Jones, becomes the bride of Gair Tourtellot Jr. The wedding service is to be read at 8:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church of Evanston by the Rev. Charles Heinisath and Dr. James Madison Stifler.

Mrs. Charles A. Mulligan of Battle Creek is to attend Miss Jones as matron of honor and Miss Virginia Stoll will be her maid of honor. The bridesmaids are four of the bride's most intimate friends, Mrs. George Anderson, Miss Helen Chapman, Miss Elizabeth Walker, and Mrs. William Alderman.

Edwin McCauley of Philadelphia, a brother-in-law of the bridegroom, will serve Mr. Tourtellot as best man. Ushering will be Charles Dodd, Newton Tobey, Carleton Johnson, C. Boyd Jones, a brother of the bride, and Robert Bray of Newton Center, Mass.

Mrs. Jones gave the bridal dinner last night at her lovely home a 1637 Judson avenue. After their return from a wedding trip on Aug. 1 Mr. Tourtellot and his bride are to be at home at 1310 Wesley avenue, Evanston.

Miss Eleanor Litsinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, today will become the bride of Eugene Cary Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Cary. The wedding, a quiet one to which only the immediate families and intimate friends have been invited is to be performed at 4 o'clock by Dr. Dudley Stark, rector of St. Chrysostom's church at the Litsinger home at 1400 State parkway. Mrs. W. C. Smith will attend her sister as matron of honor and Miss Barbara Eldridge will be maid of honor. Dr. Cary is to serve his son as best man.

Set Dates for Lake Geneva Show

The date for the 29th annual flower show of the Lake Geneva Garden club has been set for Friday and Saturday, Aug. 11 and 12, in the Horticultural hall, Lake Geneva, with Mrs. Edwin B. Frost, president of the Garden club, in charge. This was announced at a recent meeting of the officers of the Lake Geneva Garden club and the Gardeners and Foremen's association. Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson has already planned much of her interesting exhibit of wild flowers, and the various estates are preparing to show their best vegetables, fruits, and flowers.

The social event of the summer season in Winnetka, the annual flower show of the Winnetka Garden club, is set for July 8 and 9 at the estate of the James Kelloggs on Locust road. The fact that the show is to be held at this lovely home insures a large and fashionable attendance, for there are ten acres of wooded land with delightful vistas stretching out along the lake and the house set down in the center is Spanish.

Mrs. Robert H. Gardner has been appointed general chairman of the affair by the governing board of the club, which has Mrs. Langdon Pearse as its president. Mrs. William O. Green is handling the publicity; Mrs. William D. Truesdale is chairman of the boxes; Mrs. Willoughby Walling of the arrangement of the exhibits, and Mrs. Roger Sherman is responsible for getting the entries to the Kellogg estate.

Other committee chairmen include Mrs. Austin Jenner, gate admissions; Mrs. Samuel McCauley, checking out; Mrs. Charles Strong, carts; Mrs. Rudolph Matz, printing, and Mrs. Alice Drake Miller, judges.

There are to be five classes in the show, including effective arrangements of white flowers, arrangements of flowers on a dressing table, dolls' houses with flowers in every room, paved terrace gardens, and exhibits of prize vegetables.

Mrs. Potter Palmer Luncheon Hostess

Mrs. Potter Palmer was hostess yesterday at another of A Century of Progress luncheons in the restaurant of the Art institute. At the table which she set with her own linens, flowers, and china, she had as her guests Charles H. Hamill, Joseph T. Ryerson, Dr. and Mrs. Allen D. Albert, and Mr. Palmer.

More than two hundred members of the Skokie Country club have made reservations for the first dinner dance of the season Saturday evening.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. William A. Prime had among her guests at luncheon today Mrs. Clement P. Tobin, who will start soon to pass the summer in California; Mrs. James H. Snowden and her daughter, Mrs. Robert Herndon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse have gone to their summer home, The Fens, in East Hampton.

[Anthony Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Leo B. Headen of 6242 Greenview avenue are this morning announcing the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor Patricia, to Joseph Curwin Lamy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Lamy of 3750 Lake Shore drive and Long Beach, Mich.

Parents Urged to Fret, Nag Less Often

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Yesterday we were comparing notes on how, just about the time you've decided your small daughter has become a problem, or your small son's behavior needs the diagnosis of an expert, you wake up some morning to find that whatever troubled you has gone—vanished into thin air. Nature, that wise old prestidigitateur, has gotten rid of it.

To be sure, she may have put something else in its place! As I told you once on a Sunday, some weeks ago. But at least lots of behavior that worries us is only a phase—quickly passed through with the younger children.

But our older boys and girls do not usually get through the phases that fret us so quickly. That is natural enough. The why-do-I-have-to-wash stage lasts a long time, the boy-hating and girl-hating stage does, too, as well as the boy-crazy and girl-crazy phase. The slow moving, dreamy time lasts months or more—the dislike-of-chores phase covers years, sometimes—and irresponsibility likewise.

Parents do a lot of fretting over these things. Some of them have to be controlled, to be sure. Suppose, for example, we let our sons of 10 wash only when they felt like it! And so forth. But our management would be better if we fretted and nagged less. And we'd fret less if we understood more.

Having taken several children through adolescence is a help. But if you can't depend on that experience because you're carrying your first, though, reading is a great help. A very brief reading list, plus our "Sex Education" booklet, gives a really excellent background for the understanding and managing of a boy or girl during the phases of the years between 10 and 15. These lists will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BY MARY MEADE.

Some foods are just distressingly social minded. The give and take, for instance, between butter and limburger, onion and cream, or fish and cut fruits, when these foods are tucked neatly into the same refrigerator, is truly scandalous.

Of course, we've always discouraged such flavors doing too much visiting by arranging the most aggressive odors on the top shelves and the delicate flavors on the lower ones, but even this hasn't always convinced them.

So now give a cheer! For the latest thing is crisp, moisture-proof, odor-proof, and grease-proof coverings for refrigerator foods! No more worry over the arrangement of odoriferous dishes, for today's hustling housewife is slipping each into its cellophane vestee, pinching the bottom—or is it the top?—together, and assembling them on the shelves where they best fit, neatly preventing wandering flavors from wading in where they're not wanted.

These bags, which are now on the market in assorted sizes—large enough to hold a cantaloupe or small enough to take care of a bit of cheese—are just like grocery store bags in construction, with sealed seams and generous gores on the sides.

But holding in and out the meandering flavors isn't the only use for the new food bags. Lettuce or cabbage, cleaned and sprinkled with water, will crisp grandly in one of the large ones without drying out the leaves or wetting the refrigerator. Half a grapefruit, melon, avocado, or orange, if sheathed in one of these bags with the entrance tightly twisted, will keep juicy and fresh surprisingly long.

Cookies and crackers, being dry, take moisture out of the air if we give them a chance, but deposit them in one of these sealed, transparent bags and they retain their crispness. Even bread and cake can be persuaded not to dry out while we're away for the week-end if they're properly encased in cellophane. And in these days of picnics no well dressed sandwich will be seen going camping without his shiny sheath designed to hold in all the jelly and hold out all the potato salad. And when the picnic is over or the refrigerator food has all been eaten, simply air the bag, wipe it with a damp cloth if there are daubs, and it's all set to be some other food's shield and protector.

Then, while we're thinking refrigerators and good flavors, have you ever heard of the interesting brick-shaped compound which may be obtained at household equipment counters and which, when placed on the top shelf of the refrigerator, absorbs and eliminates many (some homemakers say all) of the refrigerator odors? Another one of this brick's abilities is to lessen the speed with which we always seem to have to defrost electric refrigerators. At the same time it slightly increases the cold and so helps preservation.

Finally, still being refrigerator-minded, let's have:

COCOANUT REFRIGERATOR COOKIES.

3 cups sifted cake flour
½ teaspoon soda
2 eggs, well beaten
1-3 cup brown sugar, packed down
½ cup granulated sugar
⅔ cup butter, melted
2 cups shredded cocoanut, cut fine

Sift the flour, measure it, and then sift again twice with the soda and salt. Stir together the eggs, sugar, melted butter, and the cocoanut. Add the flour mixture, blending thoroughly. This will be quite stiff, but it should be possible to work it all in. Now pack the mixture into a long, narrow bread pan or a square one about 8x8 inches, lined with waxed paper. Let it stand covered in the refrigerator over night, then turn it from the pan and, if it was square, cut it in two. Cut thin one-eighth inch crosswise slices and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) on an ungreased baking sheet for about five minutes. This makes about thirty-six cookies.

Alyce Fraser, Soprano, Weds Trinidad Official

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, June 20.—[Special.]—Thousands thronged the pretty tropical church of Georgetown when Mme. Alyce Fraser, internationally known soprano, known as the "song bird of British Guiana," was married to James Denny, municipal official of Georgetown, her native city, on her mother's sixty-eighth birthday. The couple met in London last year when Mme. Fraser was appearing in concert. Within fifteen minutes after the meeting Mr. Denny proposed marriage. A correspondence followed and eventually Mme. Fraser canceled all engagements and returned to Guiana to be married.

Little children can't think and reason as we older folks. It means nothing to their childish mind to say, "Bobby, you should each such-and-such because it's good for you." If Bobby does NOT like it, he objects. But if he does like a food, he eats it willingly.

That's why CREAMETTES are so successful. Children universally like this delicious, tasty macaroni product, and eat it willingly . . . Best of all, CREAMETTES are nourishing, healthful, body building; an ideal child's food. Try it on your Bobby some time. (All grocers have it, two big packages only 15 cents.)

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday we were talking about the roller skate craze and how it may influence those underpinnings of yours for the leaner and better, how the hips and thighs can't get away without some whittling if you do enough of this getting around on skates.

Well, why not go the whole way—and get a bicycle, too? We know all about the hazards of bicycling on thoroughfares these days. But what's a hazard to a lady bent on getting into a 16 size? One of the standard exercises recommended by every practitioner of the beauty art is the bicycle pedalling one. For buttock, hip, thigh, and leg reduction you can't beat it.

Therefore, if it is possible for you to take this same reduction course on a real bicycle you're distinctly in luck. You may have to arise before the traffic is up in the a. m. But that won't hurt a girl on leaner silhouette bent. Add to this, this summer, a good two month swimming debauch and a little tennis and rowing, and you'll come out by September a glorified version of your old self.

I'm in no wise interested in selling bicycles or roller skates, but I do see in these revivals a grand way of getting a lot of fat out of the system and a lot of youth back into it. And for private use I claim this summer is going to need all of the youth-revival we can crowd into the system. I'm speaking here of the purely psychological reward of exercise done in the play spirit and in the outdoors. There isn't anything you cannot accomplish after it. To lift us bodily out of the dumps we can't get too much of this outdoor life.

We advisers talk walking, but there isn't quite the kick in it that there is in getting out on wheels and skimming over the earth in quick time. There isn't the same fun or play element in it.

Take the rowing exercise as another example. The rowing machines unquestionably have done marvelous jobs on figures, but rowing a boat on actual waters has in addition to the mechanical movements the bracing air and this spirit of play that "uncorks the spirit," as one sage wisely analyzes the effect.

Men Praise Fine Spirit of Wives in Late Crisis

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Can you meet financial reverses bravely, cheerfully, without criticizing your husband for his mistakes, or comparing him unfavorably with more successful men?"

A little sidelight on male appreciation of this wifely grit showed up in a social group discussion the other evening. One man startled his woman audience with the statement that women have not shown up well in the recent adversity test. But he added triumphantly: "My wife is different. She's been a perfect peach. Not a word of complaint."

Male No. 2 present, who'd applauded the general charge made by No. 1 about the moral weakness of women in general in times of stress, shouted so all could hear: "That's the way with my wife, too. She's been a brick. But she's different!"

And so would countless husbands extol the bravery, the fineness of their women were they given the chance to be heard. And nine out of ten of them, if not all ten, would say: "But my girl—she's different!"

So, the charge against women in general really turns out to be a tribute to the wife in particular. And so long as each wife can convince her husband that she is different—it's well enough for the reputation of the sex in general.

Keep up with YOUTH .. and live high!

BUOYANT YOUTH! Have it yourself! Just join the happy thousands who are switching to Shredded Wheat . . . and forget your years.

These golden biscuits bring you all the vital, youth-giving elements Nature stores in whole wheat. Proteins and minerals, carbohydrates and vitamins . . . in rich measure, in perfect balance. Even the bran, so correctly proportioned in whole wheat, is there. Nothing added, nothing taken away.

Start each day with this crisp-baked food of youth. Keep it up for at least ten days. A real taste-thrill, for Shredded Wheat can be served in many ways . . . with milk or cream, with fresh or preserved fruit. Any way you eat it, it's youth . . . by the bowlful. Buoyant youth that helps you take each day in high!

Events on the Stage

Katharine Cornell, who has extended her Chicago engagement in "Allen Corn" until Saturday, July 1, announces her plans for next season. She has three objectives: the staging of a Shakespearean tragedy, the establishment of a repertory company, and the booking of a coast-to-coast tour.

Miss Cornell has selected "Romeo and Juliet" for her début in Shakespeare. Her approach to the play as actress-manager will be marked with extreme simplicity. Ornate settings and costumes will be avoided, and the stage direction, in charge of Guthrie McClintic, the star's husband, will stress swiftness of movement in the drama's development.

With "Romeo and Juliet" she will offer Bernard Shaw's "Candida" and Rudolph Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," and and thus her organization will become a repertory company. She hopes that the players whom she will assemble for the principal rôles in these three plays will be the nucleus of a permanent repertory organization. Brian Aherne, who acted Robert Browning in "The Barretts," may be her choice for the rôle of Romeo.

Miss Cornell's first acting of the title rôle of Shaw's "Candida" dates back to December, 1924, in a production by the Actors' Theater of New York. The author proclaimed her the ideal Candida and has reserved the play for her use in America ever since. She has not been seen in the part outside of New York.

The actress-manager's tour will begin late next November and will take her to the Pacific coast. She will visit many cities in which she has never appeared. A Chicago engagement is included in her program. She will not be seen on the New York stage until the spring of 1934.

Three additions to the Chicago playbills will be made next week. They will be "The Man Who Changed His Name," a drama by Edgar Wallace, at the Illinois theater; "Hired Husbands," a comedy with Harry Puck in the leading rôle, at the Studebaker theater, and "Her Majesty, the Widow," with Pauline Frederick as star, at the Cort theater.

The Selwyn theater, which has been inactive for a year, will reopen Sunday evening, July 2, with the première of "Tomorrow Turns Back," a play written by Marcelite Englander.

Dotted Swisses

Sizes 14 to 20.

Part of the Great Cotton Vogue

Tub Frocks believe in dotted Swisses whole-heartedly. They wash easily and beautifully—the cotton vogue has given them new popularity, and they are one of the smarter cottons. These two frocks are but a glimpse into the large collection in the tub frock section.

One frock has a ruffly collar of embroidered organdy. The other has a close neckline with ruffles around the shoulders in dotted Swiss. Both come in white with colored dots, pastels with white dots, and dark colors with white dots. Sizes for misses and women.

You will look like the real sportswoman in Briella whether you're an expert one or not. For it has the casual air about it that is the charm of all sports clothes.

It is also the best of sports when it comes to tailoring and tubbing.

STEPHENSON INJURED IN CUBS' 5 TO 3 VICTORY

M'KECHNIE, CAREY TO COACH NATIONAL ALL-STARS

M'GRAW PICKS TWO MANAGERS AS ASSISTANTS

League Decides on Special Uniforms.

BY ARCH WARD.

Two of the most experienced leaders in the National league will assist John McGraw in directing the all-star team that will face the strongest club the American league can present in the game of the century at Comiskey park, July 6. McGraw yesterday chose Bill McKechnie, manager of the Boston Braves, and Max Carey, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, as coaches.

This board of strategy will match wits with an American league group consisting of Connie Mack, manager, and Eddie Collins and Art Fletcher, coaches.

Until the fans demanded McGraw as National league manager, McKechnie was the popular choice of league officials for that position. He is the oldest active manager in the league in point of service.

National League Owners Meet.

McGraw announced his selections yesterday at a meeting of National league owners in New York. There was some support for Hans Wagner and other old time players, but the magnates agreed with McGraw that in a game of this importance it would be better to depend upon men more closely associated with present day baseball.

The league also ratified changes in the schedule to clear the way for the inter-league contest. It was necessary to shift a doubleheader between the Braves and Giants in Boston July 5 and to postpone the game scheduled between the Dodgers and Pirates at Pittsburgh July 6. The biggest obstacle in the way of the inter-league game was the doubleheader in Boston. It is impossible to play even one game in Boston and arrive in Chicago in time to play the following day. Early season rains forced many postponements and the Boston program for the rest of the summer is crowded with twin bills.

Will Buy New Uniforms.

President John Heydler in notifying THE TRIBUNE, which is sponsoring the game, of yesterday's official action, said that the league owners had voted to purchase new gray uniforms for the team. The American league players won the right to wear the home white uniforms when President William Harridge called the toss of a coin Monday.

Harry Grabiner, vice president of the White Sox, said last night there were about 7,000 unsold grandstand tickets available. The price is $1.10. Applications should be addressed to the All Star Baseball Department, Comiskey Park, Chicago. Send a cashier's check or money order and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Tickets will be mailed to the fans the latter part of this week.

The nation-wide vote which THE TRIBUNE, with the coöperation of 55 other newspapers has been conducting for a month, ended last night at midnight. The rush of the fans everywhere to cast a ballot for their favorite players swamped the contest department of this newspaper as well as several others. It will be the latter part of the week before final tabulations can be printed.

The honor of being the first American league candidates to collect more than 200,000 votes goes to Joe Cronin of the Senators, shortstop; Al Simmons of the White Sox, outfielder; and Lefty Grove, Athletics, pitcher.

Duel Between Simmons, Ruth.

The most exciting contest of the poll has developed between Simmons and Babe Ruth. More than 800,000 votes have been cast for American league outfielders. The standings this morning show Simmons ahead of the home run slugger by 20,252.

McGraw plans to come to Chicago two or three days in advance of the game.

Heydler, William Harridge, president of the American league; McGraw, Lon Warneke, Gabby Hartnett, and other central figures in the great game will broadcast from W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, the evening of July 5.

How They're Voting on American League Stars

The baseball fans of the nation decided who will play in the game of the century at Comiskey park July 6. Fifty-five newspapers in all sections of the United States invited fans to help pick the National and American leagues' greatest players.

The Tribune is offering $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who came closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selected the American league's starting lineup with starting pitcher will receive $100. A similar prize will be presented for the National league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who named the six pitchers.

In case more than the alloted number qualify for the awards, the prizes will go to those whose selections reached The Tribune first.

Gil Berry to Play Football with Cardinals

Gil Berry, one of the leading back field men in the Western conference for the last three years, yesterday signed to play professional football with the Chicago Cardinals. Dr. David L. Jones, president of the Cardinals, said he had an option on Berry's services as long as he remained in the pro ranks.

Berry, captain of the University of Illinois eleven in 1932, was runnerup for THE TRIBUNE trophy which annually is presented to the Big Ten player adjudged of greatest value to his team. Harry Newman of Michigan won the award.

Few college players have achieved stardom in the face of the discouragement that confronted Berry. Football at Illinois in his time had fallen far below the standard of Red Grange's day. Commenting on Berry's work after he had been chosen by his teammates as the Illinois candidate for THE TRIBUNE trophy, Coach Robert Zuppke said:

"Who knows how some of the stars who play behind powerful lines would take it if they were on far inferior teams?"

Berry attended Abingdon, Ill., High school before enrolling at Illinois. He was an all around athlete in his prep days, but limited his activities to football in college. He is a Phi Delta Theta. He married Winifred Flint, a campus beauty, in his junior year at Urbana.

Berry will report to the Cardinals' new Coach, Paul Schissler, formerly of Oregon State college, when the squad reports for practice late in August.

STATE SENATE PASSES RACING COMMISSION BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 20.—The senate passed the Maypole bill, calling for the creation of a commission to govern horse racing in Illinois, by a vote of 33 to 3 tonight.

It was passed without debate. Senator Maypole, Chicago Democrat, merely identified the bill when he called it up. Then the roll call was begun. In spite of the active hostility of Richard J. Barr of Joliet, the minority leader, there were only three votes against it—those of Barr and two Cook county Republicans, James J. Barbour, Evanston, and Roy C. Woods, Chicago.

Bruce A. Campbell, southern Illinois Democratic leader and a candidate for governor last year, appeared here to oppose some features of the bill. The bill was sent immediately to the house for action.

Three on Commission.

The bill creates a commission of three members to be appointed by the governor. One commissioner shall hold office for two years from the beginning of his term of office in 1933, one commissioner shall hold office for four years, and the other commissioner shall hold office for six years.

The commissioners, according to the bill, will serve without salary, but shall receive reimbursement for all actual and necessary traveling expenses and disbursements incurred by them in the discharge of their duties.

The commissioners shall appoint a secretary and such representatives, clerks, stenographers, inspectors, and employés as may be necessary, all of whom shall serve during the pleasure of the commission and shall receive such compensation as the commission may determine. The bill provides that the secretary shall receive an annual salary of $4,800.

License Fee $2,500 Daily.

The law provides that the commission shall have full power to prescribe rules, regulations, and conditions under which all horse races shall be conducted in the state. The law also gives the commission power to allot racing dates and to refuse the application for racing dates if the applicants do not conform to all the measures of the law.

Tracks located within 50 miles of any city of 500,000 or more population will pay $2,500 a day license fee and 20 cents on each admission ticket except tickets issued to and in the name of stockholders, directors, officers, agents or employés of the licensee or to owners, trainers, jockeys, or their employés or to any person entering the grounds for the transaction of business.

Democratic leaders, who were pushing the bill on toward passage in both houses, expressed the belief tonight that if horse racing is to continue long in Illinois a commission which will govern the sport with an iron hand must be created.

Tracks Act Quickly.

"The present law does not control the number of tracks that are to operate, nor does it authorize much authority over the way racing is conducted," one of the Democratic chiefs backing the race measure said tonight.

"We have reasons to believe that unless the state takes over complete supervision of the sport three or four new tracks will spring up in Chicago. Unless a commission is appointed to supervise them there is no assurance to the race going public that it will get a square deal," he continued.

Some of Chicago's big race tracks were reported to be behind the bill. Others were reported to be fighting against it. They did not send representatives to appear openly for or against the measure.

Polish Girl Breaks World Discus Record for Women

LWOW, Poland, June 20.—(AP)—Jadwiga Weiss bettered the women's world's record for the discus throw today with a toss of 43.40 meters (142 feet 4 27-32 inches). The listed world's record is 42.43 meters (139 feet 2 77-128 inches), set in 1932 by Jadwiga Wajsowna of Poland.

Prof. Pyle Not at Fault If Ignorance Isn't Conquered

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 20.—People who think will be pleased to learn that among the intellectual treasures of A Century of Progress in Chicago there is a new aggregation of astounding and exotic educational innovations under the management of Mr. C. C. Pyle, an insidious teacher, who stoops to conquer ignorance.

The loose thinking element will remember Mr. Pyle only as the manager of Red Grange and Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and of two trans-continental footraces, but those who go in for serious cerebration will recall him also for his rolling university which accompanied the foot racers on their travels o'er mountain and plain.

The foot race was merely an enticement or base lure to which he resorted in order to attract the citizens to the feast for the mind which he spread before them in his tent show on a thousand town lots between Los Angeles and New York, and back again. Each lesson was illustrated by a stimulating exhibit and expounded by a gifted professor.

Unfortunately for the intellectual life of New York, the late Tex Rickard had no sympathy with such nonsense and forbade Mr. Pyle to bring Piu [often mispronounced Pee-yew], the snake charmer, into Madison Square Garden when the first team of foot racers wound up their long trudge in that temple. He also repulsed the three legged chicken, the two-headed calf and the little ladies of terpsichore who had heightened the cultural level of the outlands in a swath 3,000 miles long by their demonstrations of eurythmics and muscular control, for the nominal tuition of one dime, the tenth part of a dollar. Mr. Rickard had an eye for the obvious only, and when Mr. Pyle had described this department to him, he dismissed it with a brusque "kootch, don't want it."

So education fell back to Hoboken, all but the reformed Oklahoma outlaw, a marvelous scientific specimen which Mr. Rickard admitted under the false impression that he was entertaining a sort of lower-case Al Jennings. His indignation was great therefore when he mounted the steps to the Oklahoma outlaw's pitch that night and peered down upon the mummified remains of an erstwhile chicken thief.

Stomping down the steps again from this classroom, in which he had seen only the macabre to the exclusion of the scientific, Mr. Rickard shook his walking-cane at Mr. Pyle and said, "It's nothin' but a dead man; they ought to bury him."

I am told that the spearhead of Mr. Pyle's latest attack on ignorance is a lady named Estelle, who has a rubber skin or elastic epidermis, as Mr. Pyle calls it.

And There's Harry.

"See," the educator cries in the course of his learned lecture, "I grasp the lady by her epidermis," clutching Estelle by the skin of her shank, strictly in the interests of science, of course, "and I pull it out like this," pulling it out just so. "And now, ladies and gentlemen, I leave go and it snaps back." And, of a truth, Mr. Pyle does leave go and Estelle's epidermis recoils with a snap.

The class then turns its attention to Harry, the ossified man, who has baffled the savants of the old world, and Harry's nurse, Mary, a lady hefting 148 pounds in her uniform, who climbs upon Harry and uses him for a bench at the climax of the demonstration.

"Ha-ha-ha, Harry is a little stiff from lacrosse," says Prof. Pyle, who, like Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale, believes in flavoring knowledge with a pinch of humor now and again.

Stick Around, Charley.

I trust that Mr. Pyle will keep school in session until I go to Chicago for A Century of Progress, and I hope it isn't too much for an old grad to ask that he bring back to my class reunion Piu [often mispronounced Pee-yew], the snake charmer, who wore a wig and Mother Hubbard and talked Choctaw in the educational snake den six shows a night, but wore khaki trousers, drove one of the trucks, and answered to the name of Slim by day. Piu also taught the switch and the slide roll with the dice, but I flunked the course and I would like to take my degree this year.

YANKEES' SEVEN RUN BLAST IN SIXTH ROUTS SOX

Champions Regain Mauling Ways in 15-8 Win.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The mauling Yankees recovered their old habits and put themselves back on a businesslike basis yesterday after two straight defeats. They were comparatively docile for a time, but finally got under way and expressed themselves emphatically with a seven run splurge in the sixth. That proved sufficient to embalm the White Sox in a 15 to 8 defeat and give the champions three of the five game series. The win also served to double the league leader's advantage to a full game over the pursuing Washington Senators.

The Yankees, by their actions, proved they weren't impressed by the three victories in a row piled up by John Whitlow Wyatt. Outside of a homer by Bill Dickey with one on base, they were gentle with the southerner until the fifth, when they ganged on him for three runs. Old Sam Jones then appeared. He cleaned up in that inning, but in the next called for help that Milt Gaston was unable to provide. Before the seven run riot ended five Yanks had hit safely, one of the taps being Babe Ruth's fifteenth homer, two had walked and others had profited by blunders in which Charley Berry was the chief offender.

Hose Chase Allen.

Although not exactly hot as fielders, as is attested by their five errors, the Sox hit enough to cause some grief for Joe McCarthy, the Yankee manager, who is beginning to suspect his machine is wearing out. The Chicagoans were so free with their hits against Johnny Allen, who usually is tough for them, that they tied the score twice and once assumed the lead. But all this was prior to the stormy sixth inning when Jones and Gaston flopped. After that the Sox managed to get together long enough to put Allen out of action in the seventh, but they couldn't do the same to Charley Ruffing.

Al Simmons and Ben Chapman, the two gentlemen who have been taking turns holding the American league batting lead, weren't especially prominent in the free-for-all, but the title nevertheless changed hands again. The fleet Yankee was restricted to one hit in five appearances. Simmons produced the same in four attempts, lowering his season's mark from .368 to .366. Chapman slipped behind the Sox star because of a contraction of six points to .364.

The battling became heated as soon as a quiet first inning had been disposed of. Haas steamed things up with one out in the second when he tore back to the left field scoreboard, bounced off the wall and made a glove handed grab of Chapman's long drive.

Ormsby Off Form.

Next was a pass to Mr. Lazzeri, thanks to Umpire Ormsby. Lazzeri had run his string to 3 and 2, when what looked like a perfect third strike sailed over the plate. Ormsby called it a ball, much to the amazement of Wyatt. Then Dickey hammered a homer into the right field seats, giving the Yankees two runs that weren't deserved.

The two run lead must have aroused some uneasiness in Allen. Anyway, he walked Simmons and Appling, the first two to face him in the home second. Kress extended his slump by popping to Lary. Dykes produced a single to left. Simmons raced to the plate and beat the throw, but Umpire Ormsby called him out. The umpire was additionally wrong because it developed that Dickey never really had the ball in his hands. Ormsby discovered this when Dickey arose to his feet. Appling took third on the play and started home when Berry popped to Lary in short left. Appling scored because Lary's throw never reached the plate. It hit Luke on the back when he was half way home.

Appling Wallops Homer.

Allen stumbled into such a large batch of trouble in the fourth that he probably was satisfied to have

BROKEN FINGER BENCHES TEAM'S LEADING HITTER

Tinning and Grimes Check Giants.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 20.—Riggs Stephenson, the Cubs' leading hitter and left fielder, will be out of the lineup for the remainder of the eastern trip as a result of a broken third finger on his right hand. This was announced tonight after X-ray photographs had been taken by Dr. E. M. Foote.

In the seventh inning of today's game with the New York Giants Stephenson was hit by one of Glen Spencer's pitches. After jumping about with pain for a few seconds he went to first base, stole second, and scored the Cubs' fifth and last run on Frank Demaree's double. The finger pained him so much on his return to his hotel that the X-ray examination was ordered.

Stephenson Batting .314.

The knocking out of Stephenson, who had just swung into his real batting stride, is a severe blow to the Cubs. Stephenson tops the Cub hitters with a mark of .314.

The Cubs have fourteen more games in the east, one with the Giants tomorrow, then four in Boston, four in Philadelphia, and five in Brooklyn, which takes them through July 2.

Manager Charley Grimm was at a theater when the extent of Stephenson's injury was discovered and there was no announcement as to the shift which will be made in the Chicago batting front. Babe Herman probably will be assigned to Stevie's clean-up spot, however. It is not expected that Kiki Cuyler, who is recovering from a broken ankle, will be able to play in the outfield for at least two more weeks.

CUBS CATCH SCORING IDEA

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 20.—The Chicago Cubs this afternoon turned the tables on the proud New York Giants by handing them a 5 to 3 defeat. The happy ending, however, was not reached without some suffering, for the Giants got a riot under way in the seventh which suddenly converted a breezy Cub afternoon into a most nervous enterprise.

Bud Tinning allowed two harmless singles in the first inning and then held the league leaders hitless until the seventh when they broke loose with a single, a double, a single and another double before a hand could be retired. At this point old Burleigh Grimes, who had been caught off guard with a shave, came in and showed his hairy superstition to be a fallacy. Burleigh did a handsome job of relieving.

Use Up Hubbell.

In the end the Giant rally turned to be a blessing in disguise, for Carl Hubbell, the Giants' pitching ace, who had been scheduled to pitch the final tomorrow, was called in to pitch the last two innings, thus causing a switch to the less talented Fitzsimmons for the farewell encounter.

The Cubs' insurance against the Giants uprising in the seventh—a batch of five runs acquired in the first seven innings—was piled up a run at a time.

One run was made in the first inning as a result of one of English's three hits, a walk to Babe Herman and Stephenson's double. Another was the result of English's homer in the third. Singles by Demaree and Hartnett were the main factors in the third counter made in the fourth inning. Singles by Hartnett, Jurges and English and a wild pitch netted a marker in the sixth. The last score was made in the seventh when Stephenson was hit by a pitched ball, stole second and scored on Demaree's double.

12 Hits for Cubs.

The Cubs made their first run in

BY FRENCH LANE.

California, Kentucky and Maryland waged another one of their famous turf struggles at Lincoln Fields yesterday and when the dust had settled it was discovered California had won.

It all happened in the running of the Dance Ship handicap, a dash at six furlongs. California's lone representative was Sun Dot, from Norman W. Church's stable. Kentucky had three color bearers in Big Brand, Pancoast and Isaiah. Maryland's hope was Rehoboth from the stable of J. Fred Adams.

Sun Dot from California, after reeling off the three-quarters of a mile in 1:11 4-5, during which he had to come from behind, was the winner. He beat the fast finishing Big Brand by a length, but couldn't have weathered Big Brand's challenge for many more strides. Pancoast, the fleet early pacemaker, was third.

Rehoboth Is Disappointing.

The crowd had an idea Sun Dot would win, for he was installed the favorite. He was at even money when the wagering opened, but the Californians weakened slightly along toward post time and the son of Hero Dot went to the post at 6 to 5. He paid off at $4.22 in the mutuels.

Soon after the start, Pancoast, which had won four straight races, leaped to the front as if he might be going to make a run away of this one also. Sun Dot caught him on the turn, however, and the race was over. Big Brand furnished most of the fireworks when in the run down the stretch he came from last place up into a threatening position at the end.

Dust Girl Surprises.

It was exciting racing all afternoon and one of the big thrills came when Dust Girl, owned by Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago, won the Poinsetta purse for 2 year olds to complete a daily double which paid $516.40. Georgia Lily, from Audley Farm and a 20 to 1 shot in the betting, had won the second race. There were 15 holders of the lucky tickets.

Dust Girl, a daughter of Broomsdale, was making the second start of her career. She never left the result in doubt when Jockey Finnerty straightened her out and let her run for the winning post. The Nash boys may have a good one in this missie.

Hot Tip Cools.

Brooms, her sire, was one of the highest priced yearlings ever sold at Saratoga. He brought $60,000 in the boom days. He didn't amount to anything as a race horse but Dust Girl won so easily and in such impressive fashion Brooms seemed to be flashing a signal that his sons and daughters are going to go places. Dust Girl looked about as good as any filly that has been shown in Chicago this season.

She wasn't entirely neglected in the betting, for the mutuel price was $13.58 to win, $9.10 to place, and $4.48 to show. Dorothea finished second, and Courland third. The hottest tip of the season was out on Chinese Empress, but this filly, after showing a flash of speed early, was far out of it the rest of the way and was quitting in the late stages.

Eastern Stars of Turf Arrive for Arlington Meet

Unloading at Arlington Park yesterday from the east were Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney's Greentree stable of 13 horses and Allan Ryan's Anall stable, composed of seven horses. Trainers William Brennan and E. J. Bennett were in charge of the respective shipments.

The unbeaten juvenile colt, Black Buddy, and the Classic candidate, Jungle King, headed the Greentree lot, which also included The Triumver, First Minstrel, Earnings, Banberry, Koterito, Spy Hill, Welcome Gift, Dabchick, Miss Mouse, Barkatine, and Fancy Feathers. Black Buddy recently won the National Stallion and Juvenile stakes at Belmont Park and he is an intended starter in the Hyde Park stakes on July 1.

Larranaga, winner of the Cuban Grand National, Hialeah and Decoration Day handicaps this season is the most prominent member of the Anall string. He is eligible to the Stars and Stripes and Arlington handicaps. His stablemates are Helios, Silk Flag, Crap Shooter, Snoops, Howya, and Avant.

Gallant Sir, Plucky Play, and four other members of Norman Church's stable were transferred from Lincoln Fields to Arlington yesterday. Both horses are candidates for the Stars and Stripes and Arlington handicaps. The Church nominee for the Classic is Northgalis. Sun Dot and Whizz James, Arlington Inaugural hopefuls, will be moved to Arlington today by Trainer Woody Fitzgerald.

Other establishments going to the north side course from Crete were those of Dixiana, numbering 11 head and including Mata Hari and Far Star; Hal Price Headley, with ten horses, and Everglades stable, with eight.

The followers of Jockey Jack Westrope were just about to lose hope that he would get them even yesterday. Then Westrope crawled into the saddle on Col. E. R. Bradley's Broad Meadows in the sixth race and scored a handy victory. Broad Meadows paid $11.70, so the Westrope backers were even again.

Little Jack Howard, Kentucky plunger, scored with the Coldstream Stud's Transcall in the first race yesterday. Despite much backing for the daughter of Transmute—Bird Call, she paid off in the mutuels at $8.54. Jockey Corbett had to weave her in and out of close quarters frequently to get her up in time to trim Jim Norris' General Parth.

Every horse the Audley farm stable sends to the post appears to be full of run. For some reason the betting people do not seem to be backing the wearers of the famous lavender jacket from Virginia.

Most of the stylish 2 year olds owned by Warren Wright of Chicago will be ridden by Jockey Sonny Workman and A. Robertson when they fill their engagements at Arlington Park, according to reports heard at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

It is reported in the east that Ladysman, champion 2 year old of last season, is a very lame horse and may not start again this season. He was not brought west with others in the W. R. Coe stable.

Alderman Roger Kiley Marries at Notre Dame

Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th], an attorney and former Notre Dame football star, was married yesterday at Notre Dame to Miss Helen R. Burke of River Forest. Kiley, who is 32 years old, was elected alderman several months ago. After his graduation he was football coach at Loyola university and assistant coach to Chet Wynn at Auburn. Miss Burke is the daughter of a contractor.

Wisconsin Black Bass Hide Away in Small Lakes

BY BOB BECKER.

If Wisconsin black bass fishermen have as much luck this week when they start their 1933 season as the wall eyed pike anglers have been enjoying during the last ten days, there will be some big strings of fish tucked away in the ice houses up north before next Saturday. According to reports Chicago fishermen visiting northern Wisconsin lakes have obtained exceptionally fine pike fishing.

One of the blue ribbons goes to a 12½ pounder taken from the Lac du Flambeau waters. This fish measured more than 30 inches and was a good example of the proverbial newcomer's luck. Irving E. Glickman, 1815 N. Michigan avenue, Chicago, never had gone fishing in his life until a few days ago, when he sallied forth on Crawling Stone lake, one of the many pike and muskie lakes in the Lac du Flambeau country of northern Wisconsin. The very first fish which struck his lure was this 12½ pound wall eyed pike.

The Flambeau lakes have been consistently stocked with wall eyes for many years. A majority of the lakes up where the Ojibway Indians live are ideally suited for the growth of wall eyes, since they contain many gravel and sand bars. Gunlock lake, which also can furnish good muskie fishing, is one of the spots in the Flambeau which now is yielding a big crop of large wall eyes.

Fishermen who visit these waters also should try Fence lake and Crawling Stone. Shishebogema is another good bet for both wall eyes and muskies. Sand lake also should be fished.

It usually is advisable to get an Indian guide to lead the way over old tote roads to some of the smaller lakes not connected with the wall eye and muskie chain if one wants black bass. On our trips to Flambeau we have followed this proceedure and found lakes which had both large and small mouth black bass in them.

Carnegie Tech and Pitt Reduce Football Prices

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 20.—(AP)—Reduction in the price of football tickets, averaging about 20 per cent, were announced tonight by Pitt and Carnegie Tech. Sideline seats range from $1.50 for the Pitt-Washington and Jefferson game to $3 for the Pitt-Notre Dame and Navy contests. End seats are priced as low as 50 cents. The top price for the season will be $4 for boxes at the Navy and Notre Dame games.

Parker Reaches Third Round of Western Tennis Tourney

Frank Parker of Milwaukee, defending champion in the western tennis tournament, advanced to the third round yesterday by defeating Wilson Cole of Chicago, 6-0, 6-0, at the River Forest Tennis club.

Play began yesterday in the women's singles division. Katherine Wolff of Elkhart, Ind., was seeded No. 1 in place of the 1932 champion, Mrs. Stanley Hack, who is not defending her title. The 62 women competing in the tournament include many of the leading Chicago players as well as representatives of Los Angeles, Pasadena, St. Paul, Houston, San Antonio, Detroit, and New York.

Players tired quickly yesterday in the intense heat, the thermometer on the courts registering 100 degrees. The high temperature forced Mrs. Elizabeth Sturgis to withdraw while her match was still in progress.

Continue Shires Trial for Assault Until Aug. 10

Louisville, Ky., June 20.—[Special.]—The case of Art Shires, recently traded to Rochester by the Columbus American association club and who faces a charge of malicious assault here, was continued today until Aug. 10. Shires was arrested after a brawl several weeks ago.

Dunlap Scores 3 and 2 Victory in British Golf

HOYLAKE, England, June 20.—The favorites in the British amateur golf tournament had no difficulty in winning as play was continued today. The United States' leading representative, George T. Dunlap Jr., former holder of the American intercollegiate title while attending Princeton university, swept into the fourth round with a 3 and 2 victory over A. W. Whyte of Western Gailes.

C. Ross Somerville of London, Ont., winner of last year's American amateur championship, kept pace with Dunlap by defeating W. H. Sharpe of Dunbar. The score was 8 and 7. Somerville had a 35, one under par, for the first nine, and a 43 on the second round. Sharpe scored a 43 on the first round and a 54 on the second.

Others who triumphed included Cyril Tolley, giant Englishman, who had held the title on two occasions, 1920 and 1929. Tolley, who drew a first round bye, made his debut in the tournament by defeating R. H. Oppenheimer of the Royal and Ancient club, 3 and 2. The victory sent Tolley into the third round.

Another former champion, Roger Wethered, defeated Dr. J. MacCormack, 1 up. Jack McLean, Scotland's hope to win the championship, triumphed over John Beck, member of the 1928 Walker cup team, 7 and 6.

Two Canadian entrants, J. M. Burns and Don Anderson, were defeated. Burns lost in the second round to F. McGloin of West Kint, 5 and 4, while Anderson was defeated by Lewis Barri, Spain, 3 and 2.

LEONARD BEATS CARMEN BARTH IN 5TH ROUND

Kid Leonard, Moline, Ill., middleweight, pounded out an eight round decision over Carmen Barth, Olympic champion, last night at the Western stadium, Devon and Western, before 1,500.

Barth, a former Golden Gloves boxer from Cleveland, was no match for Leonard. He was dropped for an eight count in the fourth round. Don Gonzales, another Cleveland boxer and a former Golden Gloves champion, was stopped by Frankie Hughes of Clinton, Ia., in the fifth round.

CANZONERI AND ROSS END BOXING SESSIONS TODAY

Challenger Continues Secret Ring Sessions.

Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, and Barney Ross will finish boxing today at Trafton's gymnasium for their 10 round title bout Friday night at the Chicago Stadium. Ross will box privately again.

He sparred three rounds yesterday with California Joe Rivers, a lightweight. While Art Winch was drilling him on the alleged weakness of the champion, Sam Pain stood guard at the door of the private instruction room, even refusing to admit newspapermen. After the boxing session Ross shadow boxed, skipped the rope, punched the bag and did calisthenics.

Canzoneri Boxes Six Rounds.

When Ross left the floor Canzoneri appeared. He went two rounds with Joey Pleko and one each with Roosevelt Haines and Lewis Wallace. All three made the champion exert himself. During the drill Sam Goldman, manager of Canzoneri, spied a couple of Ross backers in the crowd and had them ousted. The tactics of Ross' comanagers have irked Goldman.

The impression was general yesterday that Ross may win if he elects to stand off and box Canzoneri. They contend that if Barney trades slugs with Canzoneri, the champion probably will score a knockout.

How They Argue.

The age old question of whether a boxer can beat a fighter will be up for decision. Ross has outboxed scores of fighters since he started boxing professionally four years ago, but he never yet has faced a man with Canzoneri's ability.

Ross' backers maintain that the challenger won from a more difficult opponent than Canzoneri in Billy Petrolle. They hold that Petrolle was harder to defeat because of his weaving tactics. Canzoneri is considered to be just right for Ross because he is a stand up fighter.

Ray Tramblie, Rockford, Ill., middleweight, and Bud Saltis of the north side will renew their feud tonight in an eight round bout at Northwest stadium, 4848 Irving Park boulevard. It is their fourth meeting.

Tramblie recently returned from Louisville, Ky., where he boxed Henry Firpo. Previously he knocked out Freddy Eiller and beat Bob Groshek and Joe Mendoza. Saltis showed much improvement in his last match when he won from Jack Moran. He also beat Bob Groshek.

Tony Muscarello, Golden Gloves product, will seek his fifth straight victory against Carl Scalise in the four round semi-final. Scalise beat Muscarello last year. Other bouts: Jack Reid vs. George Schrosbree [4]; Frank Ketter vs. Nelson Berard [4]; Biff Bennett vs. Jack Robinson [4]; Tony Hajdich vs. Fred Kohler [wrestling].

Eric Schlachter, featherweight, and Anton Koch, 202 pounds, will compete in the amateur boxing tournament tonight at Ashland arena, Ashland avenue and Addison street. They will draw their opponents by lot. Others who have entered are Allen Asp, middleweight; Augie Vollmer, lightweight, and Ed Johnson, flyweight. John Smik and Steve Smith will wrestle.

TIGERS OUTHIT ATHLETICS, BUT LOSE BATTLE, 9-4

Detroit Uses 4 Pitchers; Freitas Goes Route.

Detroit, Mich., June 20.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics ended Detroit's winning streak with a 9 to 4 victory today in the closing game of the series. The Tigers had won three straight games from the Macks.

Stephenson's Finger Broken as Cubs Win

three days in the first inning, but the session was a fadeout nevertheless. English opened with a single to right. Bill Herman's tap to Critz forced him. Babe Herman walked after O'Doul had drawn an error for dropping his foul. Then Stephenson doubled to left, Bill Herman scoring the first Chicago run in 20 innings. Grimm tapped to Ryan, and Babe Herman was caught off third. Demaree was called out on a strike which split the plate.

A double play blighted the Giants in their first, though they pushed off with a pair of hits. Critz opened with a single to right and went down with O'Doul in a double play launched by Bill Herman. Ott singled to center, but Terry flied to Stephenson.

English Hits Homer.

Demaree opened the fourth with a single to left and went to third on Hartnett's single to center. Jurges fouled to Mancuso. Demaree scored while Critz was throwing out Tinning. English walked, but was forced by Bill Herman.

The Cubs had to rely on a wild pitch to get a run out of three hits in the sixth. Hartnett led off with his second single, this one off Spencer who entered the game when Umpire Magerkurth bounced Bell for protesting a decision in the Giants' fifth. Jurges followed with a single to center, Hartnett stopping at second. Tinning fanned. English lined a single to right, and Hartnett got the notion he could barge home. This was an erroneous idea, for he was thrown out, Ott to Mancuso, Jurges stopping at third and English reaching second. Jurges scored and English reached third on a wild pitch, but Bill Herman sent a gentle fly to O'Doul.

Tinning Weakens Suddenly.

Tinning, who hadn't allowed a hit since the first inning, suddenly bogged down in the seventh and was driven from the game before a batsman had been retired. Vergez started the riot by caroming a single off English's glove. Then Moore doubled to left. Mancuso singled to center, Vergez scoring. Ryan followed with a double off the left field wall, Moore scoring and Mancuso stopping at third. Grimes relieved Tinning, and Peel, batting for Spencer, flied to Stephenson. Critz flied to Babe Herman, Ryan scoring. Grimm then made a brilliant stop and tossed to Grimes to retire O'Doul.

Hubbell took over the pitching task in the eighth and held the Cubs to one hit.

WINS SOUTH ILLINOIS MEDAL.

MOON MULLINS—TRUE CONFESSIONS

Phillies Win Twice from Reds, 7-4, 7-3

Philadelphia, Pa., June 20.—(AP)—The Phillies made it three straight over the Cincinnati Reds by winning a double header today. The scores were 7 to 4 and 7 to 3.

Johnny Jackson, former University of Pennsylvania pitcher, making his first start in the major leagues, held the Reds to eight hits in the opening contest.

BROOKLYN BUYS MEMPHIS CLUB'S HOME RUN STAR

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—The Brooklyn National league baseball club today announced the acquisition of Joe Hutcheson of the Memphis Southern association team. Hutcheson is the leading home run hitter in the Southern league. Three players and an unannounced sum were given to Memphis.

The three players sent to Memphis in the deal are Henry Lieber, property of the New York Giants, now with Jersey City; Outfielder Murray Howell of Toronto, and Clyde Sukeforth, Brooklyn second string catcher. Dave Driscoll, Brooklyn secretary, said the Giants and Toronto agreed to help them by sending their players to Memphis.

Yanks' Seven Run Uprising Defeats Sox

only two score. Appling started it with a drive into the left field seats. Kress was tossed out, but Dykes walked and Lazzeri fumbled Berry's grounder. The latter was forced by Wyatt. Then Allen lost control again. He walked Hayes and Haas, forcing Dykes to score. Swanson closed the inning with a grounder to Lary.

The three run attack that put the Yanks ahead, 5 to 4, in the fifth and also removed Wyatt from the scene began with a pass to Lary. Allen slapped a grounder straight back at Wyatt, but it got past him for a hit. Walker's single to center sent Lary across the plate. Sewell sacrificed and Ruth walked, filling the bases. Gehrig made use of this opportunity by singling to center, scoring Allen and Walker. Ruth took third on the hit. Jones came in to pitch to Chapman, and on the latter's grounder to Appling, Ruth was nailed at the plate. Lazzeri did nothing.

Sox Tie Score.

The Sox climbed back into a 5 to 5 tie in their portion of the fifth, but needed three hits to get the one run across. Simmons and Appling led off with singles. The next two batters flied out. Berry then slipped a single into center, scoring Simmons with the tying run; Jones fanned.

Dickey bounced a single off Jones' glove to open the sixth and all sorts of happenings followed. Lary walked. Jones, with an easy chance to force Dickey at third on Allen's bunt, fumbled the ball. Walker's fly to center let Dickey score. Lary registered on Sewell's force of Allen. Then Ruth added two more on homer No. 15 into the right field upper deck. Gehrig walked, and Gaston rushed to Jones' relief. Gaston wasn't much of a success. Chapman and Lazzeri singled and Dickey tripled. These hits, with some bad throwing by Berry and wild base running by the Yanks, picked up three more runs before Kimsey halted the seven run rumpus.

Sox Come Back with Three.

The Sox responded with three runs in their seventh inning attack, but were still four in arrears of a tie. Appling opened with his third hit and Kress walked. A single by Dykes scored Appling. Grube doubled past third to drive Kress home and put Dykes on third, whereupon Allen was yanked for Ruffing. Sullivan, batting for Kimsey, nicked the rescuer for a long fly to right, scoring Dykes. The next two batters didn't bother Ruffing.

Three Yank runs in the ninth started with Walker's homer to right. The next two men were set down, but Gehrig beat out a bunt, Chapman walked, and both scored on Lazzeri's single, which Simmons fumbled.

Armour's 67 Sets Record, Wins Pro-Amateur Title

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Tom Armour, as gifted a showman as golf has ever produced, played a double bill at the Medinah Country club yesterday which laid the customers in the aisles.

After rallying to tie Harry Cooper of Glen Oak for the Illinois state professional championship in the morning with a 36 hole score of 146, Armour came back in the afternoon in the pro-amateur event with a 67, five strokes under par, for a new record on the No. 3 course at Medinah.

Armour and Cooper will decide the professional title in an 18 hole playoff starting at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The playoff will be a reenactment of the drama of 1927, when Armour came from behind to tie Cooper in the national open at Oakmont.

Armour Wins Alone.

Armour's 67, scored on a course which has baffled all of the native marksmen, was the more remarkable because it was made in a best ball event. In reality, it was his own personal card, for he required no assistance from his amateur partner, Oliver Schmidt, of Medinah.

The only contribution Oliver might have made occurred at the 18th, where he made a long but unsuccessful attempt for a birdie while Armour was taking a par four.

Tommy's card was one of flawless golf throughout. He was over par only at the 6th, where his second shot was trapped. That was rubbed out by a parade of six birdies.

There was an eight foot putt for one at the third, a one footer at the fifth, a four footer at the seventh, an eight footer at the 10th, an eight inch putt at the 13th and, as a climax, a 35 footer at the 14th. He missed a short effort for a seventh birdie at the 17th. Armour's card:

Par—Out	434	454	534—36
Par—In	544	534	434—36—72
Armour—Out	433	445	434—34
Armour—In	444	424	434—39—67

Armour's single handed performance was more than sufficient to win the pro-amateur title for himself and Schmidt. Andy Anderson of Itasca and E. V. Blake, Westward Ho amateur, shot a best ball of 69 to tie Niel Christian of Lincoln park and Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge for second place.

Cooper, five strokes back of Armour at the conclusion of the first eighteen holes on Monday, burned up the difficult No. 3 layout in the pro meet with a 33 for the first nine, three strokes under par. Armour, meanwhile, was encountering trouble, and finally escaped with a 41. Harry took a 37 coming home for a card of 70, two under par, while Armour made a finish similar to his 1927 drive at Oakmont by coming back with a 34 for a 75. Tommy shot a 71 on Monday while Cooper was taking a 76.

Others Break Par.

Others in the field were not idle yesterday, two of them breaking par to trail the leaders by only three strokes at the finish. Abe Espinosa of Cog-Hill, who won the first Illinois championship conducted by the Chicago District Golf association in 1931, turned in a 70 for a total of 149.

Sonny Rouse of Rogers Park Range came through with a 71 to duplicate Espinosa's card.

Cooper Starts Smartly.

Cooper began his round yesterday almost as handsomely as he had Monday when he holed a 100 foot chip shot for a birdie three, by sinking an eighteen foot putt for another birdie. He followed the card to the fifth, where he pushed his second 25 feet from the pin and ran it home for an eagle three. He matched par to the turn for his 33. He took a six at the tenth, where he drove the rough and sent his third into a trap. He birdied the 500 yard 13th, by dropping his third shot two feet from the cup. He missed a two foot putt for a par four at the 16th.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 20.—Bond prices continued to rise today as the dollar weakened. Speculative railroad bonds led the advance, which extended from 1 to 4 points. Good buying of industrial issues was a feature.

Notwithstanding the huge expenditures entailed by the recovery program, government bonds were firm. Foreign bonds made an irregular advance, with best gains in South Americans and French governments.

North Western Line Rises.

A feature in the railroad division was Freemont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley 6s, due Oct. 1, which appreciated more than 3 points on announcement that the Chicago & North Western will ask the reconstruction finance corporation for a loan to pay the maturity one-half in cash and the remainder in the latter road's general mortgage 5s, due 1937, rose from 1 to 5 points. The heaviest trading was done in Milwaukee sinking fund 5s and Milwaukee adjustment 5s. The demand for Nickel Plate bonds also was active, with the result that prices rose from 2 to 5 points in that group.

Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s led the market for loans of that system. Other good ground gainers were Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific and K. & T. bonds. The latter rose from fractions to more than 2 points.

Utilities Strong.

Utilities also were strong. The investment issues of the American Telephone & Telegraph company were in good demand and institutional buying of them was reported. But gains were generally fractional. International Telephone & Telegraph and Postal Telegraph bonds extended their recent gains. Western Union issues were irregular.

Industrials moved up along with other divisions. Chile Copper 5s, due in 1947, were a strong feature. There was good buying of certain oil bonds, including Pure Oil 5½s.

CAPPER SEES DOLLAR WHEAT BY END OF YEAR

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas looks for dollar wheat by the end of 1933. Cheerfulness about the future was the keynote of an interview given yesterday by the Republican senator, a veteran in the fight for remedial farm legislation.

He said commodity prices should continue to rise, thus increasing employment and wages. Wheat that sold at 30 cents a bushel last year at this time now sells around 60 cents, and he said that by the end of the year it will yield the farmer $1.

Asked whether the latest farm legislation, with its bonuses for acreage curtailment, would work, he said:

"I think that in the hands of Secretary Wallace, a high class man, and the ablest agricultural economist we have in the west, that it is bound to work."

DAILY AVERAGE CRUDE OUTPUT SHOWS DECREASE

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 97,500 barrels in the week ended June 17, totaling 2,611,850 barrels, the American Petroleum institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California decreased 101,700 barrels to 2,132,350 barrels.

Refineries reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,344,000 barrels. Daily average the preceding week was 2,253,000 barrels.

PACKERS GIVE WALLACE PLAN FOR MARKETING

Administration Acts on Wheat, Cotton.

Washington, D. C., June 20.—(AP)—Through their trade organization, the American Institute of Meat Packers, a majority of the meat packing industry has presented the fundamentals for a proposed trade agreement covering the marketing of swine for approval by administrators of the farm act.

Some provisions were described today as unacceptable to administrators of the act but they were prepared to proceed toward drafting an agreement through which they hope to provide aid for both hog and corn growers by increasing long range prices for swine.

Any trade agreement finally approved by Secretary Wallace would be free from anti-trust law prohibitions which long have been opposed by many of the major packing concerns. Wallace has authority to enforce any agreement by refusing operating licenses to packers who refuse to abide by its provisions.

Agree to Fixed Prices.

The packers were reported to have expressed a willingness to abide by a system of fixed prices being considered for swine, to allocate distribution territory in the interest of lowering distribution costs.

They urged that any agreement be so drawn as to assure them of an adequate daily supply of hogs and to provide a fair return to them on their investment.

Administrators of the farm act are proceeding with two main principles in mind in addressing themselves to the problem of hog and corn overproduction. Corn is used chiefly as feed for swine.

They hope through a trade agreement to reduce the spread between prices paid producers of hogs and the scale of prices for hog products. They also are anxious to reduce the aggregate tonnage of swine by providing a system of premiums for medium weight hogs brought to packing plants.

Consideration is being given a proposal to levy some processing tax on swine and to use some of the proceeds to pay benefits to farmers who agree to reduce their corn acreage.

All of the plans present difficult administrative questions and an effort to work these out quickly is being made under the direction of George N. Peek, chief administrator.

Act on Cotton, Wheat.

Thousands of contract forms are being printed to be sent into cotton states to be distributed among farmers in putting Secretary Wallace's cotton acreage reduction plans into execution.

The contract forms will be distributed to give farmers an opportunity to indicate whether they are willing to destroy part of their growing crop in return for a cash rental benefit based on the average production of the area retired.

A series of meetings in the wheat belt is being arranged by administrators of the wheat program which calls for paying cash benefits to farmers agreeing to reduce their acreage for 1934 and 1935.

The first meetings are planned for the two states producing the most wheat, Kansas and North Dakota, with other conferences through the wheat growing regions to follow soon afterward.

These conferences will be preliminary to the setting up of county organizations of wheat growers through which the agreements to reduce output in the next two years will be solicited and through which the benefit payments will be made.

N. Y. TIMES INDEX SHOWS BUSINESS 45% ABOVE LOW

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—The New York Times tomorrow morning will print a statement headed "Business Has Turned Up," and saying:

"The Times weekly index of business activity for the week ended June 10 represents the highest point since July 4, 1931. The trend of business, as reflected by this indicator, has advanced for twelve consecutive weeks, registering a 45 per cent gain since the low points in the week ended March 18."

Evanston First National Bank to Open Today

The First National bank of Evanston will open this morning as successor to the City National Bank and Trust company. Sixty per cent of the unsecured deposits totaling $2,400,000 and all of the secured deposits of the old bank will be released with the opening.

The new bank has capital and surplus of $337,500, of which $150,000 was put up by the Reconstruction Finance corporation for preferred stock.

Joseph F. Wanberg, formerly with the Chicago office of the national banking department, will be president of the new bank. Charles N. Stevens, president of the old bank, will be chairman, and W. W. Buchanan, federal conservator of the old bank since March, will be vice president and trust officer.

In addition to the three mentioned the directors are C. H. Bosworth, Edwin Sherman, T. Samuel Parsons, John S. Burchmore, E. E. Sheridan, W. C. Spofford, J. Martin Fall Jr., and Rawleigh Warner. Mr. Bosworth will be chairman of the executive committee.

Approximately $187,000 of the capital for the new bank was put up by stockholders and depositors of the old bank, the balance being supplied by the R. F. C.

Slow assets of the old bank will be gradually liquidated to satisfy the 40 per cent of claims not assumed by the new institution. The old bank was one of the largest banks in the suburban area. The new bank will occupy the same quarters at the southwest corner of Davis street and Sherman avenue.

NORTH WESTERN R. F. C. LOAN MAY CUT SALARIES

The decision of the Chicago and North Western railway to apply to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of $3,862,000 to be used in meeting its October 1 bond maturity very likely will necessitate a salary readjustment for President Fred W. Sargent and a few other officials of the road, it was stated yesterday.

As the law covering loans made by the Reconstruction Finance corporation now stands, salaries of officials of companies receiving the help must be "reasonable." The R. F. C. is to set the amount which is "reasonable."

When the Southern Pacific received a $23,200,000 loan from the R. F. C. recently the salary of President Hale Holden was reduced from $150,000 to $60,000 annually. An interstate commerce commission compilation as of March, 1932, gave Mr. Sargent's salary as $61,000.

However, salaries of executives of the North Western twice have been reduced 10 per cent from the basic rate and a third cut of 10 per cent of the remaining amount, equivalent to 28 per cent of their former basic rate.

"We are not going to worry about the pay reductions until we have to," Samuel H. Cady, vice president and general counsel of the North Western remarked yesterday. "The loan does not come up until September and who knows what the situation may be then. In the meantime our revenues are picking up at a good rate and this may change our requirements. While we need the R. F. C. loan to make a 50 per cent cash payment on our bond maturity we expect to pay all our interest charges for the rest of 1933 out of current earnings."

PROTEST AGAINST GERMAN HALTING OF INTEREST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 20.—A protest against the stoppage on July 1 of interest payments on Germany's bonded debt under the moratorium of June 8 was cabled today to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, by John Foster Dulles on behalf of American bankers who have marketed German dollar bonds. About one billion dollars of these bonds are outstanding in this country.

Germany's foreign exchange position does not warrant such a drastic step, according to Mr. Dulles, a member of the law firm of Sullivan and Cromwell. If she persists, her credit, public and private, will suffer lasting injury, he warned.

Mr. Dulles returned last week from Berlin, where he attended the debt discussions called by the Reichsbank.

Elliott White Springs Announces Cotton Merger

Charlotte, N. C., June 20.—(AP)—Merger of the cotton textile manufacturing plants of the Springs interests in South Carolina, operating 350,000 spindles, was announced here today by Capt. Elliott White Springs, president. The plants have an aggregate capitalization of more than $4,000,000.

50,000 Recalled to Work by New York Industries

SPURT IN CALL FOR PULLMANS AMAZES RAILS

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

JAMES KEELEY.

Idle cars are being pulled out of sidings and put back to work. More work is being provided for engineers, firemen, brakemen, conductors, and porters, and a dozen other classes of workmen whose livelihood depends on the nation's passenger travel.

From all sections of the country people are coming to Chicago to see A Century of Progress. A glance at the recent bookings of the Pullman company would indicate that most of the residents of Texas are descending on the city. Other sections are sending visitors by the hundreds, but Texas is far in the lead now, figures indicate.

Expect Travel to Continue.

And it's no flash in the pan. Of this railroad men are confident. In the next two months the big travel from the south and other sections is expected.

"The rails will scorch with passenger traffic in July and August," was the way James Keeley, vice president of the Pullman company, put it.

Here are a few figures to show the increase in travel that is taking place. Two weeks ago Sunday the Pullman company put 204 extra cars in use to accommodate the traffic. Last Sunday the number of extra cars reached 431, and the coming week-end more than 400 extra cars are already booked. This week-end will show an increase of 100 per cent over two weeks ago.

Ten Section Train Coming.

A ten sectio ntrain—believed to be the largest ever run—will leave New York next Sunday for Chicago. The train will be a mile and a half long and maybe longer.

Three special trains arrived Monday from Texas with 715 passengers. Requests for tourist cars in 20 and 25 car lots are being received from other cities in that state. One of the largest tours is one sponsored by a Dallas dry goods store, which invited its customers to take the trip and charge it to their account. Another was promoted by an Amarillo newspaper.

Traffic from the Pacific coast is good. The Union Pacific has put an extra Pullman on its Los Angeles train. The south is furnishing its share of visitors but the real traffic from that section is looked for in July and August. One of the early tours from that section is a large group from a women's college in Atlanta, Ga.

Money in Circulation.

What does the travel mean? It means money being spent all along the line. The Exposition here is the magnet but it gets only a small percentage of the money spent by the travelers. The rest goes for railroad and Pullman fare, meals, new clothes and a dozen other things. People are digging down in their jeans and spending and it is "unfreezing" dozens of trade channels not connected with the Exposition.

Here's an example. A family of four spent four days and $750 on a trip to A Century of Progress. Of the $750 only $18 was spent on two visits to the Fair grounds, or less than 3 per cent. And that is said to be representative.

The average expenditures within the Fair grounds to date has been only $1.25 per person to date, Fair officials said yesterday.

The head of the family which spent $18 of its $750 at the Fair explained the reason somewhat sorrowfully: "Well, my wife discovered State street."

Farm Price Gains Help Iowa Farmers to Cut Debts

Sioux City, Ia., June 20.—(AP)—Delinquencies on interest and installment payment to the Federal Land bank of Omaha were decreased $600,000 between May 1 and June 1 on loans made to Iowa farmers, D. P. Hogan, head of the bank, told members of the Iowa Bankers' association at their 47th annual convention here today.

The amount indicates the extent the increase in farm commodity prices has aided the farmers.

Pittman Currency Plan Fails to Aid Silver Price

New York, June 20.—(AP)—Presentation of the Pittman currency plan to the monetary committee of the economic conference was followed by comparatively light activity in the market for that metal here today. Bar silver remained unchanged at 36 cents an ounce, while futures showed small gains in rather light trading.

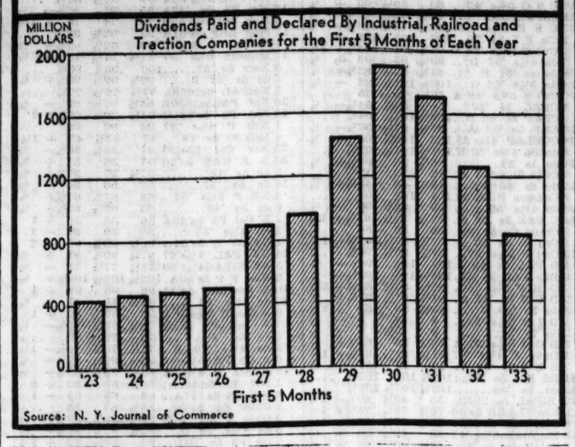
Aggregate Dividend Payments Are Smallest in Seven Years



Aged Whisky in U. S. Enough for Five Weeks

If national prohibition is repealed in 1934 the country will have on hand only 5,400,000 gallons of whiskey aged for four years or more. At the 1919 rate of consumption this is only a five weeks supply. The estimate is arrived at by adding the amount now on hand to the estimated 1932 production and deducting the consumption this year of medicinal liquor. The deductions are based on a survey by Goodby & Co. This country will lean heavily on Canada and the British islands—the other whisky drinking countries—for its immediate needs if the law is repealed, it is believed.

Contrary to what might be expected, the return of beer has failed to cut into coffee sales in restaurants and cafés. One coffee dealer explained it this way: "Beer has not replaced coffee as a beverage. People still insist on having their coffee no matter how much beer they drink. However, the sale of beer has enabled restaurant and café owners to make a profit so that they are now paying their bills, including those for coffee."

* *

Brokers generally are confident that the bear market is over. Few, however commit themselves in black and white to that opinion. Paine Webber & Co. is one of those. "Supplementing our statement of Dec. 15 that the bear market had terminated," the house advises its customers, "we are now of the belief that the broad trend of prices is still upward and will score further substantial improvement."

* *

The new securities act is one of the prime reasons why brokers are either tempering their opinions or keeping them entirely to themselves. Carl H. Pforzheimer & Co., specialists in Standard Oil shares, have notified their customers that until the provisions of the new law are thoroughly clarified they will suspend publication of their weekly summary of investment information.

Demand for horse meat is picking up again, according to the Schlesser Brothers packing plant at Portland, Ore., which has resumed operations after a long shutdown. About 75 men are employed in the plant. The meat is sold principally in Holland, Norway and Sweden. The horses used for this trade are from the wild herds of eastern Oregon, Idaho, Montana, and Canada.

U. S. GETS OVER BILLION IN CASH TO AID RECOVERY

Washington, D. C., June 20.—(AP)—Gathering cash to start President Roosevelt's recovery program, the treasury on June 17 had amassed $1,008,099,817 in its general fund.

The huge total, reminiscent of war times, was made possible through the sale on June 15 of $1,083,000,000 of treasury securities from which a balance of nearly $600,000,000 was left after maturing debts and other necessary expenses were paid. In addition to the money derived from the sale, income taxes had returned $104,281,178 for the month, $14,000,000 less than in the same month a year ago.

Miscellaneous internal revenue, including the new levies in the billion dollar tax bill and the beer revenues, had brought in $71,483,928 for the month, as compared with $26,644,986 in the same period of June a year ago.

Postal Receipts in 12 Cities Rise 15.29 Per Cent

Washington, D. C., June 20.—(AP)—Postal receipts at 12 large offices in all sections of the country showed a 15.29 per cent increase for the week ending June 16 over the corresponding period of 1932. The postoffice department announced no city showed decreased postal receipts for the period. Total receipts at the 12 offices amounted to $3,193,534, while for the week ending June 16, 1932, they were $2,770,017.

DOLLAR RALLIES AFTER SLUMP TO NEAR LOW POINT

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—After acute weakness during most of the day, the dollar rallied strongly late this afternoon to close irregularly lower in terms of European exchanges.

The pound sterling advanced to a new high since the suspension of the gold standard here at $4.19½, following the publication of further reports indicating that the treasury is opposed to stabilization of the dollar at this time. Later, for no apparent reason, sterling reacted to close at its low for the day, $4.16¾, up 1½ cents net.

Pound Near London Price.

At its peak the pound was only half a cent under its recent peak reached in London June 12. The previous highest price for the pound in the New York market was $4.18½, also on June 12.

The franc and other currencies rallied with sterling, and also reacted later. French exchange reached .0486¼, but closed at .0480. At its peak the dollar was at a discount of 19.34 per cent against the gold franc, or only one-tenth of a cent above its lowest point on Monday of last week. At the closing quotation the dollar was worth in values of French gold 81.69 cents.

Other Currencies Rise.

Guilders reached 49.60 cents and finished at 49.23 cents, up 8 points; belgas were down 10 points net on the day to 17 cents; Swiss francs off 3 points net to 23.60 cents.

German marks rose to 29.38 cents and retained 5 points of their advance, closing at 29.10 cents; Italian lire were up ½ point at 6.41 cents. Scandinavian exchanges were all 10 points higher and the Japanese yen improved 50 points to 26.43 cents.

North Western Will Oil Roadbed to Avoid Dust

Oiling of the roadbed between Chicago and the Twin Cities as a dust preventative will be completed today by the Chicago and North Western railway. Other sections of the roadbed will be oiled in the near future. The oil is preheated almost to the boiling point and applied under heavy pressure.

CHARGES LOAN FIRM LOOTED BY OFFICIALS

Trustees Heads Hit in Court Action.

Charges that the Trustees System Discount company of Chicago and other subsidiaries in the 40 million dollar Trustees System service were looted by officers and directors of the Industrial Loan and Guaranty company, the parent concern, are made in a petition presented in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court yesterday.

J. C. CORCORAN.

The petition, seeking to intervene in the Trustees System Discount company receivership, names J. C. Corcoran, D. J. Corcoran, J. G. Dorn, L. J. Medina, and F. J. Gibbons as the group which dominated the affairs of forty-one associated companies. The petition was presented on behalf of three gold note holders by Attorneys James Rosenthal and Arnold I. Shure and Judge Wilkerson set June 27 for a hearing to determine whether it may be filed.

Charges in Petition.

It is charged that gold notes were sold to the public by the Trustees System Discount company through misrepresentations. The purchasers were told, according to the petition, that the money raised was to be used for the purchase of Liberty bonds and for the making of personal loans. They were also told that the loan business was constantly increasing, whereas during the period from Jan. 1, 1932, to May 31, 1932, when the notes were sold, the loans dropped off more than half a million dollars, the petition alleges.

The Trustees System Discount company is further charged with purchasing 230,000 shares of class A common stock of the Trustees System Service corporation, its parent, for $1,150,000, in violation of the purpose for which the gold notes were sold.

Supports Market.

"In violation of its agreement with the purchasers," says the petition, "Trustees System Discount company of Chicago between Jan. 31, 1931, and Oct. 28, 1932, advanced to or for the use and benefit of the Trustees System Service corporation $1,346,760, of which amount $450,000 was advanced for the purpose of supporting the market price of the preferred stock of the Trustees System Discount company during the same period that the Trustees System Discount company was paying the Trustees System Service corporation excessive commissions for the sale of additional shares of the same stock."

"It is alleged that if the funds raised for the Trustees System Discount company through the sale of securities had not been diverted "or otherwise wrongfully dissipated" its proper business purposes would not have required the selling of additional securities.

The money thus raised and diverted, the petition states, was from time to time used to organize subsidiaries which were not engaged in the small loan business and in making loans to the subsidiaries.

Market's Fall as Dollar Dips New Puzzle

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The dollar went down again yesterday, but stocks didn't go up. For weeks the markets have been see-sawing. When the dollar declined stocks rose to compensate for the degree of inflation implied in the dollar's decline. And when the dollar rallied stocks would lose part of their gains.

Yesterday's action, therefore, broke precedent. With the dollar declining to new lows in relation to the pound and the franc a further rise in stocks and commodities would have occurred had the markets acted true to form.

That may have been the reason. One guess is as good as another. Another explanation might have been the confusing news from London.

* *

The markets abhor confusion and uncertainty. They can stand bad news better than they can stand the possibility of bad news.

The fruits of the apparent internal strife in the American delegation at London has the traders worried. They are apparently taking it easy until they can discover which delegate to believe.

Senator Key Pittman's proposal that the gold coverage of the dollar and other currencies be cut in two presents another possible way of effecting inflation.

Even when nations are on the gold standard they do not possess sufficient gold reserves to pay out gold for all their outstanding currency. They indulge in the fiction of maintaining a "gold reserve."

Against our federal reserve notes, for example, the law demands only a minimum of 40 per cent gold. Against the new "asset money" and other bank notes it demands no gold whatever.

* *

By reducing the required gold reserve a nation can print more money against a given amount of gold. By following Senator Pittman's suggestion nations might be able to inflate their currencies without actually reducing the theoretic gold content of the unit of money.

After reducing the gold reserve a nation might prevent a run on its gold supply by refusing to release gold except to settle trade balances.

Thus every nation would inflate its currency and raise its domestic price level simultaneously with similar action in other nations. The relations between currencies would not be altered but the domestic debt and tax load would be lightened in each country.

The United States and Great Britain would probably not find it hard to agree on a proposal of this kind. In France, however, there would be serious political complications. French rentes [government bonds] are largely in the hands of small holders who still have keen recollection of the manner in which their holdings dwindled after the war when th franc was devalued to 20 per cent of its former worth. They have no desire to see the operation repeated.

NORTHERN TRUST VOTES REGULAR $4.50 DIVIDENT

Directors of the Northern Trust company yesterday authorized the distribution of the regularly quarterly dividend of $4.50 a share, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20.

The present $18 annual rate has been in force since 1930. For several preceding years the bank had paid $16 a year as a regular dividend and $2 in extras.

STOCKS TRADING AT FAST PACE; SAG AFTER RISE

Profit Taking Wave Comes Late.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 20.—[Special.]—Today's stock market was mostly sound and fury. Trading was on an intensely active scale, approximately 5,460,000 shares changing hands, but little progress was made by any section of the list in either direction. Most of the recognized leaders finished a point or so below their previous close due to a heavy run of realizing sales during the afternoon dealings.

Attention continued to be focused on developments at the London conference. Additional assurances were forthcoming that the administration has no immediate intention of stabilizing the dollar, and this contributed some strength, particularly in the earlier dealings. Scraps of business news from one source and another served also to stimulate some buying by those who are persuaded that enough favorable influences are at work to warrant an upward looking market even if the dollar should be stabilized in the not too distant future.

Rail Loadings Help.

Conspicuous among advices of this tenor were reports of revenue freight loadings for last week from a half dozen or more carriers showing a continuation of the improvement over a year ago. Department store stocks got a fillip from a report that representatives of leading stores were conferring on the advisability of advancing retail prices.

Yesterday's spectacular advance brought a heavy overnight accumulation of buying orders, and business started off with a tremendous rush. Some 2,800,000 shares were traded in during the first two hours and gains of 1 to 4 points were chalked up in nearly all groups. On the face of the average tables the market was boosted back approximately to the peak of its spring advance recorded last week, thus registering what the trade knows as a "double top." It looked like the list was going to chase sterling to a spectacular new high.

Profit Taking Cuts Prices.

Around noon, however, profit taking began to slow up the advance and by the start of the final hour most of the leaders were back around their starting points. Bull leaders threw in some heavy orders in an attempt to give the market a good sendoff for the day, but the urge to realize was too strong and the last hour found prices crumbling away rapidly. The rapidity of the upturn from Friday's early low levels evidently looked "too good to last."

Railroad shares capitalized the carloadings figures to move up about a point on the average while the gods smiled on the picture. New York Central crossed 40 for the first time in more than two years.

A. T. & T. Strong Leader.

The utilities also showed considerable spunk. American Telephone more than made up the dividend of $2.25 which came off the price today before vacating its peak.

Various "independents" stepped out while the going was good. Coca-Cola had a seasonal rise of nearly 3 points. Celanese was active and rose nearly three points higher to the best price it has attained since it was listed on the exchange in 1930.

$5,320,000 OF HUSZAGH BONDS ARE REFINANCED

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization of $5,820,000 in defaulted real estate bonds underwritten by Huszagh, Musson & Co., is reported to have been accomplished by a bondholders' protective committee none of the members of which has received any personal compensation. A majority of the committee are owners of bonds, holding from $150,000 to $400,000.

KENNETH G. ANDERSON. [Swisher Photo.]

This total of $5,320,000 represents 82 per cent of the outstanding bonds called for deposit, according to Kenneth G. Anderson, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee. The latter body is composed of James E. MacMurray, chairman, who is chairman of the board of directors of the Acme Steel company; Hiram S. Cody, vice president of the Cody Trust company; Ferd Kramer of Draper & Kramer, Inc.; Peter P. Kransz, Henry J. Merle, Harry L. Oppenheimer, and George P. Rinn.

Handling 18 Issues.

This committee is handling eighteen issues consisting of $6,500,000 in outstanding bonds and has placed properties securing eleven of these issues in liquidating trusts for the benefit of the depositing bondholders. Its attorneys are D'Ancona, Pflaum & Kohlsaat.

The trusts are managed by three members of the bondholders' committee, including two original holders of large amounts of bonds. They are Mr. Rinn, Mr. Merle, and Mr. Kramer, an experienced real estate operator.

"Work of the committee has been greatly facilitated by the coöperation of the bondholders, who have deposited all except slightly less than 5 per cent of the outstanding securities," said Mr. Anderson. "In many cases, the committee has been accorded a 100 per cent deposit, which has greatly speeded its work.

"Of the undeposited bonds, totaling $320,000, a block of $190,000 on one issue is held by a single individual who is coöperating with the committee, so that only 2 per cent, or $130,000, is not now available to the committee.

Avoids Receivership.

"The largest issue reorganized by the committee has been the 5240 Sheridan road apartments, containing 220 suites, security for an issue of $1,396,000 in outstanding bonds. Through an arrangement with the owner of the equity, the committee was able to avoid receivership and thus save substantial expenses.

"All but $33,000, or 2.3 per cent of the issue was deposited. The property is 90 per cent rented and is earning slightly more than 4 per cent on the trust certificates. Taxes have been paid to date, including the first installment on the 1931 assessment."

LARD CLOSES LOWER ON HEAVY HEDGING

Hedging sales of lard by packers were considered larger than the absorbent ability of the market to digest. With grains and cotton lower late in the day prices declined on a fair amount of liquidating selling and closed around the bottom for the day. Net losses were 10 to 20 cents, nearby deliveries being the weakest. Advance in hogs was without influence as a sustaining factor to the market for futures. Trade was fair and fresh pork loins were easy at 6 to 8 cents.

Cash lard was 10 points lower for regular at $6.32½, with loose off 20 cents at $5.37½; and leaf off 12½ at $5.37½.

July bellies advanced 10 cents and September 30 cents, while cash lots were unchanged at $7.00. Liverpool lard was 6 to 9d higher and export clearances were 1,335,915 pounds of lard, and of bacon 266,500 pounds. Prices follow:

ELECTRIC GROUP WORKS OUT CODE TO AID INDUSTRY

Manufacturers meeting in their trade associations here and elsewhere in the country are working on codes and procedure by which they can comply with the provisions of the national industrial recovery act. Many of them are still in doubt as to what the law requires and will seek further information in Washington.

A subcommittee of the National Electrical Contractors' association, meeting in the offices of the Electrical association, 20 Wacker drive, yesterday adopted a preliminary code which is to be submitted by mail to the members of the association's executive committee. Then in about ten days a committee is to be sent to Washington to ask questions regarding minimum wages and maximum hours of work, according to L. E. Mayer, president of the association. A completed code is to be submitted to Gen. Hugh Johnson, industrial administrator, later.

Wage for Girls.

A. E. Sander of York, Pa., president of the National Confectioners' association, told members of that organization meeting at the Hotel Sherman of the efforts being made toward learning the minimum wage for its employés. Stress is being laid by the association upon a wage that will enable an unmarried girl to live comfortably since the employés of the industry are found in that status.

Conferences on the industrial recovery act will be held this afternoon and on Thursday and Friday by members of the American Foundrymen's association and the Foundry Equipment Manufacturers' association, in their convention at the Stevens hotel.

The American Surgical Trade association met at the Drake hotel to decide on steps to take to coöperate with the act.

At the Stevens hotel the Motor and Equipment Wholesalers association, and the American Paper Bag Manufacturers association met to discuss the industrial recovery act. The former group organized a committee to set up a code.

Cooperage Group Meets.

Carl F. Meyer of St. Louis presided at a meeting at the Auditorium hotel at which beer coopers from all over the country organized the Beer Cooperage Manufacturers association. Following the nomination of permanent officers discussion of a code will be started. The semi-annual convention of the Associated Cooperage Industries of America will open at the Auditorium hotel this morning. A code of ethics will be drafted.

Some 200 delegates to a meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers met in closed session yesterday at the Edgewater Beach hotel to exchange ideas regarding the industrial law.

Also at the Edgewater Beach hotel 150 delegates to a meeting of the Institute of Stamp Manufacturers association adopted a code. The National Macaroni Manufacturers association and the Associated Retail Confectioners of the United States discussed codes.

From Detroit word came that representatives of manufacturers of automobile parts and accessories throughout the country met in closed session to outline a tentative code designed to outlaw cutthroat competition.

PRICES OF GRAIN RETREAT AFTER EARLY ADVANCES

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

It takes more than inflation talk to maintain advances in the grian markets. This was demonstarted yesterday. An early bulge carried wheat prices to within a fraction of the highest levels of the season and the deferred futures of corn and all deliveries of oats and rye to new highs for the season. The advances were followed by a rapid recession on the government weather forecast indicating showers and cooler for the grain belt.

Traders lost sight of the shrinking American dollar as exemplified by the higher rate of sterling exchange after the grain markets started downward. There was evidence, however, that foreigners were becoming a little nervous over North American crop situations, especially the continued dry weather in the Canadian northwest.

Profit Taking Causes Decline.

Scattered showers were shown in the spring wheat area both sides of the international line by official weather reports overnight, coupled with much lower temperatures to allay apprehension of further crop deterioration.

In the main the rainfall reported was regarded as too light to be of material benefit to the crops in the Dakotas and Minnesota, as only three points received one quarter of an inch or more, and the showers were scattered over a wide area.

A weakened technical position was disclosed on the early advance which lifted the September to 79¼c, or within ¾ cents of the best level of the season. Early buying was based on the strength in sterling and in stocks, but when general selling developed support was not aggressive and prices dropped 1⅝ to 1¾ cents from the high and the close was about the bottom, with net losses of ⅝ to ⅞ cents. July finished at 75⅝ to 75¾ cents; September, 77⅝ to 77¾ cents, and December, 80⅛ to 80¼ cents.

Corn Traders Fear Rain.

A rush of commission house buying deleveloped in both corn and oats at the opening of the markets yesterday, but the first sales proved to be at the highest levels of the day. Longs were rendered nervous over the prospective change in weather conditions and started to take profit in volume, with the result that December corn which sold at 55 cents at the start dropped at 53⅛ cents shortly before the close. September oats after selling at 35 cents was down to 33¾ cents.

Corn finished with net losses of ⅝ to ⅞ cents, with July at 46⅛ to 46¼ cents; September, 50 to 50⅛ cents, and December at 53⅛ to 53⅜ cents. Oats received excellent support on the decline and finished unchanged to ¼ cents lower, as the trade regard this crop as having been irreparably damaged by the intense heat. July closed 31¾ cents and September at 33⅛ to 33⅜ cents.

Heavy profit taking as well as selling against weekly offers developed in rye, but the crop reports from the northwest were extremely bullish, and the close was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower. Barley lost 1⅜ to 1½ cents.

DICK TRACY—A Woman on the Scene

SOLUTION TO THE MURDER OF CHARLES BYRON

Miller stated he had left Byron at 9 o'clock just as he, Byron, started to work on the large, elaborate jigsaw puzzle. Byron was found dead at 9:30. He had been murdered. Therefore Fordney knew he had been killed before 9 o'clock as Byron could not, alone, in 30 minutes, have practically completed such a puzzle. Naturally, he was suspicious of Miller.

—Shakespeare.
